Kingston Fortunate On Supply of Water

Water is pouring over the Cooper Lake spillway and over a dam at the Mink Hollow intake, Edmund T. Cloonan, water department superintendent, reported today.

This gives Kingston a safe start in maintaining the kind of supply it will need to meet the heavy summer drain on reserve, but other areas of the state, it was noted recently, are faced

Sterley Leader For May 16 Fete Slated by GOP

A former Republican city chairman, attorney John B. Sterley will be honorary chairman of the May 16 testimonial dinner for Howard C. St. John and Bernhardt S. Kramer, it was announced today by Joseph F. Carroll, Jr., chairman of the Republican City Committee.

Keynote speaker at the affair which will take place in the Governor Clinton Hotel will be congressman John V. Lindsay from New York's 17th Congressional District who emerged from the last election as one of the most popular young Republican national office holders.

Judge Sterley, who preceded Howard C. St. John as city chairman is expected to present plaques to St. John and Kramer honoring them for their leadership of the city Republican organization from 1961 through 1964.

The judge is a former Ulster County surrogate who was appointed to that judicial post in 1944 and was elected to the office the following year. At present he serves as treasurer of the Ulster County Republican Committee.

He is president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, a post he has held since January of 1957. As a young attorney he first became associated at the financial institution in 1921 as associate counsel. In October of 1927 he was elected to the board of directors and in 1942 he became counsel.

Chairman Carroll announced that tickets for the May 16th Dinner are now available at the offices of the Republican City Committee at 284 Wall Street and that advance reservations have already committed approximately half of the available places.

Table assignments are being filled on a first come first serve basis Carroll said, and urged all interested parties to phone or mail their reservations in as soon as is possible. The telephone number of the Republican City Committee is listed in the new telephone directory being distributed this week Carroll added.

with summer reservoir problems. A rainfall of 2.33 inches, to date this month, added much to the Cooper Lake intake, which had been building up gradually during the winter, after being drained to the danger point last fall.

Reserve Build Up
The watershed area had received only 2.26 inches for the whole of March, but the stream feeding Cooper Lake were sufficiently up to keep gradually building the reserve.

The dam at Mink Hollow maintains a reserve intake for supplying Cooper Lake while also permitting adequate flow of the stream involved. The abundance of water there, permitting an overflow, plus that at the Cooper Lake spillway, relieves the city, for months ahead, of the problems resulting from last year's drought, which had drained Cooper Lake to a crust 18 1/2 feet below spillway level by November.

Far From Doing Well
New York City and other communities of the state are far from doing as well. New York's extensive reservoir system is now some 40 per cent of capacity reserve when it should be about 80 per cent.

Restrictions on use of water have been imposed in New York, and communities in Westchester County, which use New York's supply, have been asked to conserve water. Edward G. Michalich, Westchester County executive by letter has asked 46 mayors and supervisors to "exercise prudence" in dealing with the use of water.

It was also noted at a recent Buffalo meeting of water works officials that the reservoir problems in most areas of the state could become as bad, if not worse, than in 1964, unless the months ahead bring more than average rainfall.

State Approval Is Given To College Master Plan

Ulster County Community College came one step nearer to its permanent campus today when Ellis R. Rowlands, director of community college planning for the State University of New York Architect's office, reported to college officials that the Master Plan, schematic drawings and outline specifications, recently presented to his office, had been approved.

This approval follows closely after the approval of the Master Plan and the rough plans for the first phase of construction by the Ulster County Board of Supervisors and the trustees of the college.

State Wants New Jail For County

Once again after a routine inspection of the Ulster County jail facilities, an inspector for the State Department of Correction, is critical of the existing facilities at the county jail and recommends that the authorities "give immediate and serious consideration to replacing the present structure."

At the time of the inspection by Richard E. Wodward, senior inspector, on February 4, last, there were 41 prisoners in the jail. Thirty-seven of them were adult males, three were male minors and one adult female. Thirteen of the male adults were awaiting court action; 23 were serving sentence and one male adult was a civil prisoner. There were three male minors awaiting court action and one female was serving sentence.

Can't Comply With Law
While the report notes that the jail is adequately staffed and arrangements are made to have additional deputies on duty on visiting days, the report is critical of the lack of space to properly house and classify prisoners.

"Due to the limited number of cells it is not possible for the sheriff to comply with the law governing classification, and, in order to accommodate the high population, it is necessary to house the civil prisoner on a cot in the boiler room, four prisoners in the basement bull pen and allow the trustees to sleep on cots in a basement room," the report states.

"There was not one day during the past calendar year when the population did not exceed the number of cells available for housing and several times the population was double the number of cells," Inspector Woodward notes in his report of inspection.

Jail 64 Years Old
The present jail was built in 1901 and since that date the county population has increased resulting in increase in the jail population. There is no indication

Augustus R. Schrowang Associates are now working with consulting engineers on various aspects of the campus development and expect to complete the preliminary drawings within the next few weeks. After approval of the preliminary drawings by the State University Architect's Office, the college architects will proceed with working drawings and specifications. Augustus R. Schrowang Jr., in a recent report to the College Board of Trustees, indicated that, if the present schedule could be maintained, he felt that the college could occupy its Stone Ridge campus in the fall of 1966.

Rowe Is Heard on Shooting One of 1st Held, Charges Dropped

HAYNEVILLE, Ala. (AP) — One of the four men originally arrested in the night-rider slaying of Viola Liuzzo testified for about two hours before a Lowndes County grand jury nearing the end of its probe into the case.

Gary Thomas Rowe, 34, of Birmingham, was guarded closely during his appearance Tuesday. Then he was taken to an undisclosed location.

An FBI agent was with him when he slipped into the jury room through a side door of the courthouse and later escorted him out a back door. A number of other agents were in the area.

Charges Dismissed
The government dismissed charges against Rowe some time after his arrest.

Another who testified was Leroy Moton, 19, a Selma Negro who was with Mrs. Liuzzo when gunfire from a passing car killed her a few hours after the end of the Selma-to-Montgomery civil rights march.

The Detroit mother of five was on the way back to Montgomery after taking some marchers to Selma. The shooting occurred March 25 near Lowndesboro on U.S. 80.

Two state investigators, several federal agents and a toxicologist appeared before the jury the past two days. The other three arrested in the case were indicted by a federal grand jury in Montgomery on charges of conspiring to violate the constitutional rights of demonstrators.

Free on Bond
They are Eugene Thomas, 42, and William Orville Eaton, 41, both of Bessemer, and Collier Leroy Wilkins Jr., 21, of Fairfield. They are free on bond of $50,000 each pending arraignment in Montgomery.

President Johnson announced their arrests and said they were members of the Ku Klux Klan. Meanwhile, sit-ins were in progress at Camden and Montgomery, Ala.

Vols Think '65 Parade Will Be Largest One Yet

The parade to be held in conjunction with the 1965 convention of the Ulster County Volunteer Firemen's Association at Highland on Saturday, Aug. 7, promises to be one of the largest in history of the Association, complete with an Ulster County Convention Queen.

To Name Parade Queen
Domenik Costantino, president of the association, announced Tuesday night at the April meeting of the County Association in Clintondale, that 36 companies have already signified their intention to participate in the parade. He also announced that a Parade Queen would also be selected, together with two attendants. Contests in Highland are underway for selection of the queen.

The parade will start at 4 p.m. instead of 5 o'clock which has been the starting time in the past. Units participating in the parade will assemble at 3 p.m. President Costantino reported that thus far 29 member companies have signified an intention to take part in the parade as well as seven guest companies. One company from Ossining will have 100 men in line and two pieces of apparatus. This fire company has a present membership of 550.

125 at Meeting
There were 31 companies represented at the April meeting Tuesday night with 125 members in attendance. President Dan Visaccia welcomed the guests.

The meeting was held at the old Clintondale school house where the Association was guest of the Clintondale firemen. George H. Proper, a director of the New York State Division of Fire Safety, attended the meeting and spoke on safety. He (Continued on Page 29, Col. 5)

Lions Plan Own Library For Children

Amidst last minute preparations for the opening of the Lions Home and Auto Show next Tuesday, the Board of Directors of the Kingston Lions Club have voted to finance a major renovation and furnishing of a children's library in the O'Reilly building recently purchased by the Kingston City Library.

Kingston Lions Club president Jack Reynolds announced today that the Club has undertaken a major project to help create a children's library adjacent to the present Kingston City Library, and will contribute $6,800 to the Library Association for this purpose.

By suggestion of the Library Association Board of Directors, Reynolds said, the new facility will be named the Kingston Lions Children's Library, and will expand greatly the space and services currently being offered the community in the present building of the Kingston City Library.

To Help Expansion
The $6,800 grant of the Kingston Lions Club will finance wiring and lighting of the new building, as well as necessary plastering, painting, and varnishing, minor carpentry, and modernization of the building's heating plant. It will also equip the new children's library and those areas of the existing building that will be opened up by the establishment of the children's library in the new building.

"As a result of this project, the expanded City Library will be able to provide additional services for children, students, and adults," Reynolds said, "and for this reason the Kingston Lions Club believes its major project contribution for this year will be of lasting value to all segments of our community."

"Our members feel that the financial problems of the Kingston City Library Association are a responsibility of all of the people of our community," Reynolds said, "because from the knowledge available on the shelves and in the catalogs of a well established library comes much of the ability and know-how which will permit our area to grow and prosper."

Planes Carry Out Fast-Moving Jabs

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. Air Force, Navy and Vietnamese planes staged at least four raids over North Viet Nam today, smashing at trucks, trains, boats, barracks and roads.

All Return Safely
All the attacks were relatively small, fast-moving jabs at Communist communications lines. Spokesmen said all the planes returned safely. Light anti-aircraft fire was encountered in a few places. No enemy planes were sighted.

The largest of the operations, involving 35 Air Force jets, was directed against Routes 8 and 12. Route 8 runs from the coastal city of Vinh to the Laotian frontier. Route 12 runs from Vinh south toward the South Vietnamese border.

Briefing officers reported these details: The Air Force F105 jets cut Route 8 at one point, destroyed two railroad boxcars and a barracks at Mugia Pass near Laos, and shot up other installations.

Four Vietnamese fighter-bombers, escorted by 10 U.S. Air Force planes, strafed and bombed along Route 1 up to 60 miles north of the 17th Parallel, destroying or damaging 10 buildings and four 75-foot-long boats.

Earlier, two flights of four Navy planes each had attacked Communist road traffic in the vicinity of Dong Hoi, 45 miles north of the border, but results of the strikes could not be immediately assessed.

Julie Just Plays Role as World's Fair Opens Doors

Upwards of 6,000 persons were waiting at the main gate when the turnstiles started turning.

Miss Just, whose appearance at the World's Fair was sponsored by the Oldsmobile Division of General Motors Corp., one of the major national sponsors of the Miss American Pageant program, was to tour the grounds with Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey and West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt.

She also was scheduled to appear from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Oldsmobile exhibit at the GM building.

Woodstock Historian Starts Action For $25,000 Damages in Arrest Case

Alleging false arrest, Woodstock town historian Alf I. Evers of Shady Tuesday night filed a notice of claim for $25,000 in damages against the Woodstock Town Board and Constable John Melia.

Evers' claim, a preliminary step to a lawsuit for alleged false arrest and other charges was filed in behalf of Evers by Attorney Franklin P. Gavin of Albany and Woodstock. Evers did not attend the board meeting.

The notice was accepted by Mrs. Marjorie Harder, town clerk, in behalf of the board, which tabled action in absence of Supervisor Abram F. Molyneux, who was reported ill at home. Justice of the Peace Rudi Baumgarten served as chairman of the meeting. A similar notice will be served on Melia later.

The claim must be acknowledged by the Town Board and Constable Melia within 30 days. If no action is taken within that time limit, the formal suit will be filed by Evers, his attorney announced.

The claim which is filed jointly against the Town of Woodstock and Melia seeks damages for "false arrest, false imprisonment, kidnapping, illegal arrest, void arrest and assault and battery" which are alleged to have occurred on Feb. 22, 1965.

Constable Melia was suspended from duty for 90 days as of March 3, following an executive session at which the Town Board took testimony from the constable and Evers.

The claim charges that on February 22, in the area of the Lake Hill general store known as the Trading Post, Constable Melia "unlawfully, illegally and without any warrant in law or fact commanded Evers to submit to an arrest on alleged charge of larceny."

At the time the incident was first reported, Melia is alleged to have picked up Evers on suspicion of petit larceny following the disappearance of his wife's wallet at a Bearsville laundromat. Mrs. Melia is alleged to have claimed that a man resembling Evers was in the laundromat at the time.

The matter later showed up at the same laundromat, on the top of one of the driers.

The claim also charges that Constable Melia "actually laid hands upon Evers and took him into close and physical custody and forcibly detained him and illegally transported Evers from Lake Hill to the office of the Woodstock constabulary, where Evers was forcibly detained, imprisoned, arrested and kidnapped

High Mark Lasts for 14 Hours

Fire Is Feared, Wall Injures 15

LA CROSSE, Wis. (AP) — The flooding Mississippi River apparently has crested at 17.7 feet here but the city was prepared to continue its struggle to hold back the water which now is 5.7 feet above flood stage.

Weatherman Carl Peterson said today, "I think the river has crested at three-tenths of a foot under the mark we expected."

Peterson said that the crest of 17.7 feet was reached at 5 p.m. Tuesday and had held at that mark for 14 hours, with the reading still at 17.7 feet at 7 a.m. today.

After 48 hours of frenzied labor on the dikes, flood fighters had won a standoff. Crews were given a brief rest shortly after midnight before returning to raise and reinforce the dikes.

The river already had claimed some victories. Water ringed the city's north side and had swept over two of three runways at the municipal airport on French Island. Phone service was cut to both locations.

Guard at Tank
A guard remained posted at a 15-million-gallon gasoline tank farm where one tank, holding 107,000 gallons, was tipped at a 10-degree angle when a dike crumbled Monday. Water swirled eight feet deep around the self-sealing tanks and the potential fire danger added to the city's uneasiness.

Downstream at Clinton, Iowa, a 75-foot section of a cement retaining wall collapsed without warning Tuesday, injuring 15 young volunteer flood fighters. Eleven were released after hospital treatment. Four were held for observation.

The five-foot-high wall is part of a mile-long dike officials hope will prevent major flood damage. The dike buckled under the weight of sandbags piled on top and the pressure of sand dumped against one side.

The rising waters still were some distance from the break, and flood fighters immediately began to plug the hole.

At Marquette, Iowa, the river reached 23 feet Tuesday on the way to a crest of 24.5 feet expected Friday.

Refuse to Leave
Marquette is across the river from Prairie du Chien, Wis., where officials were wondering what to do about an elderly man and wife who have refused to leave their home.

The flood waters are only 50 feet away and the crest is still to come.

"I've lived in this house 10 years," said Mrs. Sam Ferris, "and I don't intend to let a little water drive me out."

Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner ordered 45 National Guardsmen from Rock Island to duty Tuesday. They will patrol river levees in the East Dubuque area. They joined 300 other Guardsmen ordered to patrol duty last week in the Henderson County and Quincy area to the south.

About 40 homes in the East Dubuque area were surrounded by 15 feet of flood water. A dike protecting another 108 homes showed signs of seepage Tuesday and sewers were backing up.

It was feared that more than 1,000 persons would have to be evacuated if the seepage continued. The river reached a record crest of 22.6 feet Tuesday and was expected to go to 24 feet.

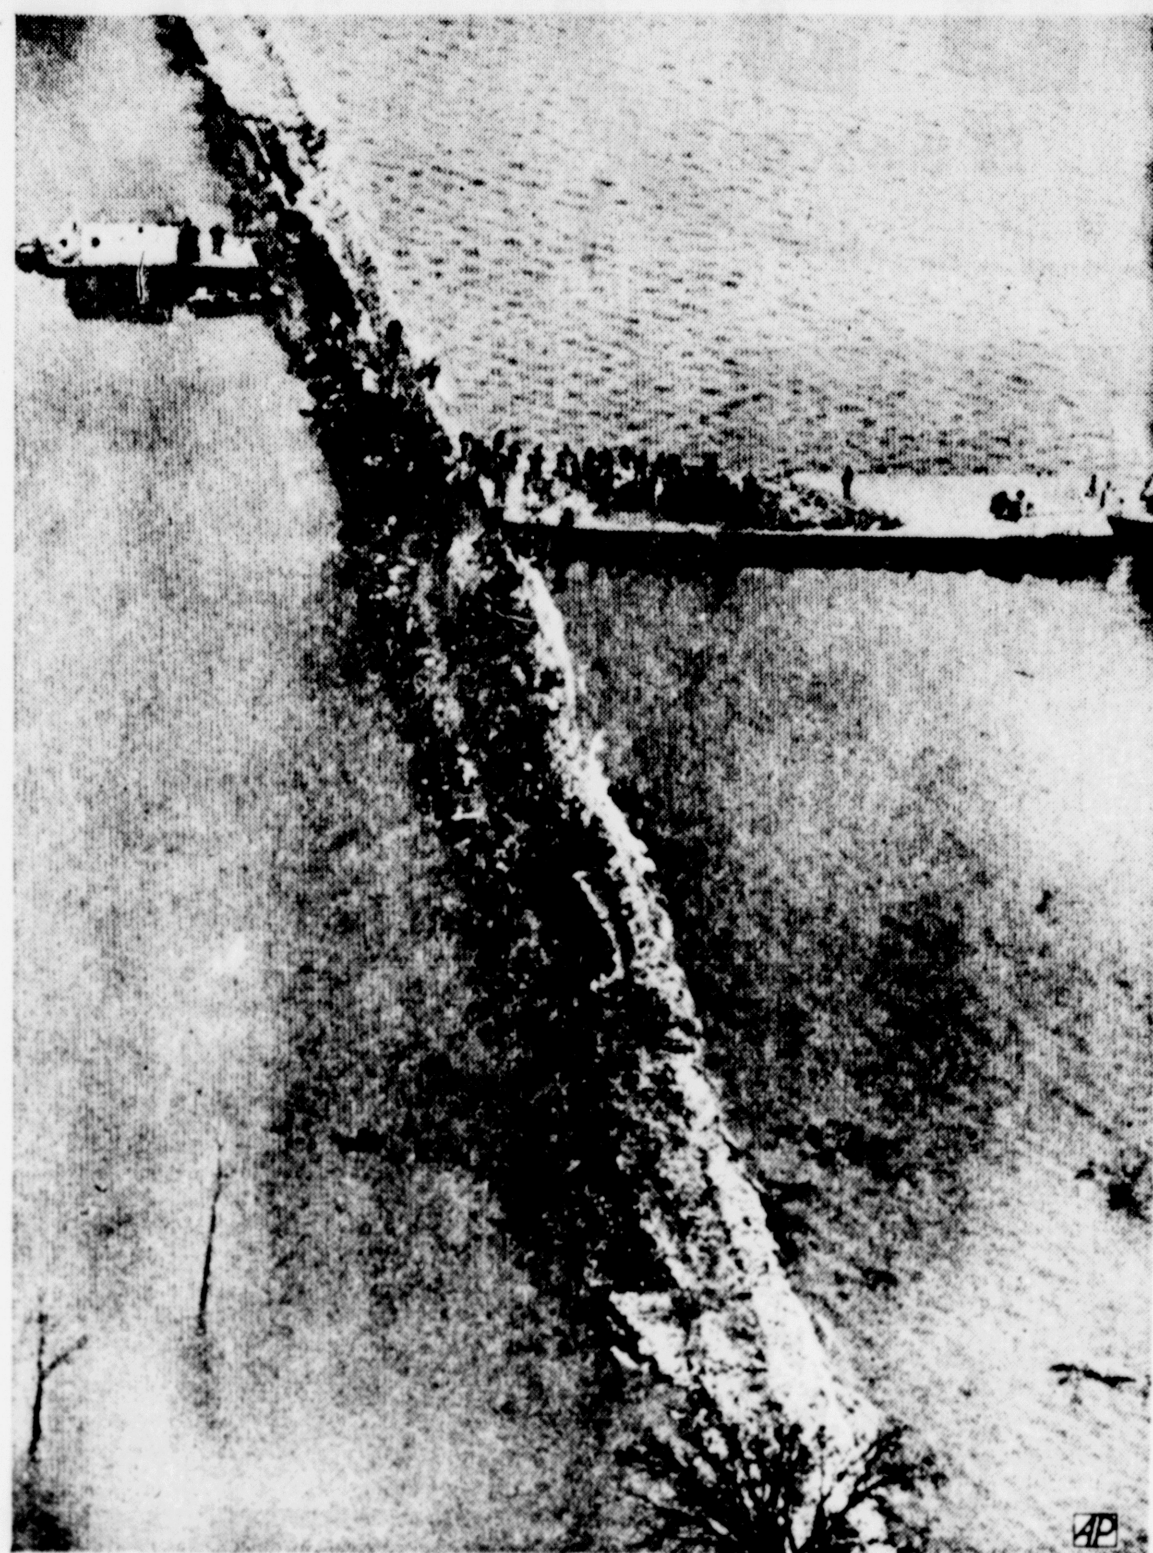

More than 10,000 volunteers, National Guardsmen and Red Cross workers have been working around the clock in Illinois to bolster flood defenses between Rock Island and Quincy with 650,000 sandbags.

To Hit 23.5 Crest
The Weather Bureau revised its flood crest forecast for Quincy, saying the river will hit 23.5 feet on May 1, or six inches below the figure predicted originally.

Helicopters dumped junked cars near Rock Creek north of Quincy in an effort to reinforce weakened levees holding back flood waters that have already swept over 7,000 acres of farmland.

Two trustees at the Illinois State Prison at Menard were foiled by floodwaters in an escape attempt Tuesday.

The present jail was built in 1901 and since that date the county population has increased resulting in increase in the jail population. There is no indication of a new jail.

Two Navy planes were downed in raids Tuesday. Spokesmen said the pilot of one was killed. The other is listed as missing.

Two A4 Skyhawks from the 7th Fleet carrier Hancock prowled Highway 1 north from the north-south border early today. They made passes at two trucks south of Dong Hoi, firing 20mm cannon. The pilots said they were unable to assess the damage, if any.

About an hour later, four more Skyhawks flew the same

Woodstock Historian Starts Action For $25,000 Damages in Arrest Case

Alleging false arrest, Woodstock town historian Alf I. Evers of Shady Tuesday night filed a notice of claim for $25,000 in damages against the Woodstock Town Board and Constable John Melia.

Evers' claim, a preliminary step to a lawsuit for alleged false arrest and other charges was filed in behalf of Evers by Attorney Franklin P. Gavin of Albany and Woodstock. Evers did not attend the board meeting.

The notice was accepted by Mrs. Marjorie Harder, town clerk, in behalf of the board, which tabled action in absence of Supervisor Abram F. Molyneux, who was reported ill at home. Justice of the Peace Rudi Baumgarten served as chairman of the meeting.

A similar notice will be served on Melia later.

The claim must be acknowledged by the Town Board and Constable Melia within 30 days. If no action is taken within that time limit, the formal suit will be filed by Evers, his attorney announced.

The claim which is filed jointly against the Town of Woodstock and Melia seeks damages for "false arrest, false imprisonment, kidnapping, illegal arrest, void arrest and assault and battery" which are alleged to have occurred on Feb. 22, 1965.

Constable Melia was suspended from duty for 90 days as of March 3, following an executive session at which the Town Board took testimony from the constable and Evers.

The claim charges that on February 22, in the area of the Lake Hill general store known as the Trading Post, Constable Melia "unlawfully, illegally and without any warrant in law or fact commanded Evers to submit to an arrest on alleged charge of larceny."

At the time the incident was first reported, Melia is alleged to have picked up Evers on suspicion of petit larceny following the disappearance of his wife's wallet at a Bearsview laundromat. Mrs. Melia is alleged to have claimed that a man resembling Evers was in the laundromat at the time.

The wallet later showed up at the same laundromat, on the top of one of the driers.

Fire Is Feared, Wall Injures 15

LA CROSSE, Wis. (AP) — The flooding Mississippi River apparently has crested at 17.7 feet here but the city was prepared to continue its struggle to hold back the water which now is 5.7 feet above flood stage.

Weatherman Carl Peterson said today, "I think the river has crested at three-tenths of a foot under the mark we expected."

Peterson said that the crest of 17.7 feet was reached at 5 p. m. Tuesday and had held at that mark for 14 hours, with the reading still at 17.7 feet at 7 a. m. today.

After 48 hours of frenzied labor on the dikes, flood fighters had won a standoff. Crews were given a brief rest shortly after midnight before returning to raise and reinforce the dikes.

The river already had claimed some victories. Water ringed the city's north side and had swept over two of three runways at the municipal airport on French Island. Phone service was cut to both locations.

Guard at Tank

A guard remained posted at a 15-million-gallon gasoline tank farm where one tank, holding 107,000 gallons, was tipped at a 10-degree angle when a dike crumbled Monday. Water swirled eight feet deep around the self-sealing tanks and the potential fire danger added to the city's uneasiness.

Downstream at Clinton, Iowa, a 75-foot section of a cement retaining wall collapsed without warning Tuesday, injuring 15 young volunteer flood fighters. Eleven were released after hospital treatment. Four were held for observation.

The five-foot-high wall is part of a mile-long dike officials hope will prevent major flood damage. The wall buckled under the weight of sandbags piled on top and the pressure of sand dumped against one side.

The rising waters still were some distance from the break, and flood fighters immediately began to plug the hole.

At Marquette, Iowa, the river reached 23 feet Tuesday on the way to a crest of 24.5 feet expected Friday.

Refuse to Leave

Marquette is across the river from Prairie du Chien, Wis., where officials were wondering what to do about an elderly man and wife who have refused to leave their home.

The flood waters are only 50 feet away and the crest is still to come.

"I've lived in this house 10 years," said Mrs. Sam Ferris, "and I don't intend to let a little water drive me out."

Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner ordered 45 National Guardsmen from Rock Island to duty Tuesday. They will patrol river levees in the East Dubuque area. They joined 300 other Guardsmen ordered to patrol duty last week in the Henderson County and Quincy area to the south.

About 40 homes in the East Dubuque area were surrounded by 15 feet of flood water. A dike protecting another 108 homes showed signs of seepage Tuesday and sewers were backing up.

It was feared that more than 1,000 persons would have to be evacuated if the seepage continued. The river reached a record crest of 22.6 feet Tuesday and was expected to go to 24 feet.

More than 10,000 volunteers, National Guardsmen and Red Cross workers have been working around the clock in Illinois to bolster flood defenses between Rock Island and Quincy with 650,000 sandbags.

To Hit 23.5 Crest

The Weather Bureau revised its flood crest forecast for Quincy, saying the river will hit 23.5 feet on May 1, or six inches below the figure predicted originally.

Helicopters dumped junked cars near Rock Creek north of Quincy in an effort to reinforce weakened levees holding back flood waters that have already swept over 7,000 acres of farmland.

Two trustees at the Illinois State Prison at Menard were foiled by floodwaters in an escape attempt Tuesday.

Warden Ross Randolph said debris apparently sheared a pin

Split in Ulster Libraries Will Mean Aid Loss

Changes in the State Library law which are of particular interest to residents of Mid-Hudson Valley, are now in the Assembly Education Committee (S12802 and AP3506). The bill is drawn to meet the situation in Ulster County, unique in the entire state, where public libraries are split between two systems. Previous legislation provided for services by one system, only, within a county but in Ulster County, 15 libraries joined Mid-Hudson Libraries and three libraries, Ellenville, Cragmoor and Wallkill, joined Ramapo-Catskill Library System. The resulting division has meant a loss of more than $20,000 annually for public library service in this area. In addition, the $20,000 establishment grant has not been paid for Ulster County because two systems serve the county.

The new legislation is intended to improve the situation. According to Mrs. Gerald Carson, Mid-Hudson Libraries Trustee and member of the Legislative Committee of the New York Library Association, "The new bill will mean some more State Aid than now available for Ulster County, but, regrettably it will provide much less than would be paid if the county were served entirely by one system." Mrs. Carson, in a memorandum to 50 member libraries served by Mid-Hudson Libraries, urges letters to legislators for support of the bill.

Fraternal Group Plans Day of Fun At Granit Hotel

A special program has been arranged for members of Masonic orders and their friends of the area by the Ulster County Shrine Club, Cyprus Temple, it was announced today.

The program, lasting from 1 p. m. to midnight, is scheduled at the Granit Hotel and Country Club in Kerhonkson, Thursday, April 29.

Invitations have been extended to all Masonic groups in the district to enjoy this fellowship outing, and advance reservations point to a very successful party, according to those in charge.

President Milton Makowsky of Cyprus Temple is directing the affair assisted by Mayor Eugene Glusker and Henry Schipp, both of Ellenville.

All facilities of the Granit will be available to the Masons and their guests during the hours mentioned: Golf, ice skating, swimming and Sauna bathing; a complete buffet dinner starting at 6 p. m. followed by music for dancing at 9 p. m. and a sparkling floor show of varied entertainment.

Larry Bogert, publicity chairman, said for those able to arrive at the 1 p. m. starting time and stay for the day "tickets make a double discount day look extravagant."

They may be had from officers of the Masonic fraternal orders or from Gordon's Pharmacy, Poughkeepsie; Kelley's paint store, Saugerties; Schipp's diner, Ellenville, or in Kingston at Eleven Main Restaurant and Kaplan's furniture store, North Front Street.

Max Geller, host at the Granit, added that he is prepared to take care of late-comers if they show up at 8 p. m., but he joined in the suggestion to make early arrangements.

"We realize that some people can't get away from business until late," he said, "but they'll be taken care of if they show up."

Stressing that friends of Masonic members are most welcome to join in the day of fun, the committee joined in saying, "come even if you just want to relax."

Oswald: "It was a weak jump overall to end all weak jump overcalls and very pointless. His hand was so weak that all his bid could possibly do would be to help the opposition. How do you think North should have bid?"

Jim: "North might have bid the same way except that after South showed one ace North could have bid five no-trump. This bid not only asks for kings but also informs South that North holds the rest of the aces and is interested in seven."

Report Is Plane Fell Apart in Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board says a light plane that crashed near Eaton, N.Y., Dec. 20, killing two men, came apart while in flight.

The aircraft, the board said Tuesday, was subjected to aerodynamic loads beyond its design limits.

Killed in the crash were the pilot, Alfred Friedlander, 33, of Torrington, Conn., and Charles W. Edmonson of Stamford, Conn.

Their plane had flown from Hartford, Conn., to Syracuse and Rochester, N.Y., and had left Rochester for an unknown destination, the CAB said.

About an hour after takeoff from Rochester, Friedlander radioed that he was lost in instrument weather conditions, and shortly thereafter the plane crashed in Eaton, Madison County, N.Y., during a snowstorm.

The board attributed the crash also to the action of the pilot who, while not rated to fly by instruments, continued flight into an area of adverse weather.

Foreign Policy Not So Clear

First Three Months Are Not Enough for Full LBJ Picture

By JAMES MARLOW

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson has now served the first three months of his full presidential term and it hasn't been long enough to get a rounded picture of him.

Only part of him, like an iceberg, has been visible so far. His policies and tactics at home are clear enough. His foreign policy isn't.

His success at home, at least with Congress, has been astonishing. The same can't be said of his dealings abroad, if only because there hasn't been enough of them, although they could turn out that way.

In foreign policy, he could wind up being the toughest president in years.

What he did in foreign affairs between the time he succeeded President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963, and when he was sworn in on his own last Jan. 20 can't be taken as a yardstick.

In that period he played it cool, quiet and cautious. He had no real crisis, there was an election coming, and he wasn't about to supply the opposition with ammunition.

Then, within a month after beginning his own four-year term, he made a very tough decision.

This was his order last Feb. 7 to bomb Communist North Viet Nam. And, refusing to yield to criticism, he has kept the bombing going ever since, even though it could lead to conflict with the Soviet Union and Red China.

Since no other problem in the past three months has required such drastic action, this one example is not enough evidence on which to build a case for a hard-nosed man in the White House.

It's hard to say whether he was being tough or just rough in the way he recently handled the prime minister of India and the president of Pakistan, both of whom were to visit here soon.

He canceled their visits so abruptly that The Associated Press reported from India that the prime minister was deemed publicly disgraced. The reason?

The White House said Johnson was going to be too busy with Viet Nam and Congress to receive the two visitors who are next-door neighbors in Asia, but not friendly ones.

But The AP reported from India it is generally believed there that Johnson did what he did to show his displeasure with India and Pakistan, both of whom have received U.S. aid, for their criticism of his country.

Johnson's action undoubtedly reflects the feelings of many Americans who are getting fed up seeing the United States lambasted by countries which have had their hands out for U.S. help.

History may decide that the United States, in playing meek

nursemaid to countries it hoped to keep away from communism with American aid, pursued far too long a policy far too soft and injurious to itself.

The other side of the coin, of course, is the fact that since World War II no country has voluntarily adopted communism and that in the intervening years the solid front of communism itself has been shattered.

But if Johnson acted hurriedly out of irritation with India and Pakistan, this was not a policy at all but an impulse, leaving Viet Nam as the only sign of a new, tough American attitude in these past three months.

At home Johnson has used the velvet glove but with one big exception in which he got domestically tough, too: this was in getting far tougher than any of his predecessors in demanding equal rights for Negroes.

With Congress Johnson has worked day and night, always without visible conflict, pushing, pulling, pressuring, phoning, entertaining, urging, demanding, and always with steady progress and success.

TV Reviews, Best Bets

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There are nights when NBC and CBS — the only networks that regularly present television news specials — seem to have run out of ideas on which to build an hour-long program.

So it was Tuesday evening with NBC's "Our Man in Washington," which had promised us a look at the nation's capital under a new administration. It turned out to be a lengthy, rambling affair pegged loosely on David Brinkley's remark that the city was born in the 19th century "and has caught every urban ailment since."

As it turned out, "Man in Washington" was not Brinkley so much as a post-Civil War photographer named Charles Bell who had industriously snapped pictures of much of the city's architecture and important people. Considerable time was spent showing the old still pictures — and more time showing some out-of-focus, jumbled home movies taken recently by Washington tourists.

Brinkley called attention to Washington's growing pains, which are typical of other growing cities. One was the destruction of landmarks and historic sites to make more roads and bigger buildings. The site of Francis Scott Key's house is now marked, he noted, by a manhole cover on a busy street. Dave Garroway started his stint Monday as host of ABC's "Night Life" with some guest star types who seemed more interested in plugging their own current projects than in brightening up Dave's show.

Tuesday night, however, the program perked up considerably with the presence of Arthur Godfrey in an expansive mood and Morey Amsterdam.

Recommended to tonight: "Let's Go to the Fair," CBS, 7:30-8:30 EST — Special program marking the reopening of the New York World's Fair; "Burke's Law," ABC, 9:30-10:30 — "Honey West," an episode introducing a female private eye who next season will spin off on a series of her own.

Palace May Go Live

NEW YORK (AP) — The Palace, Broadway's famous citadel of vaudeville, may next become a legitimate theater. Since the passing of variety entertainment, the house has been primarily used for movies. Renovation plans have been completed for the transition.

Fraternal Group Plans Day of Fun At Granit Hotel

A special program has been arranged for members of Masonic orders and their friends of the area by the Ulster County Shrine Club, Cyprus Temple, it was announced today.

The program, lasting from 1 p. m. to midnight, is scheduled at the Granit Hotel and Country Club in Kerhonkson, Thursday, April 29.

Invitations have been extended to all Masonic groups in the district to enjoy this fellowship outing, and advance reservations point to a very successful party, according to those in charge.

President Milton Makowsky of Cyprus Temple is directing the affair assisted by Mayor Eugene Glusker and Henry Schipp, both of Ellenville.

All facilities of the Granit will be available to the Masons and their guests during the hours mentioned: Golf, ice skating, swimming and Sauna bath; a complete buffet dinner starting at 6 p. m. followed by music for dancing at 9 p. m. and a sparkling floor show of varied entertainment.

Larry Bogert, publicity chairman, said for those able to arrive at the 1 p. m. starting time and stay for the day "tickets make a double discount day look extravagant."

He added that advance reservations will be a great help to the committee on arrangements, and urged that tickets be purchased early.

They may be had from officers of the Masonic fraternal orders or from Gordon's Pharmacy, Phoenixia; Kelley's paint store, Saugerties; Schipp's diner, Ellenville, or in Kingston at Eleven Main Restaurant and Kaplan's furniture store, North Front Street.

Max Geller, host at the Granit, added that he is prepared to take care of late-comers if they show up at 8 p. m., but he joined in the suggestion to make early arrangements.

"We realize that some people can't get away from business until late," he said, "but they'll be taken care of if they show up."

Stressing that friends of Masonic members are most welcome to join in the day of fun, the committee joined in saying, "come even if you just want to relax."

Report Is Plane Fell Apart in Air

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board says a light plane that crashed near Eaton, N.Y., Dec. 20, killing two men, came apart while in flight.

The aircraft, the board said Tuesday, was subjected to aerodynamic loads beyond its design limits.

Killed in the crash were the pilot, Alfred Friedlander, 33, of Torrington, Conn., and Charles W. Edmonson of Stamford, Conn.

Their plane had flown from Hartford, Conn., to Syracuse and Rochester, N.Y., and had left Rochester for an unknown destination, the CAB said.

About an hour after takeoff from Rochester, Friedlander radioed that he was lost in instrument weather conditions, and shortly thereafter the plane crashed in Eaton, Madison County, N.Y., during a snowstorm.

The board attributed the crash also to the action of the pilot who, while not rated to fly by instruments, continued flight into an area of adverse weather.

Foreign Policy Not So Clear

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson has now served the first three months of his full presidential term and it hasn't been long enough to get a rounded picture of him.

Only part of him, like an iceberg, has been visible so far. His policies and tactics at home are clear enough. His foreign policy isn't.

His success at home, at least with Congress, has been astonishing. The same can't be said of his dealings abroad, if only because there hasn't been enough of them, although they could turn out that way.

In foreign policy he could wind up being the toughest president in years.

What he did in foreign affairs between the time he succeeded President John F. Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963, and when he was sworn in on his own last Jan. 20 can't be taken as a yardstick.

In that period he played it cool, quiet and cautious. He had no real crisis, there was an election coming, and he wasn't about to supply the opposition with ammunition.

Then, within a month after beginning his own four-year term, he made a very tough decision.

This was his order last Feb. 7 to bomb Communist North Viet Nam. And, refusing to yield to criticism, he has kept the bombing going ever since, even though it could lead to conflict with the Soviet Union and Red China.

Since no other problem in the past three months has required such drastic action, this one example is not enough evidence on which to build a case for a hard-nosed man in the White House.

It's hard to say whether he was being tough or just rough in the way he recently handled the prime minister of India and the president of Pakistan, both of whom were to visit here soon.

He canceled their visits so abruptly that The Associated Press reported from India that the prime minister was deemed publicly disgraced. The reason? The White House said Johnson was going to be too busy with Viet Nam and Congress to receive the two visitors who are next-door neighbors in Asia, but not friendly ones.

But The AP reported from India it is generally believed there that Johnson did what he did to show his displeasure with India and Pakistan, both of whom have received U.S. aid, for their criticism of this country.

Johnson's action undoubtedly reflects the feelings of many Americans who are getting fed up seeing the United States lambasted by countries which have had their hands out for U.S. help.

History may decide that the United States, in playing meek

nursemaid to countries it hoped to keep away from communism with American aid, pursued far too long a policy far too soft and injurious to itself.

The other side of the coin, of course, is the fact that since World War II no country has voluntarily adopted communism and that in the intervening years the solid front of communism itself has been shattered.

But if Johnson acted hurriedly out of irritation with India and Pakistan, this was not a policy at all but an impulse, leaving Viet Nam as the only sign of a new, tough American attitude in these past three months.

At home Johnson has used the velvet glove but with one big exception in which he got domestically tough, too; this was in getting far tougher than any of his predecessors in demanding equal rights for Negroes.

With Congress Johnson has worked day and night, always without visible conflict, pushing, pulling, pressuring, phoning, entertaining, urging, demanding, and always with steady progress and success.

TV Reviews, Best Bets

NEW YORK (AP) — There are nights when NBC and CBS — the only networks that regularly present television news specials — seem to have run out of ideas on which to build an hour-long program.

'These Days'

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

TWO ENDS OF THE CONTINENT

The two most populous states in the Union, New York and California, seem to be racing each other to plan time bombs under the most carefully laid plans of the politicians of both parties.

Consider the political similarities between the two states. In California, the Democratic Party is split by the feuding that goes on between Governor Pat Brown and Big Daddy Unruh, the Speaker of the State Assembly. In New York, the adherents of Mayor Bob Wagner of New York City continue their silent jockeying to keep U. S. Senator Bob Kennedy relegated to the role of new boy in the Empire State political school. Bobby, of course, refuses to accept any such downgrading, and his suburban and upstate allies, such as Boss Jack English of Nassau County, aren't accepting it either.

The Democratic Party in New York State is likely to become a poster for President Lyndon Johnson because of the complete lack of consensus about who is best fitted to be the Democratic candidate for governor in 1966. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., who, believe it or not, is moving toward late middle age, is faced with a now-or-never proposition if he is to live up to his picture of himself as his father's son. But Sam Stratton, the upstart who wins two-to-one in what used to be a Republican area, thinks he deserves a shot at the Albany job. Jack English, still angry because a strange alliance between Bob Wagner, Boss Charlie Buckley of the Bronx and Liberal Party factotum Alex Rose nominated Robert Morgenthau for governor in 1962 and lost disastrously to Nelson Rockefeller, is busy polishing the claims of his candidate for 1966.

The English "dark horse" is the capable Eugene Nickerson, the Nassau County executive. Between upstarters and Manhattanites, liberals and moderates, bosses and advocates of a direct primary, pro-Rooseveltians and those who think Jimmy Roosevelt's defeat in the Los Angeles mayoralty has rubbed the magic from the Roosevelt name, there is bound to be blood-letting among Democrats when they try to come up with a candidate capable of taking on Republican Nelson Rockefeller in 1966. Rockefeller would be sitting pretty if it were not for the animosity of the conservative party, which will almost certainly field its own candidate against him.

In California, the battle for the governor's job promises a donnybrook all around. Jesse Unruh subtly undercuts Pat Brown's chances for reelection. The Republicans, sensing they have a unique opportunity to elect a governor in 1966, are, as usual, split between the liberals and the conservatives, with the liberals plugging Senator Tom Kuchel (who would have to quit his job in Washington to run), and the conservatives debating the relative merits of oil executive Joe Shell and actor Ronald Reagan. Like the Democrats in New York, the Republicans could hurt themselves with feuding. But this doesn't necessarily let President Lyndon Johnson off the hook, for he may have to choose between the Brown and Unruh Democratic factions, which would make it a bad blood campaign for both Democrats and Republicans.

A court appointment for governor Brown might solve things for both Big Daddy Unruh, who sometimes goes by his own name of Jesse Marvin Unruh, and for Lyndon Johnson as a dispenser of harmony. If Unruh is to be the Democratic candidate for governor, he would be a formidable campaigner. He proved his muscle in a recent Los Angeles mayoralty fight when his candidate, maverick Sam Yorty, easily polished off Jimmy Roosevelt and an also-ran Republican. But U. S. Senator George Murphy, Republican, has warned the Democrats that if Californians farm income is ruined by Secretary of Labor William Wirtz's campaign against the use of Mexican migrant workers, it will take more than Unruh's magic and Lyndon Johnson's balm to produce a 1966 Democratic victory in the fight for governor.

The time bombs that are ticking at two ends of the continent could have their impact on 1968 as well as on 1966. For when it comes to electoral votes, California and New York are not going to be surpassed by any other states for a long, long time. (Copyright, 1963, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The DOCTOR SAYS

Polyps Hard to Find, Easier to Have Removed

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D., Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Many persons are found to have polyps in the rectum. These small tumors can be associated with and they may have a broad base on the wall of the rectum or they may be attached to the wall by a short stalk. The chief reason for finding and removing these polyps is to determine whether or not they are malignant. Relief of symptoms is of secondary importance because most polyps produce no symptoms, especially in the early stages. Later they may become so large as to cause some obstruction of the bowel or they may bleed.

Since persons with polyps rarely complain about them and since they are not readily found on physical examination or by X-rays, the diagnosis is made by means of the proctoscope. Most rectal polyps, like nasal polyps, are benign but there are so many variations in size and contour that when one is found it should be removed—a simple office procedure—and examined microscopically.

An exception is the polyp that has a definite stalk as this type is invariably benign and need not be removed unless it is very large. When such a polyp is completely removed it will not grow back again but there is always the possibility that a new one will form in the same general area.

When a microscopic examination of a polyp is made, there is evidence of cancer it is not enough to remove the polyps. Several inches of the adjacent colon should be removed without delay.

Q—I had a polyp removed from the right side of my nose. Within 10 months it grew back and I had it removed again so that I could breathe. After 2 months it returned. What causes these growths? Is there any way to prevent them?

A—Polyps in the nose are seen in persons with chronic sinusitis, allergic rhinitis and cystic fibrosis. Often there is a combination of two of these predisposing factors. Every person with recurring nasal polyps should be examined for all three factors. When they return after repeated removal the only way to prevent their recurrence is an operation that removes not only the polyp but also the entire mucous lining of the involved sinuses.

Q—I have been using paradihydrobenzene crystals in my closets to discourage the moths. Is it harmful for children to breathe these fumes?

A—The fumes from this moth repellent are irritating to the mucous membranes. Short exposure would do no harm and few children or adults would be likely to expose themselves to these fumes long enough to do any harm.

The Why of Viet Nam Resistance to Aggression The Only Road to Peace

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The dissenting views of those Americans who want the U. S. to give in and get out of Viet Nam at all costs need to be fully and frankly answered.

Perhaps the motive of the peace - at - any - price protestors is more emotional than rational.

But the purpose of the don't-resist critics of defending South Viet Nam is exactly the same as the purpose of the must-resist supporters of defending South Viet Nam. Purpose: a world at peace. Therefore, there must be a rational choice between these two opposite courses of national policy.

One course is to seek peace by resisting aggression.

The other is to seek peace by not resisting aggression.

It is not good enough to answer those who want no resistance to aggression by explaining that the U. S. is in South Viet Nam in order to keep a promise by President Eisenhower and Kennedy. It would be fatal if the U. S. dishonored its commitment, but it is fair to ask why we made the promise in the first place.

We made the promise to help South Viet Nam defend itself because we had learned from the grim experience of Munich and Korea that aggression unresisted leads to more war — not to more peace.

Britain sought peace by trying to buy off Hitler by giving him part of Czechoslovakia. But this led to more aggression. Hitler then took all of Czechoslovakia and attacked Poland — there was no peace.

The U. S. sought peace by publicly announcing that it did not intend to defend South Korea from aggression. But this did not bring peace; it brought aggression.

President Johnson and I believe, most of the Congress and most of the country are now alive to the truth that running from aggression is not the way to peace, either for the United States or for the world.

President Johnson is saying— and the lessons of Munich and Korea say he is right—that a victory for aggression in Viet Nam would be a green light for instigation and support of Viet Nam-type "wars of liberation" elsewhere.

This is why the risky path of resistance to aggression is the only road to a world at peace. (Copyright 1963, New York Herald Tribune Inc.)

ACTION ON DISABILITY

The House of Representatives has voted 367 to 29 in favor of a proposed Constitutional amendment on the questions of presidential disability and of vacancy in the office of vice president. There is no apparent reason why the Senate, which has a similar measure before it, should not give its swift approval and thus clear the way for ratifying action by the state legislatures.

The nation has bumbled along ever since its founding with rather vague constitutional directives for procedure in case the president becomes unable to perform the duties of office. There has been no procedure at all for promptly filling the office of vice president should it be vacated by the vice president's death or disability, or accession to the presidency. There are strong objections to the law on succession, under which the leaders of the House and Senate are next in line when the vice president moves into the presidency.

Doubtless the nation could continue to bumble along, but it would be foolish to trust our luck too far. The case against doing so, already convincing on the basis of history going back at least as far as Lincoln's death, has been made indisputable by the Kennedy assassination and President Eisenhower's heart attacks.

There should thus be a sense of urgency about Senate action and agreement on a final plan for submission to the states. The measure approved by the House is a good start toward an amendment for which there is a clear need.

LIMITED NAME MAGIC

Franklin D. Roosevelt's eldest son, Rep. James Roosevelt, was beaten decisively in the Los Angeles mayoralty race. This proves anew that there are limits to the potency of bearing a famous political name.

Another FDR son, Franklin, Jr., could have told James that. After a term or two in Congress, he lost his only statewide race, being defeated in 1954 when he ran for attorney general of New York.

It has happened before. Hardly any president had a greater following than Theodore Roosevelt. Yet when TR, Jr., sought to follow his father's footsteps, he was beaten for governor of New York by Al Smith. His true vocation was not politics but the army, as he proved by his distinguished combat record.

Robert A. Taft, son of the president, had notable success up to a point, winning three elections to the Senate. Yet when he sought the presidency, he was thrice rejected by his party. Last November his son, Robert, Jr., whose name was supposed to make him a future presidential nominee, was defeated for an Ohio senatorship. This is a sharp limitation on his future political prospects.

There is magic in a famous name, all right. But the magic carries a man only so far. From that point on, circumstances and proven ability and individual appeal to the voters become more important.

GREATEST MILESTONE

The Civil War, whose centennial celebration has just ended, marked the first time that Europeans regarded the United States as a major power. Until then most of the great nations, with the exception of England, had paid little more attention to us than to China or Japan.

The battles of the Civil War caused the change. They dwarfed even the Napoleonic conflicts in size and costliness. Military men began to study them, and to recognize the major status of generals such as Grant, Lee and Stonewall Jackson.

Another reason for the continued study of our great national conflict is that its methods foreshadowed those of the two world wars. Field fortifications and trench warfare first became prominent at Petersburg, that bloody battle in the Confederates' last great stand. The Gatling gun came into use as the first multiple firing weapon, precursor of the machine gun. The extensive use of artillery, the maneuvering of great modern military supply systems all came into notice abroad in the Civil War.

The centennial has been a reminder that this conflict was the most momentous episode in our history. Only the Louisiana Purchase comes close to rivaling the Civil

TWO ENDS OF THE CONTINENT

The two most populous states in the Union, New York and California, seem to be racing each other to plan time bombs under the most carefully laid plans of the politicians of both parties.

Consider the political similarities between the two states. In California, the Democratic Party is split by the feuding that goes on between Governor Pat Brown and Big Daddy Unruh, the Speaker of the State Assembly. In New York, the adherents of Mayor Bob Wagner of New York City continue their silent jockeying to keep U. S. Senator Bob Kennedy relegated to the role of new boy in the Empire State political school. Bobby, of course, refuses to accept any such downgrading, and his suburban and upstate allies, such as Boss Jack English of Nassau County, aren't accepting it either.

The Democratic Party in New York State is likely to become a poser for President Lyndon Johnson because of the complete lack of consensus about who is best fitted to be the Democratic candidate for governor in 1966. Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., who, believe it or not, is moving toward late middle age, is faced with a now-or-never proposition if he is to live up to his picture of himself as his father's son. But Sam Stratton, the upstate who wins two-to-one in what used to be a Republican area, thinks he deserves a shot at the Albany job. Jack English, still angry because a strange alliance between Bob Wagner, Boss Charlie Buckley of the Bronx and Liberal Party factotum Alex Rose nominated Robert Morgenthau for governor in 1962 and lost disastrously to Nelson Rockefeller, is busy polishing the claims of his candidate for 1966.

The English "dark horse" is the capable Eugene Nickerson, the Nassau County executive. Between upstaters and Manhattanites, liberals and moderates, bosses and advocates of a direct primary, pro-Rooseveltians and those who think Jimmy Roosevelt's defeat in the Los Angeles mayoralty has rubbed the magic from the Roosevelt name, there is bound to be blood-letting among Democrats when they try to come up with a candidate capable of taking on Republican Nelson Rockefeller in 1966. Rockefeller would be sitting pretty if it were not for the animosity of the conservative party, which will almost certainly field its own candidate against him.

In California, the battle for the governor's job promises a donnybrook all around. Jesse Unruh subtly undercuts Pat Brown's chances for reelection. The Republicans, sensing they have a unique opportunity to elect a governor in 1966, are, as usual, split between the liberals and the conservatives, with the liberals plugging Senator Tom Kuchel (who would have to quit his job in Washington to run), and the conservatives debating the relative merits of oil executive Joe Shell and actor Ronald Reagan. Like the Democrats in New York, the Republicans could hurt themselves with feuding. But this doesn't necessarily let President Lyndon Johnson off the hook, for he may have to choose between the Brown and Unruh Democratic factions, which would make it a bad blood campaign for both Democrats and Republicans.

A court appointment for governor Brown might solve things for both Big Daddy Unruh, who sometimes goes by his own name of Jesse Marvin Unruh, and for Lyndon Johnson as a dispenser of harmony. If Unruh is to be the Democratic candidate for governor, he would be a formidable campaigner. He proved his muscle in a recent Los Angeles mayoralty fight when his candidate, maverick Sam Yorty, easily polished off Jimmy Roosevelt and an also-ran Republican. But U.S. Senator George Murphy, Republican, has warned the Democrats that if Californians farm income is ruined by Secretary of Labor William Wirtz's campaign against the use of Mexican migrant workers, it will take more than Unruh's magic and Lyndon Johnson's balm to produce a 1966 Democratic victory in the fight for governor.

The time bombs that are ticking at two ends of the continent could have their impact on 1968 as well as on 1966. For when it comes to electoral votes, California and New York are not going to be surpassed by any other states for a long, long time.

The DOCTOR SAYS

Polyps Hard to Find, Easier to Have Removed

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Many persons are found to have polyps in the rectum. These small tumors come in assorted sizes and they may have a broad base on the wall of the rectum or they may be attached to the wall by a thin stalk. The chief reason for finding and removing these polyps is to determine whether or not they are malignant. Relief of symptoms is of secondary importance because most polyps produce no symptoms, especially in the early stages. Later they may become so large as to cause some obstruction of the bowel or they may bleed.

Since persons with polyps rarely complain about them and since they are not readily found on physical examination or by X-rays, the diagnosis is made by means of the proctoscope. Most rectal polyps, like nasal polyps, are benign but there are so many variations in size and contour that when one is found it should be removed—a simple office procedure—and examined microscopically.

An exception is the polyp that has a definite stalk as this type is invariably benign and need not be removed unless it is very large. When such a polyp is completely removed it will not grow back again but there is always the possibility that a new one will form in the same general area.

If, when a microscopic examination of a polyp is made, there is evidence of cancer it is not enough to remove the polyps. Several inches of the adjacent colon should be removed without delay.

Q—I had a polyp removed from the right side of my nose. Within 10 months it grew back and I had it removed again so that I could breathe. After 2 months it returned. What causes these growths? Is there any way to prevent them?

A—Polyps in the nose are seen in persons with chronic sinusitis, allergic rhinitis and cystic fibrosis. Often there is a combination of two of these predisposing factors. Every person with recurring nasal polyps should be examined for all three factors. When they return after repeated removal the only way to prevent their recurrence is an operation that removes not only the polyps but also the entire mucous lining of the involved sinuses.

Q—I have been using paradichlorobenzene crystals in my closets to discourage the moths. Is it harmful for children to breathe these fumes?

A—The fumes from this moth repellent are irritating to the mucous membranes. Short exposure would do no harm and few children or adults would be likely to expose themselves to these fumes long enough to do any harm.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Strait-laced Republican Gov. George Romney of Michigan has accommodated slowly but surely to the personal habits of the politicians he began mixing with three years ago.

A Michigan Democrat who privately admires the governor offers this calendar to illustrate Romney's progress:

At the first big political reception of his governorship, held at his home in 1963, Romney offered neither coffee nor cigarettes to his guests.

One year later, coffee and cigarettes were on hand in ample volume.

Early this year, at his third straight reception, the governor really broke the bounds, trotting out coffee, cigarettes, cigars and hard spirits.

ROMNEY IS MUCH in demand these days on the Republican speaking circuit. So is his attractively wife Lenore, who is said to be as sharp as a computer.

The fact is, some program-makers are inviting George for events they are almost sure he can't make. When they get the expected turnaround, they blurt almost happily:

"Too bad George can't make it — send Lenore!"

FRESHMAN Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Tex., has been in Washington only about three months, but a lot of people have been having trouble pronouncing his name.

Most commonly, it comes out "De la Garcia" or "De la Garz," sometimes even "De la Gresse." Once it didn't come out at all.

Attending a luncheon with other congressmen, De la Garza was asked to take a bow with the others. When the announcer came to his name he said:

"And Congressman De la . . . De la . . . Heck! Just stand up. De la, wherever you are!"

A SENATE Appropriations subcommittee recently heard a proposal for a research laboratory as a follow-up to studies now under way to increase the whooping crane population. In the midst of the hearing, someone whispered to Republican Sen. Karl Mundt.

"The whooping crane population has increased to 50—that's 16 more than the number of Republican senators. How about a program to save the endangered Republican species in the Senate?"

BROOKS HAYS, former congressman from Arkansas and also president emeritus of the Southern Baptist Convention, tells this story:

An Internal Revenue agent phoned a minister. "Reverend," he said, "a member of your congregation has claimed a deduction of $260 to your church on his tax return. Can you substantiate this claim?"

"I don't have my records in front of me," answered the minister. "But if he didn't, he will."

The Why of Viet Nam

The Only Road to Peace

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON — The dissenting views of those Americans who want the U. S. to give in and get out of Viet Nam at all costs need to be fully and frankly answered.

Perhaps the motive of the peace - at - any - price protesters is more emotional than rational.

But the purpose of the don't-resist critics of defending South Viet Nam is exactly the same as the purpose of the must-resist supporters of defending South Viet Nam. Purpose: a world at peace. Therefore, there must be a rational choice between these two opposite courses of national policy.

One course is to seek peace by resisting aggression.

The other is to seek peace by not resisting aggression.

It is not good enough to answer those who want no resistance to aggression by explaining that the U. S. is in South Viet Nam in order to keep a promise by President Eisenhower and Kennedy. It would be fatal if the U. S. dishonored its commitment, but it is fair to ask why we made the promise in the first place.

We made the promise to help South Viet Nam defend itself because we had learned from the grim experience of Munich and Korea that aggression unresisted leads to more war — not to more peace.

Britain sought peace by trying to buy off Hitler by giving him part of Czechoslovakia. But this led to more aggression. Hitler then took all of Czechoslovakia and attacked Poland — there was no peace.

The U. S. sought peace by publicly announcing that it did not intend to defend South Korea from aggression. But this did not bring peace; it brought aggression.

President Johnson and I believe, most of the Congress and most of the country are now alive to the truth that running from aggression is not the way to peace, either for the United States or for the world.

This is the heart and center of the momentous decision which Mr. Johnson has made, that the U. S. "will not be defeated" in Viet Nam. It couldn't be put more clearly and more persuasively than when the President used these words:

"Let no one think for a moment that retreat from Viet Nam would bring an end to conflict. The battle would be renewed in one country and then another. The central lesson of our time is that the appetite of aggression is never satisfied. To withdraw from one battlefield means only to prepare for the next. We must stay in Southeast Asia—as we did in Europe—in the words of the Bible, 'Hitherto shalt thou come, but no further.'"

If it would be best if there were no aggression. It would be nice for most of the world if letting some aggression succeed would end the appetite for aggression. But where would the world be today if Britain and France and, later, Russia and the U. S. had not stopped Hitler's march to conquest? Would that have been the kind of peace people would like?

At stake in Viet Nam is not alone the independence of South Viet Nam. At stake is not alone the right of the South Vietnamese to govern by the consent of the governed. At stake is the independence of all the nations of Southeast Asia as well as India and Japan.

The objective of U. S. resistance to the aggression in Viet Nam is not only the preservation of American prestige or American power in the Pacific. It is the preservation of the independence and right of the Pacific nations to govern themselves.

President Johnson is saying—and the lessons of Munich and Korea say he is right—that a victory for aggression in Viet Nam would be a green light for instigation and support of Viet Nam-type "wars of liberation" elsewhere.

This is why the riskful path of resistance to aggression is the only road to a world at peace.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Ballet is art on stilts; toe-ture; a musical foot; a crinoline cha-cha; an amazon leaping into the arms of a willowy man. Of all the arts, ballet is the most confined. It consists of five basic foot positions, eleven arm positions and two facial expressions — a pout and a smile.

I can't stand it. That is why, when Frank Hale of the Royal Poinciana Playhouse invited me to see a ballet called Coppelius I went at once. Mr. Hale is a renegade man from an old vaudeville show. He is tall and consciously handsome with black brows and a crayon mustache to match. I am not in the habit of alienating entrepreneur, even when I can't pronounce it.

The playhouse was jammed with low necklines, black ties, and jewels. Everyone thought it was worth the price of the ticket to see Jose Ferrer in a ballet. A man who plays Toulouse-Lautrec cannot possibly dance. Still, Mr. Ferrer is known in the trade as a fine actor. He is so good, in fact, that he has been out of work in Hollywood.

"I'm a distinguished has-been," he says. "They won't put me in a picture because they think I'm an egomaniac." Maybe. However, any actor who won an Oscar for portraying Cyrano de Bergerac, and has been nominated three other times, is entitled to indulge some self-appreciation.

Coppelius, I found, is the story of a doctor who creates a mechanical doll so life-like that he falls in love with her. As in all operatic ballets, there is a tavern maid named Briggitta, who loves the august doctor and despises his doll. Got it? You can guess who gets the doctor in the finale. If you figure it was the mechanical doll, remain after school for a little heart-to-heart chat.

It was beautiful. Wonderful. An exciting evening. When the final curtain dropped, I was the only person in the Royal Poinciana who stood and whistled between his teeth. Then I asked myself why other ballets, including Swan Lake, give me the squirms whereas this one had me hoping it would go on for an additional hour.

The answer appears to be Jo Anna Kneeland and her husband, Ted. Mrs. Kneeland is a ballerina who teaches the art. Ted Kneeland is a one-time television producer who knows how to put acting and story-telling into ballet. She is dark and tiny. He is broad and blonde.

They must be good, because they persuaded Jose Ferrer to leave Los Angeles and go to Palm Beach for a one-week stand in a medium he had never tried. There was nothing great about the mounting of Coppelius. The Kneelands didn't even have an orchestra. They used taped music backstage.

Someone put this brochure on the wrong side of the big theatre curtain and Frank Hale, who is a charitable friend of the Rosarian Sisters, phoned the Mother Superior on opening day and said: "I'm in an awful jam. The brochure has to be ripped off the theatre curtain and sewed on the other side. Do you think . . . ?"

By 3 p. m., thirty nuns were sitting on the stage in their habits with the curtain in their laps. Nuns were flying, and Mr. Hale kept looking at his watch, beads of perspiration on his forehead, saying: "Sister, Baby, it's five p. m. This curtain has got to go up at 8:30. I'm only asking for one of your small miracles, Sister, Baby. . . ."

The curtain went up on time. Jose Ferrer came onstage in a black suit with black satin breeches and buckled shoes like Benjamin Franklin once wore, and when he went into his first little time-step with the ballet dancers, the applause was thunderous. He had good talent supporting him: Claudia Cravey, Paul Berne and Eileen Elliott as the tavern maid.

The prouettes, the arabesques, the mincing steps were the same as one always sees in ballet. But the accent was on telling the story, and the Kneelands permitted no dancing to slow up the action. There were dozens of little girls and boys who made the mass action onstage swirl and swing in geometric designs. One little girl, who played a mechanical toy, held a lifeless pose for eight minutes.

Afterward, sat with Frank Hale and Mr. Ferrer, and I told them that I would not retract a word that I had said against ballet as an art form. It is inhibited by the few acrobatics permitted by the human bone structure. And yet, I enjoyed the way the Kneelands staged their show.

My wife tried to apologize for me. "Forgive him," she said. "He has so little understanding of anything cultural." I stared her down and said: "Now, Sister Baby. . . ."

For Allowing Talk

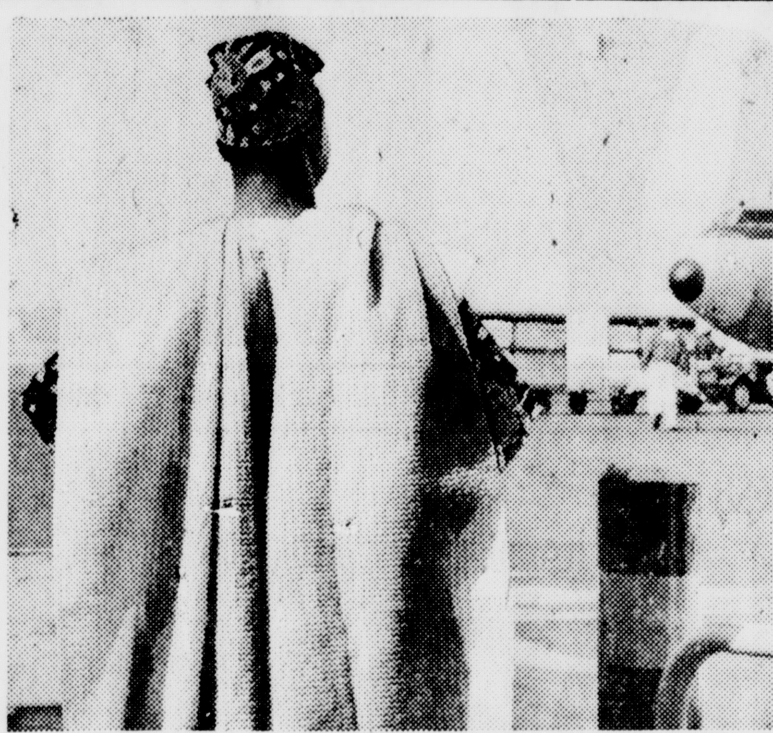

Morton L. London, chairman of the Joint New York - New Jersey Action Committee of the Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A., condemned the policy of the State University of New York that allows its student bodies to invite speakers representing organizations that advocate the overthrow of the democratic form of government to address them at campus meetings.

London referred specifically to the invitation extended to George Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi Party, by the Social Science Club at the New York State Teachers College at New Paltz to address them to-night. He said that Rockwell was being paid for his services as he was when he addressed student bodies at the State University Colleges at Brockport and Geneseo in February.

(It was announced in The Freeman Tuesday that "Capt." John Patler, editor of the American Nazi Party publication, "Storm Trooper," would appear in place of Rockwell.)

He deplored these invitations which have been extended and continue to be extended to both Rockwell and members of the Communist Party and said that he considered the issue as no longer one of academic freedom or freedom of speech. He said that "the issue here is rather one of bestowing an aura of respectability on a person who preaches the overthrow of the democratic form of government, the creation of a government based on Hitler's Nazi Germany or Lenin's Communist Russia and the annihilation of the Jews." He said that these invitations make a mockery of the very ideals for which America's armed forces fought and died.

In letters to Dr. Samuel B. Gould and Frank Moore, president and chairman of the Board of Trustees of the State University of New York respectively, he urged a reevaluation of policy.

Together again, after a year and a half, Joseph and Mrs. Bolagi were all smiles, but the twins, Beatrice, left, and Bernice appeared a little bewildered.

Peking Sees Achievement

Communist Competition Boosting Peril in Asia

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Red China's renewed threat to send volunteers to Viet Nam appears to be a result of a contest between the two big Communist powers. The contest is bringing about the Communists' own form of escalation of the peril in Southeast Asia.

The Red Chinese have seemed to be trying to force Moscow to become more and more involved in a bellicose quarrel with the United States, Peking now indicates it believes it is on the way to achieving such a goal.

The standing committee of the National People's Congress in Peking announces it has called on Chinese organizations to "make preparations" to send their own people to fight the Americans in Viet Nam.

The question is whether this is a real threat to intervene or a signal to the Communist world that Red China is more willing and more able than the Soviet Union to call the shots in Southeast Asia. The latter seems the case.

Peking — as before — still is "prepared" to send volunteers. It has not said it will send them. Several it is attached to the broadside — if "U.S. imperialism continues to escalate" the war; if the Vietnamese ask such help. Peking will be the judge of the first. As for the second, there are strong doubts that Hanoi is anxious to have a flood of Chinese volunteers.

There is strong evidence that the Moscow-Peking struggle for influence in the Communist and underdeveloped worlds is involved in Peking's threats.

As if accusing the Russians of failing in their duty to the world revolution, the Peking announcement said: "The Chinese people have always been infinitely loyal in fulfilling their proletarian internationalist obligations. They have never spared any sacrifice whatever in this respect. They always mean what they say. Both past and present struggles testify to this."

For the present, the Red Chinese are likely to leave well enough alone. In the first place, they appear to be satisfied that from their point of view the war is producing cruel attrition against South Viet Nam and equally cruel attrition on U.S. nerves and staying power.

It is extremely doubtful that Ho Chi Minh, North Viet Nam's leader, wants Chinese volunteers. Repeatedly, North Viet Nam's propaganda has pronounced the willingness of the Vietnamese to hold out 20 years, if necessary, for unification of the country on Hanoi's terms.

But the Russian voice, denouncing the Americans and promising more help to North Viet Nam, has become louder and more insistent, as if prodded by the contest with the Chinese.

When the Russians stepped up their promises and their denunciations of the United States, the Chinese apparently sought not only to match the Russians but go them one better.

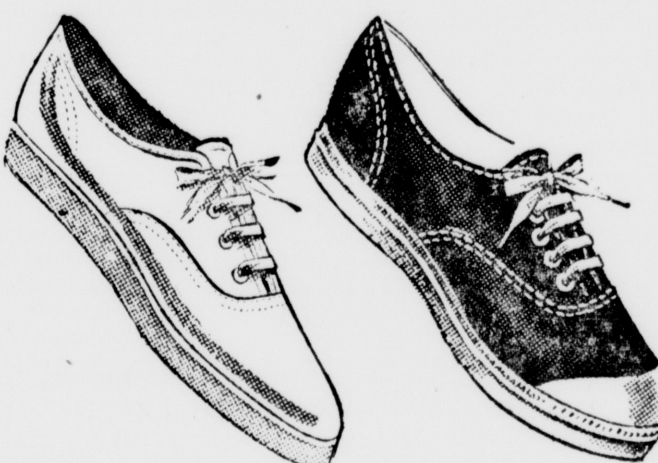

Nevertheless, Peking has been prudent about its own involvement and the prospects of a direct showdown with American power. Volunteers might be "preparing" to go to Viet Nam, but the chances are they will not be sent unless the Chinese see a possibility that the Americans can win.

At New Paltz

SUNY Condemned
By Jewish Vets
For Allowing Talk

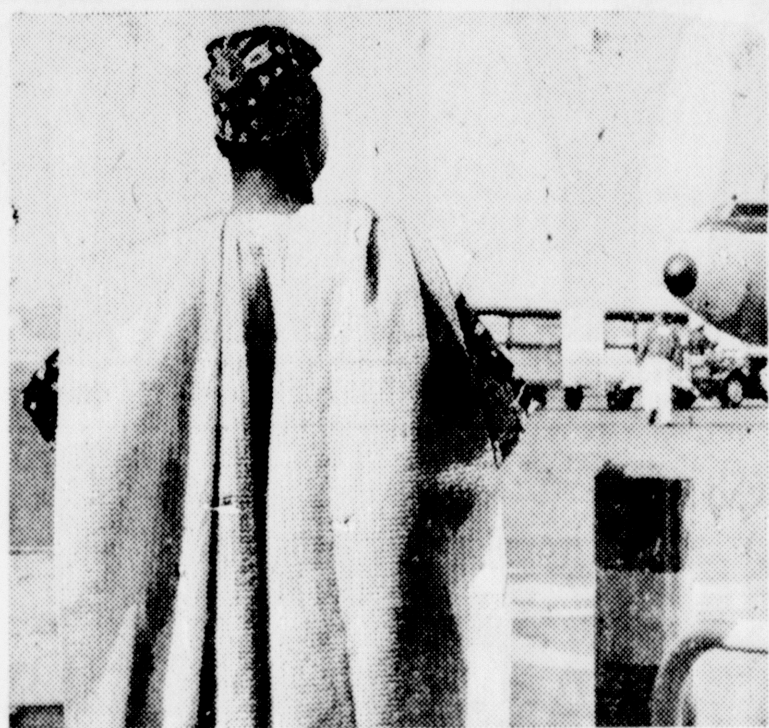

Morton L. London, chairman of the Joint New York - New Jersey Action Committee of the Jewish War Veterans of the U.S.A., condemned the policy of the State University of New York that allows its student bodies to invite speakers representing organizations that advocate the overthrow of the democratic form of government to address them at campus meetings.

London referred specifically to the invitation extended to George Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi Party, by the Social Science Club at the New York State Teachers College at New Paltz to address them tonight. He said that Rockwell was being paid for his services as he was when he addressed student bodies at the State University Colleges at Brockport and Genesee in February.

(It was announced in The Freeman Tuesday that "Capt." John Patler, editor of the American Nazi Party publication, "Storm Trooper," would appear in place of Rockwell.)

He deplored these invitations which have been extended and continue to be extended to both Rockwell and members of the Communist Party and said that he considered the issue as no longer one of academic freedom or freedom of speech. He said that "the issue here is rather one of bestowing an aura of respectability on a person who preaches the overthrow of the democratic form of government, the creation of a government based on Hitler's Nazi Germany or Lenin's Communist Russia and the annihilation of the Jews." He said that these invitations make a mockery of the very ideals for which America's armed forces fought and died.

In letters to Dr. Samuel B. Gould and Frank Moore, president and chairman of the Board of Trustees of the State University of New York respectively, he urged a reevaluation of policy.

WHERE THE HEART IS—It's a long way from Topeka, Kan., where Joseph Bolagi is an outstanding student at Washburn University, to Nigeria, where his wife and twin three-year-old daughters waited while Joseph pounded the books in America. The people of Topeka raised nearly $10,000 through People-to-People, Inc., to unite the family, but the Nigerian student still held his breath as he waited at the Kansas City Airport (top photo) as the plane carrying his family unloaded. Together again, after a year and a half, Joseph and Mrs. Bolagi were all smiles, but the twins, Beatrice, left, and Bernice appeared a little bewildered.

Progress on Meeting

(AP)—Japanese diplomats are making headway in their efforts to arrange a peace meeting between Malaysian Prime Minister Abdul Rahman and Indonesian President Sukarno.

Informed sources said Rahman is still pressing for a halt to Indonesian guerrilla activity as a precondition.

Sukarno is said to want Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal to attend.

Peking Sees Achievement

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Red China's renewed threat to send volunteers to Viet Nam appears to be a result of a contest between the two big Communist powers. The contest is bringing about the Communists' own form of escalation of the peril in Southeast Asia.

The Red Chinese have seemed to be trying to force Moscow to become more and more involved in a bellicose quarrel with the United States. Peking now indicates it believes it is on the way to achieving such a goal.

The standing committee of the National People's Congress in Peking announces it has called on Chinese organizations to "make preparations" to send their own people to fight the Americans in Viet Nam.

The question is whether this is a real threat to intervene or a signal to the Communist world that Red China is more willing and more able than the Soviet Union to call the shots in Southeast Asia. The latter seems the case.

Peking — as before — still is "prepared" to send volunteers. It has not said it will send them. Several ifs are attached to the broadside — if "U.S. imperialism continues to escalate" the war; if the Vietnamese ask such help. Peking will be the judge of the first if. As for the second, there are strong doubts that Hanoi is anxious to have a flood of Chinese volunteers.

There is strong evidence that the Moscow-Peking struggle for influence in the Communist and underdeveloped worlds is involved in Peking's threats.

As if accusing the Russians of failing in their duty to the world revolution, the Peking announcement said: "The Chinese people have always been infinitely loyal in fulfilling their proletarian internationalist obligations. They have never spared any sacrifice whatever in this respect. They always mean what they say. Both past and present struggles testify to this."

For the present, the Red Chinese are likely to leave well enough alone. In the first place, they appear to be satisfied that from their point of view the war is producing cruel attrition against South Viet Nam and equally cruel attrition on U.S. nerves and staying power.

It is extremely doubtful that Ho Chi Minh, North Viet Nam's

Feel Eldercare Bill Superior

Doctors Fighting Medicare Measure to the Final Bell

By ROBERT GOLDENSTEIN

CHICAGO (AP) — The American Medical Association, victor in all its previous battles against compulsory health insurance, plans to carry its fight to the final bell against the Johnson administration's health-care-for-the-aged bill.

"We will testify before the Senate Finance Committee against the medicare bill," Dr. E.B. Howard, assistant executive vice president of the AMA said today. "We still feel the eldercare bill is superior to this one."

The health-care bill backed by the Johnson administration passed the House earlier this month by a 313-115 vote. It is now before the Senate. The House Ways and Means Committee, which approved the medicare bill, did not consider the rival AMA-backed eldercare bill.

Dr. Donovan F. Ward, AMA president, criticized the House committee for tying in what he termed a "justified increase" in Social Security cash retirement benefits with the health-care legislation. He also criticized the committee for failing to consider the eldercare program.

He said that the health-care program would "centralize control over many aspects of the practice of medicine in a federal bureaucracy" and result in poorer health care for all American people.

"We are opposed to increasing taxes on wage earners to pay hospital bills for everyone over 65, regardless of their income," Ward said.

"We hope the Senate will proceed with caution and will conduct full and fair public hearings so that this bill can be thoroughly understood by everyone."

The AMA spent nearly $1 million earlier this year in a whirlwind public support for the eldercare program. That plan would provide hospital and medical care for persons over 65 who need financial help to meet such expenses.

The health-care bill would raise Social Security taxes, boost cash retirement benefits and provide retirement health care benefits to all eligible persons. It also would extend the present Kerr-Mills medical assistance for the needy-aged program to all indigents.

Better Rapport Between Arts And the Community Is Urged

A Woodstock engineer has made a strong appeal for a better rapport between the art community and the remainder of the Woodstock community.

Peter P. Grad, an employee of Rotron and well known in cultural circles, in a speech before the Woodstock Township Chamber of Commerce pleaded for a more sensible point of view. He said a good centralized organization is needed to create the proper climate for the arts in Woodstock and said the Chamber should take the lead in that direction.

"We in Woodstock have all the great assets that in other communities must be created and imported," said Grad. He mentioned among others the Arts Students League, the Maverick Concerts, Turnau Opera, Woodstock Festival Committee, Blue-stone Magazine as the organizations that create the atmosphere which attracts a most desirable kind of tourist to Woodstock.

Economy at Stake
The economic health of Woodstock, said Grad, is dependent upon the health of its cultural activities and continued failure to recognize it would be disastrous.

"We have one of the best Chamber concert organizations in the country," he added, "yet every year they have to struggle for funds to maintain themselves. Yet people come from all over to attend the excellent musical programs the Maverick offers so consistently."

"We have an opera that has offered a fine program year after year, yet its attendance is composed, for the larger part, of out of towners," he went on. He enumerated other cultural facilities in Woodstock with which no real liaison is maintained between them and the community. "Woodstock is the home of nationally known artists and authors, yet the community functions as if these important figures were unheard of," said Grad.

Three Revenue Sources
"There are three sources of revenue in Woodstock," Grad pointed out. "One is industry, such as Rotron and IBM, another is the tourist who comes here and spends money because of the cultural climate and activities that attract him, and the third is that Woodstockers spend in local shops for goods and services. The monies left by the tourists comprise a substantial portion of the total local revenue."

Grad admitted it was easy to analyze and criticize but also suggested specific steps that could be taken to alleviate the estrangement between the art community and the remainder of the community. He urged that a hard working, dedicated committee be created to ascertain if his criticisms are correct. If they are, he said, then certain steps should be taken to form a permanent group to continuously further cultural activities in Woodstock.

Urges High Priority
Grad strongly emphasized the point that such a program should have the highest priority over any other project the Chamber might consider. He also recommended that a paid administrator, perhaps a college professor, be engaged to coordinate the program.

If such a plan could spark greater interest by the community, Grad said, there was the likelihood of obtaining funds from the New York Arts Council, the Ford Foundation and the federal government. The latter is seriously concerned and interested in promoting such community activity.

Following Grad's remarks, Dan Gottschalk, a representative of the Woodstock Artists Association, congratulated the group for its interest in the promotion of the Woodstock art community. He offered three suggestions that might be useful in publicizing the community. The first was a recommendation offered by Peter Leaycraft, who has returned to Woodstock after a short stay away. Leaycraft recalled there is a rock from Woodstock England, in the foundation of the art gallery. He suggested there might be an exchange of art works between the two Woodstocks.

Advertising Campaign
Gottschalk also proposed that billboards be erected and advertisements describing Woodstock be placed in art magazines, Holiday magazine and the New York Times. His third proposal which seemed to create most interest was the staging of an Art Conference to which important artists and art critics in the United States and Europe would be invited to give lectures and discussions.

During the spirited discussion that followed the two speeches, Richard O. Langham, Chamber secretary, was pessimistic about the Chamber's ability to undertake such an ambitious program. He also reluctantly admitted there might be some distrust of businessmen engaging in a program to aid the arts.

Grad agreed that part of what Langham said had merit but reaffirmed his position that the Chamber is the organization to take on the task. Langham countered with the important fact that the Chamber does not have the money to undertake the project. He noted that there is at present a Woodstock Festival Committee which for the past year at least, he said, had not been too active.

Grad urged revitalization of the committee and pledged the sum of $250 toward such an eventuality.

Chamber president Oscar Vandendoren promised that the suggestions offered by the speaker would be given thorough study at the next directors' meeting and the general meeting in May.

Christian Science Theme Is: Probation

The Christian's approach to final victory over death will be a central theme at all Christian Science churches this Sunday. The subject is "Probation After Death." One of the Bible selections to be read is from Galatians: "He that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."

Also included in the Lesson-Sermon will be these lines from the denominational textbook: "Emerge gently from matter into Spirit. Think not to thwart the spiritual ultimate of all things, but come naturally into Spirit through better health and morals and as the result of spiritual growth. Not death, but the understanding of Life, makes man immortal" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, p. 485).

Sunday services in Woodstock are held at 11 a. m.

Hudson Council Is Urged to Push Alleyway Cleanup

Hudson's Common Council has been called upon by Mayor Samuel T. Wheeler to take immediate action to clamp down on city property owners who allow deplorable conditions to exist in the city's alleyways.

Mayor Wheeler urged the Council to adopt immediately "no holds barred" legislation.

His plea to the Council came four days after a disastrous fire swept through several commercial-apartment buildings on Warren Street. The mayor said in a letter to the Council that an investigation of the city's costliest fire in years not only was financially costly, but it may ultimately have an economic effect on the downtown economy.

Mayor Wheeler said that in his opinion, the condition of sheds, garages and other frame structures in the alleys of Hudson is one that should be described as deplorable. "It borders on criminal for these conditions to be permitted to exist," the mayor said.

Fishkill to Get Eatery and Motel

Construction of a Holiday Inn and Restaurant, with a 100-unit motel, restaurant with a 160 capacity, coffee shop and cocktail lounge, is planned at Merritt Industrial Park, Fishkill, it was made known Tuesday by Brooklands and Co., a southern Dutchess County corporation.

Cost of the project is estimated in excess of $1 million. The inn and restaurant, with swimming pools and parking facilities for 400 cars will occupy about five acres of the 276-acre park situated at Routes 9 and 84, according to James Villa, a member of the corporation.

Wappingers Will Vote May 26th On School Plans

Wappingers Central School District voters will go to the polls May 26 to vote on a $3-200,000 school construction referendum. They will have the opportunity to choose between 28-pupil-a-room or a 30-pupil-a-room classrooms. School district officials said that by supporting only Proposition 1 on the ballot, the present setup of 30-pupil classrooms can be continued. The proposition calls for construction of two schools and the purchase of two school sites at a cost of approximately $2,160,488. The district can reduce the number of pupils per classroom to 28, if propositions 2 and 3 are approved at approximately $1,077,000. A referendum for a total of $3,200,000, with each school listed separately, was defeated on March 10.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

Better Rapport Between Arts And the Community Is Urged

A Woodstock engineer has made a strong appeal for a better rapport between the art community and the remainder of the Woodstock community.

Peter P. Grad, an employee of Rotron and well known in cultural circles, in a speech before the Woodstock Township Chamber of Commerce pleaded for a more sensible point of view. He said a good centralized organization is needed to create the proper climate for the arts in Woodstock and said the Chamber should take the lead in that direction.

"We in Woodstock have all the great assets that in other communities must be created and imported," said Grad. He mentioned among others the Arts Students League, the Maverick Concerts, Turnau Opera, Woodstock Festival Committee, Blue-stone Magazine as the organizations that create the atmosphere which attracts a most desirable kind of tourist to Woodstock.

Economy at Stake

The economic health of Woodstock, said Grad, is dependent upon the health of its cultural activities and continued failure to recognize it would be disastrous.

"We have one of the best Chamber concert organizations in the country," he added, "yet every year they have to struggle for funds to 'maintain themselves.' Yet people come from all over to attend the excellent musical programs the Maverick offers so consistently."

"We have an opera that has offered a fine program year after year, yet its attendance is composed, for the larger part, of out of towners," he went on. He enumerated other cultural facilities in Woodstock with which no real liaison is maintained between them and the community.

"Woodstock is the home of nationally known artists and authors, yet the community functions as if these important figures were unheard of," said Grad.

Three Revenue Sources

"There are three sources of revenue in Woodstock," Grad pointed out. "One is industry, such as Rotron and IBM, another is the tourist who comes here and spends money because of the cultural climate and activities that attract him, and the third is that Woodstockers spend in local shops for goods and services. The monies left by the tourists comprise a substantial portion of the total local revenue."

Grad admitted it was easy to analyze and criticize but also suggested specific steps that could be taken to alleviate the estrangement between the art community and the remainder of the community. He urged that a hard working, dedicated committee be created to ascertain if his criticisms are correct. If they are, he said, then certain steps should be taken to form a permanent group to continuously further cultural activities in Woodstock.

Urges High Priority

Grad strongly emphasized the point that such a program should have the highest priority over any other project the Chamber might consider. He also recommended that a paid administrator, perhaps a college professor, be engaged to coordinate the program.

If such a plan could spark greater interest by the community, Grad said, there was the likelihood of obtaining funds from the New York Arts Council, the Ford Foundation and the federal government. The latter is seriously concerned and interested in promoting such community activity.

Following Grad's remarks, Dan Gottschalk, a representative of the Woodstock Artists Association, congratulated the group for its interest in the promotion of the Woodstock art community. He offered three suggestions that might be useful in publicizing the community. The first was a recommendation offered by Peter Leaycraft, who has returned to Woodstock after a short stay away. Leaycraft recalled there is a rock from Woodstock England, in the foundation of the art gallery. He suggested there might be an exchange of art works between the two Woodstocks.

Advertising Campaign

Gottschalk also proposed that billboards be erected and advertisements describing Woodstock be placed in art magazines, Holiday magazine, and the New York Times. His third proposal which seemed to create most interest was the staging of an Art Conference to which important artists and art critics in the United States and Europe would be invited to give lectures and discussions.

During the spirited discussion that followed the two speeches, Richard O. Langham, Chamber secretary, was pessimistic about the Chamber's ability to undertake such an ambitious program. He also reluctantly admitted there might be some distrust of businessmen engaging in a program to aid the arts.

Grad agreed that part of what Langham said had merit but reaffirmed his position that the Chamber is the organization to take on the task. Langham countered with the important fact that the Chamber does not have the money to undertake the project. He noted that there is at present a Woodstock Festival Committee which for the past year at least, he said, had not been too active.

Grad urged revitalization of the committee and pledged the sum of $250 toward such an eventuality.

Chamber president Oscar Vandendoren promised that the suggestions offered by the speakers would be given thorough study at the next directors' meeting and the general meeting in May.

Christian Science

Theme Is: Probation

The Christian's approach to final victory over death will be a central theme at all Christian Science churches this Sunday. The subject is "Probation After Death." One of the Bible selections to be read is from Galatians: "He that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."

Also included in the Lesson-Sermon will be these lines from the denominational textbook: "Emerge gently from matter into Spirit. Think not to thwart the spiritual ultimate of all things, but come naturally into Spirit through better health and morals and as the result of spiritual growth. Not death, but the understanding of Life, makes man immortal" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, p. 183).

Sunday services in Woodstock are held at 11 a. m.

Hudson Council Is Urged to Push Alleyway Cleanup

Hudson's Common Council has been called upon by Mayor Samuel T. Wheeler to take immediate action to clamp down on city property owners who allow deplorable conditions to exist in the city's alleyways.

Mayor Wheeler urged the Council to adopt immediately "no holds barred" legislation.

His plea to the Council came four days after a disastrous fire swept through several commercial-apartment buildings on Warren Street. The mayor said in a letter to the Council that an investigation of the city's costliest fire in years not only was financially costly, but it may ultimately have an economic effect on the downtown economy.

Mayor Wheeler said that in his opinion, the condition of sheds, garages and other frame structures in the alleys of Hudson is one that should be described as deplorable. "It borders on criminal for these conditions to be permitted to exist," the mayor said.

Dope Peddler Complains

Narcotics Chief, Vice-Squad Men Charged With Taking Bribe

MIAMI, Fla., (AP) — The chief federal narcotics agent in Miami and two of the city's police vice-squad officers have been charged with accepting a bribe from a dope peddler who complained he was paying $2,000 a month in protection money.

The arrests were made Tuesday by city police and a team of Federal Narcotics Bureau agents at the home of an admitted narcotics operator after the trio was said to have accepted $130 in marked money.

The three were charged with accepting a bribe, a felony under Florida law, and released on their personal bond. They are Eugene J. Marshall, 39, head of the U.S. Narcotics Bureau for southeastern Florida; police Sgt. Frank Fountain, 39, second in command of the city's vice squad; and his assistant, Roosevelt Tremble, 34, a Negro plainclothes detective.

Police Chief Walter Headley said the arrests climaxed a week of investigation. It started when the dope peddler complained to police about the protection money he said he was forced to pay.

Headley quoted the informer as saying he wanted "to quit, but they wouldn't let me."

The police chief declined to disclose the informer's name or details of the investigation, saying they would come out in court.

A source close to the investigation said the informer was a known dope peddler doing a round a $10,000-per-month business mainly in the Cuban and Negro districts of Miami and had an extensive police record.

The source said the informer went to the police department's internal security squad last Tuesday and told his story.

The subsequent investigation led to the arrests at the informer's home by federal narcotics agents and police officers unknown to the trio.

Marshall, a career officer in the Federal Narcotics Bureau came to Miami in 1958 when it was a one-man office. When Fidel Castro took over Cuba and refugees started pouring into Miami, the office was expanded and Marshall was put in charge.

Narcotics Chief, Vice-Squad Men Charged With Taking Bribe

MIAMI, Fla., (AP) — The chief federal narcotics agent in Miami and two of the city's police vice-squad officers have been charged with accepting a bribe from a dope peddler who complained he was paying $2,000 a month in protection money.

The arrests were made Tuesday by city police and a team of Federal Narcotics Bureau agents at the home of an admitted narcotics operator after the trio was said to have accepted $130 in marked money.

The three were charged with accepting a bribe, a felony under Florida law, and released on their personal bond. They are Eugene J. Marshall, 39, head of the U.S. Narcotics Bureau for southeastern Florida; police Sgt. Frank Fountain, 39, second in command of the city's vice squad; and his assistant, Roosevelt Tremble, 34, a Negro plainclothes detective.

Police Chief Walter Headley said the arrests climaxed a week of investigation. It started when the dope peddler complained to police about the protection money he said he was forced to pay.

Headley quoted the informer as saying he wanted "to quit, but they wouldn't let me." The police chief declined to disclose the informer's name or details of the investigation, saying they would come out in court.

A source close to the investigation said the informer was a known dope peddler — doing around a $10,000-per-month business mainly in the Cuban and Negro districts of Miami — and had an extensive police record.

The source said the informer went to the police department's internal security squad last Tuesday and told his story. The subsequent investigation led to the arrests at the informer's home by federal narcotics agents and police officers unknown to the trio.

Marshall, a career officer in the Federal Narcotics Bureau came to Miami in 1958 when it was a one-man office. When Fidel Castro took over Cuba and refugees started pouring into Miami, the office was expanded and Marshall was put in charge.

Washington Gets Early Start On 'War on Poverty' Programs

By CARL LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — Thanks to a head start over the rest of the country, Washington's anti-poverty drive is in high gear. It could be a preview of what happens nationally.

Even before Congress approved what President Johnson describes as a "war on poverty," programs were under way here to combat illiteracy, delinquency and unemployment.

One of the program's major concepts, the neighborhood youth corps program to reduce school dropouts and improve economic opportunities for teenagers, first was tried out here on a pilot basis last year.

When a congressional task force checked recently into the local effort, its chairman, Rep. Hugh L. Carey, D-N.Y., said: "I could not be more delighted, nor surprised, than I was to see how far you've gone. I just hope as we go around the country, we see as many good evidences of good progress."

$5 Million Spent
Since the Office of Economic Opportunity began to dispense anti-poverty grants last November, it has poured almost $5 million into programs here.

Besides these funds, the United Planning Organization which is coordinating Washington's anti-poverty programs, has received more than $3 million from other sources with another $5 million on the way.

This includes two grants from the Ford Foundation, totaling $3.26 million, to reduce poverty, dependency and delinquency; and $5 million voted by Congress last year.

A large portion of this money is being used in the capital's Cardozo district — a predominantly Negro slum area with high unemployment and illiteracy.

An experimental model school program is under way in Cardozo's 14 elementary and three junior high schools, supported by a $904,368 grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity and other grants which bring the total available to $1.1 million.

6,200 Participate
Paul P. Cooke, director of the model school division, estimates that 6,200 of the 18,000 in Cardozo schools are participating in some aspects of the program. But he expressed concern that

Moro Opens 2nd Round of Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Italian Premier Aldo Moro planned a second round of conferences today with top U.S. officials.

Moro's first scheduled meeting was with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, just back from a trip to Hawaii to map U.S. plans for the war in Viet Nam.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was to honor Moro at a luncheon. Then the 48-year-old premier was to hold a second White House talk with President Johnson before issuance of a joint U.S.-Italian communique.

Tuesday Johnson welcomed Moro to the White House and the two held a morning conference. After the premier attended a luncheon given by Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, he returned to the executive mansion at Johnson's invitation and sat in on a meeting of the President's Cabinet.

Moro and Rusk conferred for almost two hours during the afternoon.

Tuesday night Johnson honored Moro at a White House dinner. Many of the 134 guests were of Italian descent. The President said he is "deeply gratified" for Italian support of U.S. policy in Southeast Asia. Moro will return the honors tonight, giving a reception in the Johnson's honor at the Italian Embassy.

The great auk, extinct since 1844, was a large flightless sea bird, slightly smaller than a tame goose. Its body was 30 inches long, its wings very short. The wings were used for underwater swimming. It was native to Iceland, the Faerøe Islands and Newfoundland. It was slaughtered for food in such great numbers that the bird eventually became extinct. Today it exists only in museums.

too few children living in what he called "the hard core of poverty" — families on welfare or with incomes under $3,000 a year — were participating.

The Cardozo district also is being helped by the neighborhood development program in which some people are being used to teach their neighbors how to spend their money and how to use community health education and cultural facilities.

A suit designed to cut off funds to the United Planning Organization until more people participate in its decision-making is pending in U.S. District Court. It was filed by Julius Hobson, head of a civil rights group called Associated Community Teams.

To Stop Dropouts
The largest grants in the Washington program so far have gone for the neighborhood youth corps.

The first grant of $2.25 million was to provide part-time jobs with government, school and social agencies for 1,500 boys and 1,754 girls so they can afford to stay in school.

A second grant of $800,000 will finance a youth opportunity center and a network of neighborhood job planning centers to provide youths 16 to 21 with testing, counseling and job referral services.

Other Programs
These other programs are either under way or on the planning boards:

—A job training program for unemployed heads of households. An enrollment of 700 is planned for launching of the program this summer.

—A program to teach adolescent school dropouts and potential dropouts to read. A grant of $151,000 is expected to help 500 persons from 15 to 22 with hopes some will later become teachers.

—An adult education program to increase chances for jobs.

—Development of family foster homes in Cardozo and other areas.

—Improved legal services for the poor.

—Emergency assistance to provide newcomers to Washington with food, shelter, employment opportunities and bus fare to seek jobs.

Although there has been some criticism of salaries of top officials, they generally are in line with those of other top city officials.

Steel Factions Resume Today

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The basic steel industry and the United Steelworkers — reported still far apart — resume contract bargaining today under the pressure of an upcoming union meeting that could produce some decisive action.

Informed sources said the industry rejected Tuesday as too costly a union offer to extend the present contract beyond the May 1 deadline for an 18-cent-an-hour pay hike. The union last week turned down an industry offer of a five-cent hourly raise.

"The disagreement is of such magnitude the parties aren't even in speaking distance of each other," said a source close to the negotiations.

Lending urgency to today's negotiations is a meeting Thursday of the USW's wage policy committee, which has the final word on contract matters. The committee can authorize a strike or an extension of the present pact.

The union several times has rejected industry proposals for an extension of the bargaining — suspended for two months because of the union's still unsettled presidential election.

The union is said to want an increase of about 14 cents an hour in wages or benefits plus 4 cents an hour in "catch up" money, which the USW feels steelworkers missed in the last two contracts.

Steelworkers average about $4.40 an hour in wages and fringe benefits.

Post 150 Protests ANP Talk at Paltz

Telegrams of protest were dispatched late Tuesday night by Kingston Post, 150, American Legion, following a unanimous vote condemning the practice of the State Teachers College, New Paltz, in scheduling a talk by a representative of the American Nazi Party.

The communications were sent to Gov. Nelson Rockefeller, Dr. William Haggerty, president of State Teachers College, New Paltz, and Dr. James E. Allen Jr., State Education Department in Albany.

The protests, according to Commander Albert O. Sonnenberg, were based on the "indiscreet choice of glorifying the head of a subversive organization when the same instruction could be supplied by a respected college professor, of which there are numerous ones available, or from a respected converted ex-Nazi layman."

Kingston Post's action last night was in connection with the scheduling of George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the ANP, to appear as lecturer in the first of a series of "Modern Political Ideologies" scheduled for tonight at 8 o'clock at the college.

Meanwhile, it was announced in The Freeman yesterday that

"Capt." John Patler, editor of the ANP publication, "Storm Trooper," would appear in place of Rockwell.

Other matters discussed at the Legion Home included:

Plans for an installation dinner on Saturday, June 19, of new officers to be elected earlier in June. Commander Sonnenberg named a committee of Joseph Mercier, Everett Emmick, Edward Scully and Joseph Santorski to arrange plans.

Progress reports were given by Charles M. King, co-chairman of the May 1 annual dance; John Kuehn, patron ticket chairman; Raymond W. West, financial chairman and Michael Milano, booster chairman.

This year's dance is scheduled for the new Town of Esopus Post Hall in Port Jervis. Tickets may be obtained from any member of Kingston Post for this event.

Last night's meeting was adjourned out of respect to Albert G. Gruner, Post athletic officer.

By CARL LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thanks to a head start over the rest of the country, Washington's anti-poverty drive is in high gear. It could be a preview of what happens nationally.

Even before Congress approved what President Johnson describes as a "war on poverty," programs were under way here to combat illiteracy, delinquency and unemployment.

One of the program's major concepts, the neighborhood youth corps program to reduce school dropouts and improve economic opportunities for teenagers, first was tried out here on a pilot basis last year.

When a congressional task force checked recently into the local effort, its chairman, Rep. Hugh L. Carey, D-N.Y., said: "I could not be more delighted, nor surprised, than I was to see how far you've come. I just hope as we go around the country, we see as many good evidences of good progress."

$5 Million Spent

Since the Office of Economic Opportunity began to dispense anti-poverty grants last November, it has poured almost $5 million into programs here. Besides these funds, the United Planning Organization which is coordinating Washington's anti-poverty programs, has received more than $3 million from other sources with another $5 million on the way.

This includes two grants from the Ford Foundation, totaling $3.36 million, to reduce poverty, dependency and delinquency; and $5 million voted by Congress last year.

A large portion of this money is being used in the capital's Cardozo district — a predominantly Negro slum area with high unemployment and illiteracy.

An experimental model school program is under way in Cardozo's 14 elementary and three junior high schools, supported by a $904,368 grant from the Office of Economic Opportunity and other grants which bring the total available to $1.1 million.

6,200 Participate

Paul P. Cooke, director of the model school division, estimates that 6,200 of the 18,000 in Cardozo schools are participating in some aspects of the program.

But he expressed concern that

Moro Opens 2nd Round of Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Italian Premier Aldo Moro planned a second round of conferences today with top U.S. officials.

Moro's first scheduled meeting was with Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, just back from a trip to Hawaii to map U.S. plans for the war in Viet Nam.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk was to honor Moro at a luncheon. Then the 48-year-old premier was to hold a second White House talk with President Johnson before issuance of a joint U.S.-Italian communiqué.

Tuesday Johnson welcomed Moro to the White House and the two held a morning conference. After the premier attended a luncheon given by Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler, he returned to the executive mansion at Johnson's invitation and sat in on a meeting of the President's Cabinet.

Moro and Rusk conferred for almost two hours during the afternoon.

Tuesday night Johnson honored Moro at a White House dinner. Many of the 134 guests were of Italian descent. The President said he is "deeply gratified" for Italian support of U.S. policy in Southeast Asia.

Moro will return the honors tonight, giving a reception in the Johnson's honor at the Italian Embassy.

Matter of Fact

The great auk, extinct since 1844, was a large flightless sea bird, slightly smaller than a tame goose. Its body was 30 inches long, its wings very short. The wings were used for underwater swimming. It was native to Iceland, the Faerø Islands and Newfoundland. It was slaughtered for food in such great numbers that the bird eventually became extinct. Today it exists only in museums.

10 Nations Pledge Billion

Indian Accusation Is That U. S. Tries to Buy Friends

By SPENCER DAVIS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten nations including the United States today pledge $1 billion to India's economic development, although U.S.-Indian relations have plummeted to sub-freezing levels.

Indian diplomatic sources said that Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri will be unable to come to the United States next fall and will defer the visit to Washington until it is convenient for him to do so.

This was the delayed reaction to President Johnson's sudden request last Thursday that Shastri and Pakistan President Mohammed Ayub Khan defer their visits to this country until next fall because Johnson was so occupied with congressional affairs and the problems of Viet Nam.

Indian officials have been highly critical of Johnson's Viet Nam policies. "President Johnson apparently has had enough of foreigners telling him how to run the world," one diplomat remarked caustically. "The President, it seems, cannot tolerate foreign chiefs of state that he cannot handle like members of the Senate and the House of Representatives."

The Indian reaction was particularly irate because Indians felt that Johnson had asked Shastri not to come because he had been angered by actions of Ayub and felt he would have to treat the leaders of both rival nations equally.

Memorial Service Is Held for School Head

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP)—A memorial service was held in the American Protestant Church here Tuesday for Henry Aronson, principal of the American High School in the Hague.

He was drowned at Tel Aviv last week while touring Greece and Israel. The American colony in this Dutch government capital attended the rites for Aronson. His body was cremated in Tel Aviv. He is survived by his widow, Maria, two children, Lori, 13, and Thomas, 10; a brother Earl, who is state editor for the Associated Press in Albany, N.Y.; another brother and a sister.

Henry Aronson was born in Boston. He was a graduate of Harvard University and had taught in the Florham Park School District of New Jersey.

No-Man's Land

The Rotunda of the United States Capitol was a no-man's land in early days, because neither House nor Senate would assume responsibility for it, the National Geographic says.

Closely held intelligence reports indicated that there was more to the Chinese Communist-Pakistan relationship than had been believed by the United States. Part of this was said to have been disclosed in Pakistan's efforts on behalf of Peking in wooing Turkey to join with Pakistan in better relations toward Communist China.

Also, there were reports that Pakistan had created incidents along its border with India in order to tell Johnson that this was the result of the American program of military assistance to India.

According to the diplomatic version the White House made a sudden decision to defer both visits, catching Indians and Pakistanis by complete surprise.

The U.S. share of the aid is $45 million for the fourth year of the five-year economic program.

Other nations participating in the so-called "aid India club" are Britain, France, West Germany, Italy, Japan, Belgium, the Netherlands, Austria and Canada.

Medic Is Helping Tribesmen Fight Disease in Viet

LONG CHIN, South Viet Nam (AP) — An American Special Forces medic is helping primitive Montagnard tribesmen in this highland village fight death and disease.

No matter what the future holds for war-torn Viet Nam, he believes the contribution he and other Special Forces medics are making will be something lasting.

S. Sgt. Donald Brady of Lancaster, Pa., operates with 19 other medics and five nurses in an effort to adapt modern medical techniques to the backward conditions of the highlanders. Despite the danger of ambush by the Communist Viet Cong, they rove the Montagnard villages to comfort the dying and sick.

The Montagnards, who blame diseases they do not understand on the spirits, do understand the death of war. Some villagers have lost lives or limbs in fighting that has held this country in terror for 20 years.

They have taken protection against shelling or bombing by building underground bunkers below their still-supported huts.

On a typical visit to Long Chin, Brady may treat a gunshot wound or cases of dysentery, skin ulcers and beri beri. The Montagnards submit passively to Brady's treatment.

As a precaution against ambush, Brady carries an automatic weapon on his calls. In addition, special patrols go with the medics.

Keating to Head Organization on Population Study

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Kenneth B. Keating says his first major task since losing office last November will be to head a private organization's fight against population problems.

At a news conference Tuesday, the 64-year-old New York Republican announced he had accepted the chairmanship of the Population Crisis Committee.

The committee, he said, was formed by private citizens and will be financed by "philanthropists and persons interested in the program." Keating declined to divulge his salary.

The main work of the organization, he explained, will be to seek an active government program to meet world population problems.

Keating added that some organizations have been reluctant to press for government action in solving population problems for fear of losing tax exempt status.

His committee, however, will not be tax exempt.

Keating lost his bid for reelection to Democrat Robert F. Kennedy. He has re-entered private law practice, is Washington counsel for his old Rochester, N.Y., firm and is a member of a new GOP committee called Republicans for Progress.

The former Senator said he was asked to take the population post by Hugh Moore, board chairman of the Dixie Cup Corp. who will be treasurer of the new organization.

Other backers are Cass Canfield, chairman of the executive committee of Harper & Row Publishing Co., and William H. Draper Jr., investment banker and board chairman of Combustion Engineering Inc.

Keating announced that Mrs. Phyllis Plotrow, his legislative assistant while he was a senator, will be executive director of the committee, which will have headquarters in Washington.

He Was in Car Trunk — To Find Noises

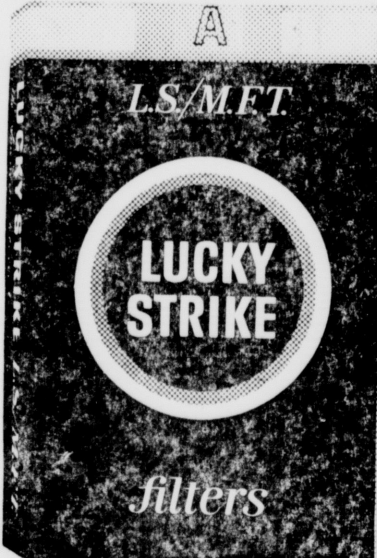

UTICA, N.Y. (AP) — Unlike the monkey maxim, this was a case of speaking, seeing and hearing "evil."

The speaking came Tuesday from a woman who reported that four men had dumped a fifth man into the trunk of their automobile and driven off.

The seeing came from sheriff's men, state troopers and other police who nabbed the men at a roadblock.

The hearing came from the fellow in the trunk — put there to find the source of a bothersome noise.

An Indian source said the United States apparently thinks that if it gives $1 billion in assistance, it is able to buy friendship, but this is not the case.

The diplomatic explanation for President Johnson's move last week to cancel the Ayub visit was reconstructed this way:

Little Tommy had been forbidden to swim in the river, owing to danger. One day he came home with unmistakable signs of having been in the water. His mother scolded him severely. Tommy — But I was tempted so badly. Mother — That's all very well. But how'd you come to have your bathing suit with you? Tommy paused, then said: Tommy — Well, nother, I took my bathing suit with me thinking I might be tempted.

Two men were working on the White House lawn in Washington. Each had a small trash can on rollers, and was walking about picking up bits of paper with a pointed stick. One spied a piece and was about to stab it, a sudden gust of wind came up and blew the paper into the White House through an open window.

Franklin the man rushed inside the building. He returned shortly afterward, and said to his companion. Man — I was too late. He had already signed it.

Five secrets of happiness: Money, money, money, money, money.

A plane coming for a landing at a small airport thumped the runway, bounced high, smacked the airstrip again and bounced a second time. After the third bounce it finally stayed down. Having taxied to the hanger, the pilot radioed the control tower for the time of his landing to enter in the log. A quiet voice replied: "Which one, sir?"

'Let Me Die,' Mother's Plea, Strangles Four

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Police said today they have been unable to determine a reason for the strangling Tuesday of the four children of a woman whose husband was away much of the time on business trips.

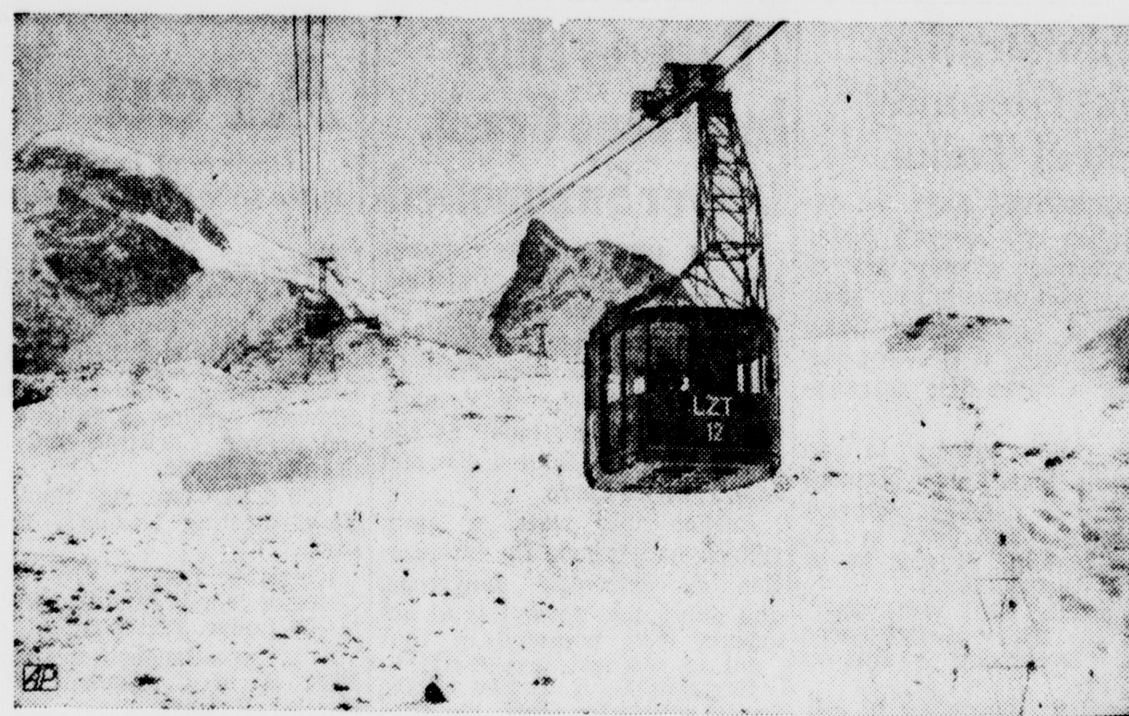

The mother, Deanna Hanbey, 28, was in Memorial Hospital with her wrists and heels slashed. Police said she begged a hospital aide to "let her die." She was placed under constant guard.

Police Capt. Floyd Zellers said it was murder and attempted suicide.

The four bodies were found on their smoldering mattresses in the Hanbey home after neighbors reported smoke was coming from it. Mrs. Hanbey was found on a bedroom floor. She had a necktie knotted around her neck in addition to the cuts.

The father and husband, Edward Hanbey, was away on a business trip. He is an auditor.

Police said three of the children were strangled with a woman's stocking and the fourth with a necktie.

Way to Get Rid Of Fog Is Told By United Lines

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A commercial airline says there is a way to get through the winter fogs which tie up many airports.

For this you need a small plane with a hole in it and some ground-dry ice.

When fog stops the airliners, up goes the small plane. Once over the airport, the pilot begins shoving the dry-ice pellets through a hole in the side or bottom of the plane.

United Air Lines says that more than 80 per cent of the time a corridor opens in the fog, big enough to allow liners to land and take off. Sometimes the corridor lasts all day.

It took nearly 20 years to convince United Air Lines officials. Last winter United tried it 74 times at 6 airports and it worked 60 times. Some 5,500 passengers got through, including 2,000 on rival lines.

The procedure has been used at Medford, Ore., for 15 years.

United has used it successfully on a small scale for two winters. The airline thinks it should be extended to at least 12

Given 30 Days

Charged with petit larceny and public intoxication, William Maust, 41, of 1 Church Street, Ellenville, pleaded guilty before Police Justice Frank Decker and was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail on both charges. Police said Maust was accused of stealing a set of silverware from the F. W. Woolworth Co. Store. The articles were worth $5, the manager said.

Entry Deadline Friday

Entries for the Town of Ulster Library art show must be submitted by Friday at 4 p. m. it was announced today. The art show is scheduled in the library's temporary headquarters, Chambers School, on May 1 and 2. Nicholas Valenzano or Mrs. O. L. Sande may be contacted for details.

other airports, including Washington, Detroit and Chicago. It will not work every place. Los Angeles, for example, probably can expect no fog relief.

Northern airports will benefit because their fog occurs at colder temperatures.

What makes it work is the dry ice, which is frozen carbon dioxide. It is 110 degrees below zero Fahrenheit when solidified. United officials say it works best when the fog occurs at temperatures between 24 and 28 degrees. This is called super-cooled fog.

This is what they believe happens:

When dry ice pellets are released, they begin to turn to gas. This takes heat from the air. In this intense cooling, moisture begins to collect into ice particles and to descend. They pick up other particles and eventually turn into a light snow. No fog remains.

A General Electric scientist in Massachusetts discovered the effect in a glass chamber in 1946.

Many Expected to Hear State CR Head at Temple

Friday night's services at Temple Emanuel are expected to draw a large turnout of Kingstons of all races and creeds to hear an eyewitness account of the Selma to Montgomery voting rights march by Alexander Aldrich, chairman of the Governor's Special Cabinet Committee on Civil Rights.

'Let Me Die,' Mother's Plea, Strangles Four

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Police said today they have been unable to determine a reason for the strangling Tuesday of the four children of a woman whose husband was away much of the time on business trips.

The mother, Deanna Hanbey, 28, was in Memorial Hospital with her wrists and heels slashed. Police said she begged a hospital aide to "let her die." She was placed under constant guard.

Police Capt. Floyd Zellers said it was murder and attempted suicide.

The four bodies were found on their smoldering mattresses in the Hanbey home after neighbors reported smoke was coming from it. Mrs. Hanbey was found on a bedroom floor. She had a necktie knotted about her neck in addition to the cuts.

The father and husband, Edward Hanbey, was away on a business trip. He is an auditor.

Police said three of the children were strangled with a woman's stocking and the fourth with a necktie.

Winthrop W. Aldrich, was invited to speak from the pulpit of Temple Emanuel by Rabbi Herbert L. Bloom who had heard of Aldrich's participation in the full 50-mile march from Selma.

An attorney, he has been in public service since 1956 when he became associated with the New York City Police Department rising to deputy police commissioner in charge of the youth program and president of the Police Athletic League.

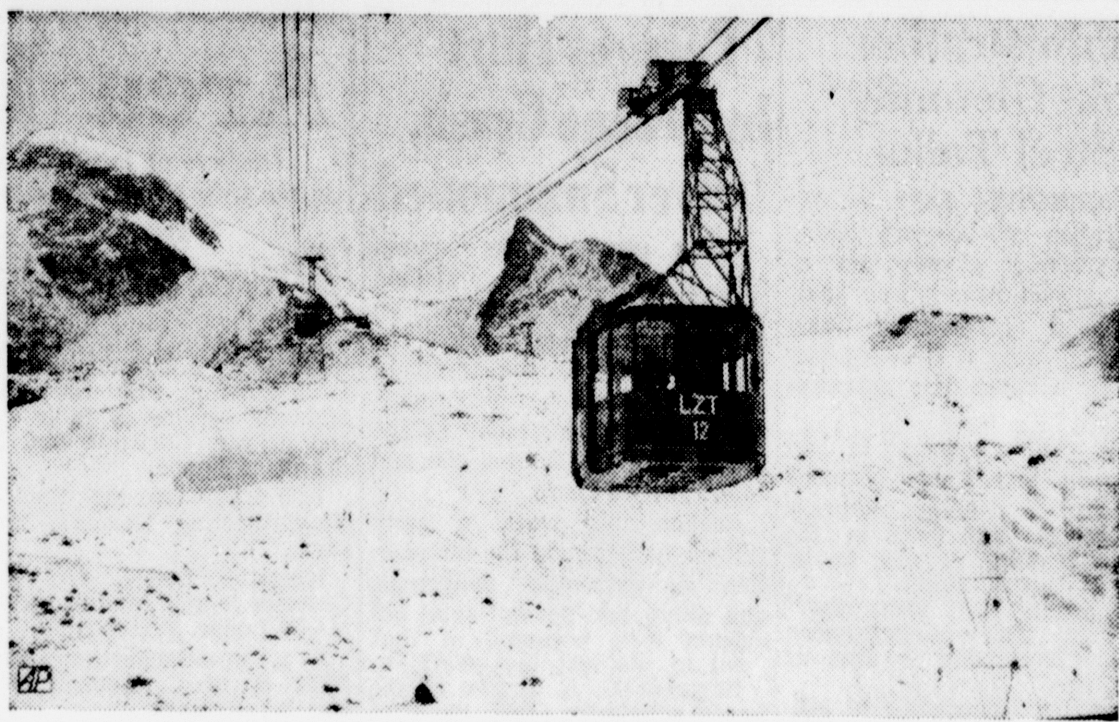

A resident of Chatham Center in Columbia County, Aldrich has served as executive assistant to the Governor since 1960. In the state government he has served as the director of the Division for Youth, as chairman of the New York State Council on Youth, president of Youth Research Inc., and as a member of the statewide Conference on Drug Addiction.

In June of 1963 he was appointed chairman of the Special Cabinet Committee on Civil Rights and in September of 1964 as chairman of a Special Cabinet Committee to coordinate the Federal Economic Opportunity Program.

Aldrich was born in New York City, studied at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, earned a BA degree in American history at Harvard College, an LLB degree at Harvard Law School, and a Master's degree in Public Administration at New York University.

Active in civic and community work in the Mid-Hudson region, he is chairman of the Mid-Hudson Institute for Citizenship Education, a program sponsored by the Taft Foundation geared to bring political education into local school curriculum. He is also chairman of Olana Preservation Inc., a corporation formed to preserve the estate of Frederick Church one of the renowned artists of the Mid-Hudson region.

Aldrich is a trustee of Marist College in Poughkeepsie.

Way to Get Rid Of Fog Is Told By United Lines

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A commercial airline says there is a way to get through the winter fogs which tie up many airports.

For this you need a small plane with a hole in it and some ground-up dry ice.

When fog stops the airliners, up goes the small plane. Once over the airport, the pilot begins shoving the dry-ice pellets through a hole in the side or bottom of the plane.

United Air Lines says that more than 80 per cent of the time a corridor opens in the fog, big enough to allow liners to land and take off. Sometimes the corridor lasts all day.

It took nearly 20 years to convince United Air Lines officials. Last winter United tried it 74 times at 6 airports and it worked 60 times. Some 5,500 passengers got through, including 2,000 on rival lines.

The procedure has been used at Medford, Ore., for 15 years.

United has used it successfully on a small scale for two winters. The airline thinks it should be extended to at least 12 other airports, including Washington, Detroit and Chicago.

It will not work every place. Los Angeles, for example, probably can expect no fog relief.

Northern airports will benefit because their fog occurs at colder temperatures.

What makes it work is the dry ice, which is frozen carbon dioxide. It is 110 degrees below zero Fahrenheit when solidified. United officials say it works best when the fog occurs at temperatures between 24 and 28 degrees. This is called super-cooled fog.

This is what they believe happens: When dry ice pellets are released, they begin to turn to gas. This takes heat from the air. In this intense cooling, moisture begins to collect into ice particles and to descend. They pick up other particles and eventually turn into a light snow. No fog remains.

A General Electric scientist in Massachusetts discovered the effect in a glass chamber in 1946.

DECADE OF DEDICATION—Only 10 years ago (April 12, 1955) the Salk vaccine was declared "safe, effective and potent." In the following decade the number of cases of polio in the U.S. has dropped more than 99 per cent. As a result, last year only 121 cases were reported, a rate of less than one per million in population. The impressive figures make this the most successful story in the history of preventive medicine. Information from National Foundation-March of Dimes.

Johnson Lauds Men of Reason In Selma City

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has commended Southerners striving for better race relations and said: "Neither a voting rights act nor any other civil rights act will solve the civil rights problems of the nation or insure equal justice and equal opportunity for all our Negro citizens. "These goals can be achieved only as the result of individual responsibility and of national understanding, or community responsibility and of national good faith."

The President specifically commended the 22 Alabama business groups that advertised their commitment toward better racial communication and the leaders of Selma for deciding to endorse the advertisements.

"Assuredly," Johnson said, "racial problems will persist, not only in Alabama, and not only in the South. But for this to happen in a city where good feelings have been inflamed suggests, I think, that men of reason and good will can prevail in all parts of our country. There could be no more encouraging fact."

The President's statement issued Tuesday by the White House, was made at a Cabinet meeting.

In it, he noted Congress is returning after an Easter recess and said he hopes it "will now continue its excellent display of deliberation with speed and on the voting rights bill without delay."

Senate debate on the bill was to have started today, but the death of Sen. Olin D. Johnston, D-S.C., has caused a cancellation of all proceedings.

Three members of the Judiciary Committee, Sens. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., the chairman, and John L. McClellan, D-Ark., and Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., submitted a statement saying they consider the bill unconstitutional.

Work Advances On Water Mains

Work is advancing this week in the city on the cleaning and lining of main water system conduits, Edmund T. Cloonan, water department superintendent, noted today.

It is a first phase of the water department's long-range $670,000 capital improvement program for rehabilitating the department's distribution system. Later phases will include repair and installation of new equipment at the Zena filter plant.

Most of the work on the present phase, Cloonan said, is to be under ground with a minimum involvement of traffic and service to consumers will be maintained while it is in progress.

Lines are now being cleaned and relined on South Manor and Foxhall Avenues, the latter between Albany Avenue and Broadway, on Main Street between Wall Street and Clinton Avenue, and some preliminary work has been done on Broadway between Foxhall Avenue and Stuyvesant Street.

Residents residing in areas involved are given advance notice.

The work is being done by the contracting firm of Spiniello & Nesto of Orange, N. J. It had bid low at $72,980 and the contract was awarded last month.

The project, it was noted, will result in "substantial increases in the amount of available flow in the entire system." It is due for completion by August.

Swiss Next for Barry

STUTTGART, Germany (AP) — Barry Goldwater ended a five-day visit in Germany today and a spokesman said the next stop on his European trip would be Switzerland.

The defeated Republican presidential candidate, his wife and four friends planned to rent cars in Switzerland and "strike out on their own" through Switzerland and France, an aide to Lt. Gen. William W. Quinn said in Stuttgart.

Quinn, commander of the U.S. 7th Army and an old personal friend, has been host to the Goldwater party.

Ulster Business Hears Report on Buses, Fills Job

A special meeting of the Ulster Business Men's Association was held Tuesday night. Due to the Easter week and press of business many members were unable to attend the regular meeting held previously.

President Elwood Van Sise reported on old and new business and also said that Ronald Montfort who had been elected treasurer for 1965 had recently been promoted and would be leaving for a position with Food Fair in Albany and of necessity must resign. Terry Martin, manager of the Savings and Loan Association of Kingston Town of Ulster Shopping Plaza branch, was elected treasurer.

In accordance with the by-laws the books of the Business Men's Association have been audited and the association is in good financial condition, President Van Sise reported.

The matter of scheduled bus transportation between the Town of Ulster shopping area and the City of Kingston was discussed and a report given. President Van Sise complimented the PSC that it reconsider its decision. In a former decision the PSC failed to authorize the scheduled bus system from the Town of Ulster to Kingston. It has been pointed out that there is need for a scheduled bus service from the Town of Ulster to Kingston to accommodate not only shoppers but commuters who travel between the town and the city everyday to jobs.

Ronald Every, manager of the Albany Avenue branch of the New York State Bank, who is in charge of the Old Timers Baseball Town of Ulster bus which will go to Shea Stadium on June 13 when the Mets will play the Dodgers, reported the event promised to be a "big day" for the fans of the Town of Ulster. He urged those who intend to go to contact him since the number of tickets is limited. There will be refreshments on the bus which will leave Dietz stadium at 9 a. m. and take its position in the line of buses leaving Kingston. The arrangements were made through the Kingston Old Timers Baseball Association.

Car Kills 2 Horses

CORNWALL, N.Y. (AP) — Fred J. Exum of Highland Mills braked his car to a quick stop on Route 32 early today when three horses suddenly loomed up in front of him.

He missed one of the animals, but struck and killed the other two. Exum was taken to Cornwall Hospital for treatment of cuts on his head.

The horses had wandered away from grazing land nearby. They belonged to Lucille Hand of Route 32, Mountainville.

Administration Looks Gloomily At Steel Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials are taking an increasingly gloomy view of steel contract negotiations since the United Steelworkers Union refused to swap a five-cent pay raise for a strike date postponement.

While still hopeful of an agreement that would postpone the May 1 deadline, sources here report both sides in the Pittsburgh talks appear to be taking a tougher stand.

"It's pretty tight right now," said one high administration source. "Everybody is mad at each other."

He said the hardening of attitudes on both sides stemmed from the Steelworkers' quick rejection of the industry's five-cent hourly pay-boost offer last week. The union had expected a much larger offer in exchange for extending steel contracts during further negotiations.

The administration is sticking to its belief that the strike date will be postponed, but now believes it may be an 11th-hour cliffhanger, with talks going right up to the present deadline.

This may require some strong prodding by high-level government officials to budge the talks off dead center and avoid the possibility of a miscalculation that could lead to a strike.

Industry negotiators, who previously said they would not go beyond a 2 per cent increase, are now considering a reported union offer of a 3.2 per cent hike in exchange for a strike date postponement.

The 3.2 per cent figure, which would amount to about 14 cents an hour plus a 3-cent cost-of-living increase, is based on recommendations of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

The council has suggested limiting wage gains to the estimated 3.2 per cent annual increase in man-hour productivity in U.S. industry.

Steelworkers now average $14.00 per hour in wages and fringe benefits.

Johnson and his economic advisers are gravely concerned that a settlement much beyond the 3.2 per cent guideline could start an inflationary spiral spreading throughout the economy and boost prices generally.

Even more worrisome to the administration is the possibility of a strike that would cause shortages in steel-using industries and slow the present favorable rate of growth in the economy.

7 Persons Hurt In Greene Crash, Driver Summoned

Seven persons were injured and in 18-year-old Dutchess County youth was summoned on a charge of failing to yield the right of way, as the result of a two-car collision which occurred at 5:30 a. m. today at the intersection of Routes 23 and 145, Town of Cairo.

Earlier this week a state trooper had termed the intersection as extremely dangerous, and noted that several fatal accidents have occurred at that point in the last few years.

Sergeant G. E. Brown of the Leeds substation, said the cars were operated by Malcolm L. Taylor, 41, of 1300 E. Fayette Street, Syracuse, and George W. Fluegel, 18, of Red Hook. The youth was summoned for the motor vehicle violation.

Troopers D. F. Sager and W. T. Todd listed the injured as: the two drivers; Linda Hart, 15, Catherine Lydon, 14, and Wayne Bayer, 17, all of Red Hook, and Ronald Mosher, 17, and Thomas Courtney, 17, of 239 West 230th Street, the Bronx.

Sergeant Brown reported Taylor was driving east on Route 145 and Fluegel and his passengers were going west on Route 23 when the crash occurred.

The injured were treated at Greene County Memorial Hospital, Catskill, for abrasions, contusions and lacerations.

Scholars to Meet

VATICAN CITY (AP) — More than 200 Roman Catholic and Communist scholars will meet in Salzburg, Austria, on April 29 to examine social and religious areas in which Marxism and Christianity might find common ground.

Vatican sources said 100 or more Communist scholars from Poland, Hungary, Czechoslovakia and East Germany — all countries with extensive Roman Catholic backgrounds — are expected to attend the four-day meeting. No Communists from the Soviet Union will take part.

fact

Much to the relief of countless children, cod-liver oil has fallen behind other fish oils as a vitamin source. Among them are the liver oils of halibut, rockfish, dogfish and soup-fin shark. Halibut oil has approximately 10 times the potency of cod-liver oil. And the oils of such fishes as tuna, mackerel, swordfish and sea bass often contain 100 times as much vitamin A and D as cod-liver oil.

Do You Remember by Sophie Miller

It does not look as though we will have Hudson River boat travel this year of 1965, which people of Kingston enjoyed before all this modernization, progress, mammoth million dollar schools and high taxes. In a way I feel we now have less of the good things of life than we had then, with the coming of warm days we could look forward to a safe and pleasant Sunday afternoon at Kingston Point Park or a sail on the Hudson River. What have we now, to compare with it?

Going back to a very interesting booklet loaned to me by a reader, and given at one time by the Hudson River Day Line, N. Y. on Robert Fulton Day, August 17, 1907, to commemorate the Centennial of Fulton's Clermont in the world, which started up the Hudson at 1 p. m., August 17, 1807. The replica of this Clermont rested in our Kingston Point Lagoon for many years until it was destroyed by young and adult vandals and time, that is a story by itself. I have quoted from this brochure before, and especially am interested in it, because I heard that there will be a Robert Fulton stamp out this year.

The following in this book about "Safety Barges" which was an outgrowth of a desire for more quiet and a demand for greater safety. On account of the frequent boiler explosions, the public had become somewhat afraid of steamboat travel, and the Commerce Committee and Henry Eckford were built for what was known as the "Safety Barge Line." These boats towed barges behind them at the end of long hawsers.

In those days of country school houses when children were taught to respect property, and the words juvenile delinquency was unheard of as such, certain inventions brought conveniences but also fear. In this case the fear of boiler explosions on steamers, so "Safety Barges" came into popularity. They had sleeping accommodations, as well as a dining room, "which were beautifully decorated and carefully guarded." The following is an excerpt from the Republican Telegraph of Poughkeepsie, May 26, 1824: "The destruction of lives on board the Steamboat Aetna, has brought about much talk on 'high-pressure' and 'low-pressure' engines, etc., but the truth is that all boilers are dangerous, although some are more so than others. The passenger walks and sits and sleeps almost in contact with a volcano, that in an instant may blow him to atoms. The present system of fixing machinery and boilers in the center of passage boats is unnecessary and dangerous, let the pressure be high or low, or the boiler of iron or copper."

The Commerce steamer towing the barge Lady Clinton, made her appearance on the first day of July 1825, carrying a full list of passengers, among them the Danish Minister to this country, who was attracted by the new mode of travel. A little later the Swiftsure, with the Lady Van Rensselaer, came onto the route, and she was followed later by the Henry Eckford. Those were the days people desired and enjoyed quiet and peace, and prominent persons coming from all over the world to New York City, if the weather favorable were given the pleasure and privilege of a steamer trip up the Hudson. With all our modern education and so called progress of 1965, we do not have today, although the tides of the Hudson comes and goes from our very doorsteps.

Ulster Demos to Meet

A meeting of the Town of Ulster Democratic Club will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. in the Pleasure Yacht Restaurant, Edenville.

Captains Named For Member Drive Of Area Chamber

The names of the six team captains in the forthcoming membership campaign of the Kingston Area Chamber of Commerce were released today by William R. Stall, general chairman of the Membership Committee.

The team captains are William E. Belser, Joseph F. Brady, Edward D. Groff, James E. Norton, Joseph D. Scholier Jr., and Stuart Svinsky. Each captain has enrolled four additional men on his team.

Stall also announced that all of the workers will meet at a breakfast meeting in the Governor Clinton Hotel, on Tuesday, April 27 and vote Tuesday and Wednesday to enrolling new members. A goal of 50 new members has been set. A final check-up meeting will take place Thursday, April 29 at 4 p. m. also at the hotel.

Another phase of the Chamber's membership drive will be the mailing of renewal statements to all members, also early next week. The membership campaign is organized at this time to coincide with the start of the new fiscal year on May 1. The tentative budget for the fiscal year of 1965-66, amounting to $21,750.00 has been approved by the board of directors. Stall said that for several years the Chamber of Commerce has had to use some of the membership funds for the following fiscal year to pay April bills, but that the new budget, if the contemplated income is achieved, will place the Chamber on a sound fiscal basis.

Dear Abby . . .

'Fess Up Now!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Talk about a mess. This is the worst. My boy friend and I eloped during the semester break and were married by a Justice of the Peace. We told our parents about it and they said we shouldn't tell anybody. They want us to announce our "engagement" as soon as school is out in June, and then they'll give us a big church wedding in September. Well, as luck would have it, I think I am pregnant. I can't wait until September for a big fancy wedding for obvious reasons. I hate to disappoint my mother, but I think I ought to tell her. How?

DEAR JUMPED: Tell your mother that you have a date with the stork—and waiting until September is for the birds.

DEAR ABBY: Can you find me a good, true woman? I am a retired Merchant Marine officer who has been everywhere and seen everything. I am tired of knocking around. I am pushing 60, but nobody takes me for any older than 45, or 50, tops. I have a nice little savings account and a pension for life. Never having been an angel myself, I wouldn't expect one, but I would like a healthy, good-looking woman who wants to settle down with one man from now on. I am partial to plump girls. I speak both Italian and Spanish. If you will send me an address, I'll go anywhere.

DEAR SLIM: Don't start packing until you've taken a good look in your own back yard. Just let a few friends know that you are interested in meeting a good woman who wants to settle down, and you'll need police protection.

DEAR ABBY: I am the proud father of a big, handsome college freshman. When this kid comes home for weekend vacations he helps himself to my neckties. Now I wouldn't mind so much if he returned my ties in the same condition that he finds them. But he knits them peculiarly and the tie is a lifeless rag by the time he's worn it once. He has more ties than I have, but he wears mine because he says he likes my "taste." I suppose I should be flattered and, in a way, I am. But how would YOU solve this problem, Abby?

DEAR DAD: What you need is stronger family ties. And buy enough for both of you!

College to Have Lecture on Cuba Friday Evening

The United States and Cuba: Past, Present and Future will be the topic of a lecture Friday night, April 23, given by Dr. Bruce B. Solnick at Ulster County Community College, 214 West Chestnut Street.

Friday's lecture, sponsored by the Social Science Club of the college, will begin at 7:30 p. m. in Room 34 and is open to the public.

Although Viet Nam has taken precedence in the news headlines pushing the trouble spots of the past few years to the last page when interesting news erupts from these areas, "these problems must be recognized and should be reckoned with," a college spokesman announcing the lecture said.

Dr. Solnick is currently an Associate Professor of History at the State University of New York at Albany. He received his A.B., A.M., and Ph.D. degrees from NYU. He was formerly an Instructor in History, and a visiting Assistant Professor of History at NYU and an instructor in History at Hunter College.

Dr. Solnick has been the holder of many fellowships and grants including Penfield Fellowships for Studies in Diplomacy, International Affairs, and Belles-lettres from NYU. (1956-1957, 1957-1958). He is the author of numerous articles about Spain and Latin America.

He is the author of many book reviews which were published in Hispanic American Historical Review and Newsletter of the Society for the History of Discoveries. He is currently the Book Review Editor of Newsletter of the Society for the History of Discoveries and is writing a book A History of Central America and the Caribbean Area to 1898 and to be published by Alfred A. Knopf, Inc.

Kanin's Triplets

NEW YORK (AP)—Garson Kanin, veteran playwright-director, is lining up a busy 1965-66 agenda of work. Lead-off item is expected to be "A Very Rich Woman," which he will coproduce as well as stage. "Naked Mary Will You Come Out" is the second scheduled enterprise, with Kanin again serving in dual capacity. The windup enterprise is "The Spitting Image," which he wrote and plans to direct.

Lions Endorse Kalish for Post On College Board

The board of directors of the Kingston Lions Club has approved a resolution requesting the Ulster County Board of Supervisors to appoint Richard M. Kalish as a trustee of the Ulster County Community College to fill the expired term of Richard J. Whalen, who recently resigned. Whalen left the area to accept another position with IBM in Boulder, Colo., where they are building another plant.

John G. Reynolds, president of the Lions Club made this announcement today following a special meeting of the Lions' directors Tuesday.

The resolution called attention to the fact that Kalish is well qualified to serve as a trustee of the college. He has been very active in all phases of the movement, supported by the citizens of Ulster County, to bring about the establishment of the college. He served a full term as a member of the Kingston Board of Education and has been very active in many important civic projects and community organizations. Currently he is a member and president of the Kingston Hospital Board of Trustees.

In conclusion Reynolds said he is pleased the Lions Club

By CHARLES WEST

NEW YORK (AP) — Lest it be overlooked in the rush of world events, this Easter season is the 15th anniversary of the introduction of a chemical curiosity that has bounced its way around the globe.

It was discovered as a by-product of the government's effort to create synthetic rubber during World War II. And it was useless — useless, that is, until a flat-broke advertising and marketing specialist came across it.

The specialist, Peter Hodgson, 48, named it Silly Putty. He is no longer flat broke.

No Longer Broke

Hodgson made the pink substance into a multimillion-dollar adult toy which soon found its best market among children.

Silly Putty came into being in 1944. James Wright, an engineer working in General Electric's New Haven, Conn., laboratory, tossed a handful of boric acid into some silicone oil, a liquid refined from sand. The gooey result bounced when he tossed it on the floor, but failed as a substitute for rubber.

Nevertheless, it remained around for years, a conversation piece and plaything for Wright's friends and professional colleagues, mainly for its seemingly contradictory qualities.

It can be stretched or molded; balled up, it will bounce; struck suddenly with a hammer, it will shatter; flattened out, it will pick up pictures from a comic book; left alone, it will flow slower than molasses into a tired puddle.

Hodgson, born in Montreal, and raised in Norfolk, Va., had been a seaman, advertising copy writer, marketing consultant, wartime railroad troop traffic manager and magazine research director. But he was broke and jobless when he found his gold mine.

Working in a basement with a Yale student as a helper, Hodgson had to borrow $147.50 to pay for the first shipment of the substance. He put small amounts of silly putty into toy plastic eggs retailing for $1 and got them onto the national market.

Clear Profit Quick

Within six months, 30 Yale students were helping Hodgson create the orders and he was counting a clear profit of $10,000.

Now 125 employees help him in a $6-million annual business. In addition to the New Haven plant, there is a subsidiary operation in Canada. He is negotiating to open others this year in Japan and West Germany and just received an inquiry about a possible plant in Mexico.

And the once flat-broke advertising man relaxes on an 88-acre hilltop at Madison, Conn., with a swimming pool, tennis court and an old farm house 400 feet above the Long Island Sound boasting a view stretching almost from Orient Point to Oyster Bay.

"I can trace most everything I have to silly putty," said Hodgson, pleased.

AP Movie-Television Writer HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jean Leon, a personable young fellow from Bayonne, France, is what this town calls a terrific success story.

In a decade, he has progressed from busboy to the owner of one of the movie colony's favorite hangouts.

Came Here in 1951

And to make a French Horatio Alger dream come true, he now owns a castle in Spain — with its own vineyards.

Jean came to the United States in 1951 and immediately was drafted into the Army where he served a two-year hitch as a secretary to a psychiatrist — good training for running a movie star restaurant.

He started in the restaurant business as a busboy at the old Villa Capri where he became a favorite of Frank Sinatra, Natalie Wood, Jackie Gleason and others who frequented the Italian restaurant. A busboy by day, Jean drove a cab at night.

Patsy D'Amore, owner of the Villa Capri, promoted Jean to waiter, then captain. His Gallic charm and friendliness soon won him a host of friends in the movie crowd.

NEW YORK (AP) — The first overseas duplicate of this season's top Broadway musical, "Fiddler on the Roof," is to open June 1 in Tel Aviv. Shraga, Friedman, a leading Israeli player, is to portray the role of Tevye, central character in the show based upon folk stories by Sholom Aleichem.

where seven other restaurants had gone broke in 11 years.

"Our first-day receipts were $76," Jean recalls. Now La Scala and its subsidiary, La Scala Boutique, grosses a million a year.

Arthur Loew Jr., scion of the theatrical family, was his first name customer — and he has been there almost nightly since. Sinatra, David Janssen, Danny Thomas, and every big name town started making La Scala their home away from home.

A few years ago, Leon gained international fame when the late President John F. Kennedy, on visits to this area, always had Jean and his chefs prepare his meals.

Leon's secret of success: "Food alone does not make a successful restaurant. It takes good food plus the ability to make a guest welcome."

Another secret: "Don't enlarge. Never get too big for the personal touch."

In Brief

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of Republicans in the House of Representatives has asked President Johnson to "break the ice" and visit French President Charles de Gaulle.

The suggestion was made Tuesday in a letter to Johnson from a GOP group called the Committee on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

It said that France and the United States are "sorely at odds" and the "icy discord between these two oldest allies has engendered broader disunion in NATO and thus endangers individual liberty everywhere."

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Legion National Commander Donald Johnson of West Branch, Iowa, says proposals to stop bombing North Viet Nam for a time now would accomplish nothing "except to help the Viet Cong to realize their forces and strengthen their military position."

Johnson's remarks were apparently aimed at demonstrations here last weekend by thousands of students against U.S. policies in Viet Nam and the proposal by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., for a trial halt of the bombings.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mary Brooks, an Idaho state senator and widow of Sen. C. Wayland Brooks, R-Id., will be the new assistant chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Chairman Ray C. Bliss announced Tuesday that Mrs. Brooks, whom he called "exceedingly capable," would succeed Mrs. Pat Hutar on May 15 as the committee's top-ranking woman.

Mrs. Brooks, daughter of the late Sen. John Thomas, R-Idaho, married Brooks in 1945. He died in 1957.

At present she is managing the family ranch at Muldoon, Idaho.

Alaska is 480 times larger than Rhode Island.

To Test Satellites

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — The Air Force is opening a transportable ground terminal at Model City, N. Y., which Sylvania Electric Products Inc. will operate, the company announced.

The unit will attempt to determine the effectiveness of communication via passive satellites.

Report Tentative
Pacts With Two
Rubber Producers

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The United Rubber Workers and two of the rubber industry's three major producers—Firestone and Goodrich — reached tentative agreements on new contracts early today, a few hours after old contracts expired.

The union and the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., the third of the three, also held a negotiating session that went past the midnight expiration time. The two sides were to resume talks later today.

No work stoppages were reported at the companies' plants across the country. The union's executive committee has strike vote authorization.

A union source in Dayton, Ohio, where the Goodrich talks are being held, estimated the new two-year contract would provide the company's URW workers with a 28-cent hourly wage-benefit package.

Cincinnati is the site of the Goodyear talks. Firestone negotiations are taking place in Cleveland.

Firestone presented an offer just before midnight, and the union announced a few hours later that it deemed the new terms acceptable as a tentative agreement, subject to signing and write-up. All contracts will have to be ratified by local memberships.

The three companies employ some 51,500 URW members.

The union was asking for a substantial wage increase, in addition to a cost-of-living hike, plus a 13-week vacation once every five years, two more paid holidays each year and a short-work week.

Average hourly wages now are: Firestone $3.43; Goodyear, $3.14 and Goodrich, $3.15.

Laud Youngsters For Flood Help

CLINTON, Iowa, (AP) — Growups who have been battling angry floods in the Midwest for nearly a month are quick to give credit for the help of school children.

If the youngsters sometimes seem to get underfoot filling and hauling sandbags it can be laid to eagerness. But officials concede that without their help many a levee couldn't have been raised in time.

Among the thousands of high school and junior high pupils who have enlisted in the fight against the Mississippi River were the children on the job here Tuesday.

Fifteen of nearly 1,300 who had been excused from school for the day were at the spot where sandbags had been placed on top of a cinder block wall behind the Clinton baseball stadium.

A section of the wall collapsed without warning and 15 boys and girls were injured.

Danny Waters, 12, and Barbara Hodges, 16, with leg fractures; and Tim Leonard, 13, with back injuries, were hospitalized. The others were treated for cuts and bruises and released.

The Rev. James Coonroy, chaplain at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, said: "The kids were all in the hallway, either sitting on chairs or lying on litters. They were terrific. They were trying to comfort each other and keep their spirits up."

Some of the youngsters were on Easter vacation but not those at Clinton High School. School Supt. R.T. Grau said before the accident that those excused for work on the flood project had to bring written consent from their parents.

Gov. Harold Hughes was in the area conferring with officials on steps taken to hold back the river. He saw school children at work with their elders.

"People are quick to criticize our kids," he said. "Here on the river they have worked longer and harder than some of the adults. They deserve a lot of credit."

In Clinton, all school absences were canceled today. City authorities said there was no further need for student volunteers.

Police are seeking "river pirates" who ransacked several boats at John White's Hudson River Marina, New Hamburg, and made off with loot estimated to value $1,500.

Poughkeepsie Town Police Chief Vincent Smith said some of the boats were on land and others were in the water. Boats burglarized included a 30-foot cruiser owned by Dr. Thomas R. Shannon, 45 Schoolhouse Lane, and a 37-foot cruiser belonging to A. Allendorph Schoonmaker, Kingwood Park, a funeral director.

Missing from Dr. Shannon's boat was a ship-to-shore radio with hand telephone valued at more than $500. A set of binoculars and case, a fire extinguisher and other items were taken from the Schoonmaker cruiser. The thefts occurred earlier this week.

Applications Open

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced today that applications will be accepted until further notice for positions of Poultry Inspector. These positions are announced at the GS-5 level with a starting salary of $5,000 a year. The positions are located in plants throughout the 20 Eastern States where poultry is eviscerated or processed on a mass production basis. In addition to passing a written test, applicants must have had experience in handling meat or poultry, or they must have had college courses in appropriate subjects. Announcements and appropriate application forms may be obtained from many Post Offices or the Board of U.S. Civil Service Examiners, Eastern Area Administrative Division, Consumer and Marketing Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Federal Center Building, Hyattsville, Md.

National YWCA Week
The theme of National YWCA Week now (April 18-25) being observed across the United States is "For today's world, invest in yourself." It stresses for girls and young women the importance of preparing themselves to meet the demands of the rapidly changing world.

Laud Youngsters For Flood Help

CLINTON, Iowa, (AP) — Growups who have been battling angry floods in the Midwest for nearly a month are quick to give credit for the help of school children.

If the youngsters sometimes seem to get underfoot filling and hauling sandbags it can be laid to eagerness. But officials concede that without their help many a levee couldn't have been raised in time.

Among the thousands of high school and junior high pupils who have enlisted in the fight against the Mississippi River were the children on the job here Tuesday.

Fifteen of nearly 1,300 who had been excused from school for the day were at the spot where sandbags had been placed on top of a cinder block wall behind the Clinton baseball stadium.

A section of the wall collapsed without warning and 15 boys and girls were injured.

Durmy Waters, 12, and Barbara Hodges, 16, with leg fractures; and Tim Leonard, 13, with back injuries, were hospitalized. The others were treated for cuts and bruises and released.

The Rev. James Coonroy, chaplain at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, said: "The kids were all in the hallway, either sitting on chairs or lying on litters. They were terrific. They were trying to comfort each other and keep their spirits up."

Some of the youngsters were on Easter vacation but not those at Clinton High School. School Supt. R.T. Grau said before the accident that those excused for work on the flood project had to bring written consent from their parents.

Gov. Harold Hughes was in the area conferring with officials on steps taken to hold back the river. He saw school children at work with their elders.

"People are quick to criticize our kids," he said. "Here on the river they have worked longer and harder than some of the adults. They deserve a lot of credit."

In Clinton, all school absences were canceled today. City authorities said there was no further need for student volunteers.

SHOULD THE BRIDE'S FAMILY PROVIDE TRANSPORTATION?

Q: Will you please tell me if it is the responsibility of the bride's parents to provide transportation from the church to the place where the reception is to be held for wedding guests who have no cars?

A: They are only obliged to provide transportation for those in the wedding party. If they can arrange transportation for any of the wedding guests, all well and good, but it is not a requirement and guests are expected to make their own arrangements.

Group Taking Sightseeing Trip

Q: A club to which my boy friend belongs is chartering a bus for a sightseeing trip to Williamsburgh over the Memorial Day weekend. There will be about 30 young people. My boy friend has asked me to go. I would like very much to go, but my mother doesn't think it will be proper. Wouldn't the fact that I would be going with a group make such a trip entirely proper?

A: The fact that you are going with a group does not in itself make the trip proper, and unless an older person or a married couple is going along to chaperone the group, I agree with your mother that your going on such a trip would not be proper.

Evening Clothes For A Boy

Q: Will you please tell me the correct clothes for my 13-year-old son to wear to his brother's wedding which will take place at an evening hour? He would like to wear a tuxedo. I think he is too young for these clothes. What is your opinion?

A: Unless he is tall for his age and looks older than he is, he is too young for a tuxedo and a blue suit with a white shirt will be in better taste.

Paltz Professor Is Named to African Post; 1st American

Robert A. Simko, assistant professor of geography, State University College, New Paltz, is the first American to be appointed to the staff of University of East Africa by the Institute of International Education. His position, beginning in July, will be as lecturer in geography at the University College at Dar es Salaam, Tanzania for two years.

The program, administered by the Institute, is through a Ford Foundation grant to the University of East Africa for the purposes of developing various faculties of the University over a three year period.

Mr. Simko who joined the New Paltz faculty in 1963, is a member of the Division of Area Studies and Geography. He received his BA in geography and MA in geography at Rutgers University. Prior to his appointment at New Paltz, he taught geography and African Studies at Rutgers and at DePauw University, Greencastle, Indiana. He is a member of the Association of American Geographers, the American Association of University Professors, the American Geographical Society and the African Studies Association.

Care of freshly caught fish is discussed in the following article by Elizabeth D. Overbach, assistant home demonstration agent:

It is essential that freshly caught fish be kept cool or that it be kept alive until ice can be provided. These precautions are necessary because deterioration is extremely rapid after the fish is killed. If the fish is not cooked immediately after reaching shore, it should be iced and dressed and surrounded with ice. It saves work to scale fish immediately.

Not all fish have scales. For those that do, however, scaling is easiest when the fish is freshly killed and still wet. If scaling must be delayed, put the fish in cold water for 10 to 15 minutes to ease scale removal.

To simplify cleanup, lay the fish on a large sheet of paper or scale it out-of-doors. Grasp the fish firmly by the head and use the back of a stiff knife, the edge of a heavy spoon, or a fish scaler. Hold the implement almost at right angles to the fish and scrape off the scales, working toward the head.

To draw and dress fish — make a slit the entire length of the belly and scrape out the entrails. Remove the large back fin by cutting into the flesh along each side of the fin. Grasp the fin and give a slow, steady pull toward the head of the fish. This will remove both the fin and the root bones. Remove the other fins in the same way. Cut off the head or not as you prefer. Wash the fish in cold running water. It is now ready to cook.

If fish is to be frozen it must be drawn and dressed. Large fish may be cut into steaks or fillets. Wrap the fish in moisture-vapor-resistant paper, separating steaks or fillets with two pieces of freezer paper. Freeze immediately at 0 degrees F. or below and store the fish at the same low temperature. The fish will maintain good quality for 1 to 2 months at this temperature.

There are many methods of cooking fish and hundreds of recipes, but all fish have one rule in common: Don't overcook! Overcooked fish is dry and may even seem tough. Probably many people who think they dislike

Son of Port Ewen Couple Gets Grant For Geology Study

A University of Connecticut geologist has just received a $36,800 grant from the National Science Foundation to intensify his pursuit of knowledge about certain rock formations.

Dr. Homer Liese, assistant professor of geology plans to spend the next three years studying Petrologic Interpretations of Minerals from Igneous and Metamorphic Rocks.

In his efforts to determine the condition of formations from these two major categories of rocks, Dr. Liese will study trace elements by infrared techniques. He hopes to make some correlation among the different rock groups from the viewpoint of time and space.

The University of Connecticut geologist has been using infrared techniques to study rock formations for several years. Most of his specimens in the current study will come from New England formation but he expects to extract some samples from other regions too.

A practical aspect of his study relates to possible interest his findings will generate among water resource scientists. For instance, the trace elements could tell these applied scientists where ground water sources are, whether in bed rock reservoirs or in unconsolidated rocks.

Dr. Liese joined the UConn faculty in 1962 from the University of Utah, where he received his doctorate. He received a Fulbright Scholarship from the Alliance Francaise of New York for a year's study in France in 1957-58.

Dr. Homer Liese is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Zale Liese of Port Ewen. His wife teaches French.

also at the University of Connecticut and when studying at the University of Utah, taught French to both regular students and those requiring special courses in French. She was born in Paris and met Liese when he was a student at Syracuse University.

'Youth at Shutter' Is Topic of Current Photography Exhibit

"Youth at the Shutter" is the theme of the present exhibit at the Artercraft Gallery, 694 Broadway in Kingston, where the work of the Photography Class of the Onteora School is currently on display. The Onteora School includes photography in its regular Arts Department curriculum as an expressive as well as a reportive medium of communication. The class is directed by Don Jennings, instructor.

This group, at the Artercraft Camera Center, of some 60 black and white photographs, has been created by 13 students of the Onteora School representing grades 10, 11 and 12, and ranging in age from 15 to 17 inclusive. They represent an amazing maturity and variety of concept.

Individualism is the keynote in imagination, mood, perspective, technique, even in such physical attributes as size and cropping. They are a reflection of the hand and heart that has given these youthful photographers an eye to recognize a potential, and the ability to use the tools of their medium to top advantage. The display covers a wide range of salon subjects—landscape, animal life, portraiture, with a number of mood pictures in the abstract. Mr. Jennings relates the beauties of photography with its practical reportive use. Several issues of the Year Book, the Tomahawk, on display, demonstrate the group's reportive capacity.

'Youth at Shutter' Is Topic of Current Photography Exhibit

"Youth at The Shutter" is the theme of the present exhibit at the Artercraft Gallery, 694 Broadway in Kingston, where the work of the Photography Class of the Ontario School is currently on display. The Ontario School includes photography in its regular Arts Department curriculum as an expressive as well as a reportive medium of communication. The class is directed by Don Jennings, instructor.

This group, at the Artercraft Camera Center, of some 60 black and white photographs, has been created by 13 students of the Ontario School representing grades 10, 11 and 12, and ranging in age from 15 to 17 inclusive. They represent an amazing maturity and variety of concept.

Individualism is the keynote in imagination, mood, perspective, technique, even in such physical attributes as size and cropping. They are a reflection of the hand and heart that has given these youthful photographers an eye to recognize a potential, and the ability to use the tools of their medium to top advantage. The display covers a wide range of salon subjects—landscape, animal life, portraiture, with a number of mood pictures in the abstract. Mr. Jennings relates the beauties of photography with its practical reportive use. Several issues of the Year Book, the Tomahawk, on display, demonstrate the group's reportive capacity.

Hartack to Ride Bold Lad in Derby

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Hartack will shoot for a record-breaking fifth Kentucky Derby victory aboard highly regarded Bold Lad, thanks to the latest in a series of musical chairs maneuvers of riding assignments for the May 1 racing classic.

Hartack, who has won four of six Derby starts, was named Tuesday to ride Bold Lad, a top-heavy favorite until last Saturday's third-place finish in the Wood Memorial at Aqueduct.

The controversial veteran replaces Manuel Ycaza, who was aboard Bold Lad in the Wood as a substitute for the suspended Braulio Baeza. Hartack also will be up when Bold Lad goes in the Derby Trial next Tuesday.

Baeza is under contract to Derby Dan Farm and is expected to ride either Bugler or Country Friend in the Triple Crown opener at Churchill Downs. Ycaza agreed Monday to ride Flag Raiser in the Derby, replacing Johnny Sellers.

Hartack won last year's Derby aboard Northern Dancer after Willie Shoemaker switched from the Canadian-bred colt to favored Hill Rise. Hartack also won with Iron Liege in 1957, Venetian Way in 1960 and Decidedly in 1962. Only Eddie Arco, now retired, has won five Derbies and he started in the classic 21 times.

Three Pitchers Combine to Spin Non-Loop Verdict

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Charlie Green's second inning single with two runners on and some tight pitching by a trio of Kingston High choppers gave the locals a 2-1 win over visiting Roosevelt yesterday at Dietz Stadium.

In capturing their second verdict in three starts (the other ended in a tie), coach Mike Rienzo's team tallied all the runs they needed in the second stanza.

Joe Schabot reached base on an error to begin the inning. Bill Palen drew a one out walk. Schabot then stole third and moments later, Palen swiped second. Green then stroked a clean single to center, driving in both runs.

Given the 2-0 edge, lanky John Spinnewebber worked five good innings in his first outing of the season. He allowed three hits, struck out five and showed perfect control.

Bach Hurls 6th
Brian Bach turned the visitors down in order in the sixth and Gene Rios was sent in to hurl the seventh.

The fireballing lefty had some control trouble, walking two batters and uncorking a pair of wild pitches. The second wild pitch came with a runner on second and two outs.

Rios threw a ball which hit in front of the plate. The batter swung and missed for an apparent strike out but catcher Ed Mills couldn't come up with the ball and the runner reached base and a run crossed the dish.

Another walk gave the Presidents a pair of base runners but Rios fanned the final batter to end the game. It was his fourth strikeout of the inning.

Kingston plays at Roosevelt this afternoon and then hosts Arlington on Thursday at 2:30 a. m. at Dietz Stadium.

SPORTS

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Freeman Sports Editor

Since that incredible 8-inch snowfall at Pine Hill on Easter Sunday lends a measure of credence and pertinency to comments on skiing on this date — April 21 — here we go again.

Some time ago we made some observations about state-operated and privately owned ski centers. The point we tried to make was that, in our opinion, there was a place for both in our capitalistic democracy. We made no reference to comparative lift charges. We simply said we can live with both and each serves a purpose.

A couple of ski enthusiasts — one a rugged 70-year-old Woodstock resident who skis daily — and Mrs. Francis G. Davenport of Stone Ridge, who is connected with Highmount Ski Center, which is privately owned — have lodged vigorous dissents to our remarks.

Mrs. Davenport said we were guilty of a "few misleading statements" in the March 27 column, in which we said that New York State is performing a valuable service in operating three ski centers, as opposed to Orville Slutsky's (Hunter Mountain) view that private enterprise could better fill the need. The letter, addressed to the editor of the Kingston Daily Freeman, said that our statement "that there are thousands of skiers who do not have the finances to ski at Hunter Mountain seems to infer that the lift charges at Hunter are higher than those in competitive areas. This is not so. Their lift charges are in line with lift charges throughout the Northeast."

"Of course," Mrs. Davenport continued "if the skier wishes to indulge in a sauna, swim in the pool, imbibe at the bar or enjoy a gourmet meal, he could, indeed, end up spending a considerable sum of money. However, if Mr. Tiano would take the time to visit some of the less 'posh' ski areas, he would find that, even here, his compassion for the skier's financial condition is unwarranted. Upon entering the parking lot, he would see that most of the cars are of the latest model, with a generous sprinkling of foreign favorites. If he knows anything at all about the cost of skiing equipment and clothing, he could estimate that each skier had spent anywhere from $100 to $300 dollars for these necessities before he stepped up to buy lift tickets. A surprising number of skiers would be carrying flight bags, a status symbol of recent ski trips farther afield. Is it to be expected that the skier is suddenly going to be economy-minded? Not at all. Where a cheaper form of uphill transportation is available, relatively few skiers will take advantage of this saving."

Mrs. Davenport thinks that "the Slutskys are to be admired for their courage in building so complete a ski resort, in the face of more and more expansion by state-owned areas. As Abraham Lincoln stated, the function of government is to perform only those services that private enterprise cannot render. This is the underlying principle of our capitalistic system, as opposed to Communism."

"The plan that the Slutskys recommend where the state lease land to private individuals or corporations has worked well in New Hampshire and Vermont," says Mrs. Davenport. "Is there any reason to doubt that the same could be true in New York State? Are not the legislators of New Hampshire and Vermont more astute, in not only providing the best ski areas in the East, through private enterprise, but also, taking in much revenue in taxes and rents from this source? Should not our state legislators, likewise, turn its ski operation into a source of income, instead of an added burden to the taxpayers?"

The Woodstock gent, who prefers anonymity, writes: I have skied at Hunter and at all state-owned ski areas and know from experience that the state areas are much more expensive than privately operated ski areas. True the Hunter Mountain area is 'posh'. The things that are really 'posh' are the ski lodge, slopes and trails but not the fees which are reasonable and are within the average skier's price range.

"Following are some facts and figures regarding prices on private-owned ski areas: weekdays, $4; half days, $3; weekends, $6.50, half day, $4.50; special women's rate (Wednesday) $3; for men $2 on Thursdays. In addition, Hunter has special rates for family groups, ski clubs, etc."

Now let me quote some fees in other surrounding private owned ski areas: Scotch Valley, $4.50 per day; Highmount, $3.50; Big Bear, $3; Plattekill, $3; Simpson's Slide, $2.00. The state ski areas charge $5 per day and no half-day tickets. They also charge $1 per day for spectators on weekends — no charge for this at Hunter. There are no special rates at the state areas, except for free loaders, who are many and for this the taxpayer must, of necessity, foot the bill.

I myself ski daily but only half-days. After all, I'm 70 years young. My fee at Hunter for one week is $24.00. At Belleayre it would be $35.00, plus $2 for my wife, a non-skier. Simple arithmetic tells me that I save $13.00 per week at Hunter Mountain. On the basis of a 12-week season, I would save $156 per season.

Mr. 70-year-old concludes: "Now, Charlie, in all fairness to the private ski area owners, would you please be kind enough to publish the above figures on ski rates. Please sign my autograph 'Just A Skier.'"

Your point is well taken, Eduardo. As for those "free loaders" at state areas, we wouldn't know. In the 35 years we have been on the sportsbeat, no ski area — state owned or private — has ever extended us press privileges. In that department we've had to rate them even up.

Mantilla Leads Sox To 5-2 Win

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Felix Mantilla, who made more moves than a belly dancer last year, has reduced his act.

Instead of belting the ball between fielders and over fences while moving from one of six positions to another, he's just rapping the ball between fielders and over fences.

Mantilla, maintaining the power he discovered in 1964, drove in all of Boston's runs Tuesday in the Red Sox's 5-2 triumph over Washington. It was the only American League game scheduled.

Hits Grand Slam
The 30-year-old Puerto Rican got the Red Sox off to a fast start with a first-inning grand slam home run — the first of his career and the first in the league this season. Two innings later, he singled across Boston's final run.

The performance increased Mantilla's 1965 output to a .368 batting average, two homers and 10 runs batted in. No one else in the AL has more than seven RBI while only Tony Conigliaro, hitting .556, has a better average with Boston.

Mantilla's slugging has helped the Red Sox to four victories in their first five games and the AL lead.

Acquired from the New York Mets for the 1963 season, Mantilla burst forth last year as a power hitter, reaching career highs of 30 home runs and 64 runs batted in. His .289 average was second best in his nine-year career.

For this year, however, Manager Billy Herman decided Mantilla would remain at only one position — second base.

Canadiens Top Chicago, 2-0

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — "If they can keep those two big guys quiet, we'll have won half the battle," says Montreal goalie Gump Worsley.

Montreal had kept the two big guys quiet and has already won half the battle in the Stanley Cup National Hockey League championship.

The Canadiens scored a 2-0 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks Tuesday night and have won the first two games of the best-of-7 series in Montreal.

For the second successive game, Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita, Chicago's one-two scoring punch, failed to produce. Hull is Montreal's No. 1 target. So far Claude Provost has done a brilliant job of guarding the Golden Jet.

Hull was held to only two shots on goal in the second game, in which Jean Beliveau and Dick Duff scored power play goals in the second and third periods, respectively, to give Montreal its commanding edge.

Not only have Hull and Mikita been stopped, but the Hawks desperately miss Pierre Pilote and Kenny Wharram, a couple of injured stars.

Pilote, the All-Star defenseman, captain and playmaker, is out with an injured left shoulder. Wharram is suffering from bruised knees. Whether they will be able to play when the series resumes in Chicago Thursday night is questionable.

The Hawks are hoping for a change in their fortunes on their home ice. In the semifinals they lost the first two games in Detroit only to roar back and take the series in seven games.

Hull remarked after Tuesday's game, "We didn't look any better when we lost the first two in Detroit. We'll bounce back."

Montclair Linksman Clip the Hawks, 7-2

Bob Saigler, playing No. 6 singles, scored the only State University win, as the crack Montclair State College golfers trounced Coach Doug Sheppard's Hawks, 7 to 2, Tuesday at the Essex Country Club at West Orange, N. J.

Saigler and John Sternberg teamed up for a 2-1 win over the Montclair combine of Richard Thompson and Mark Goodal.

Thompson beat Sternberg, 1 up, but Saigler routed Goodal, 6 and 5, and the locals won best ball, 1 up.

Jack Francis defeated State's Rick Barthel, 3-2, and John Unencheck trounced William Meddaugh, 6 and 5, for the best-ball and a 3-0 score in the No. 1 foursome.

Montclair also swept the second foursome, 3-0, as Jerry McConaghy defeated John Lane, 5 and 4, and Bill Myers won over Ron Shapiro, 4 and 3.

The match was scored on individual matches and best ball within the foursome.

The win was Montclair's fourth in five starts this season. Their only loss was to Bloomfield College, champions in that area of New Jersey.

New Paltz was scheduled to play RPI at Troy Country Club today in a 7-man match.

The controversial veteran replaces Manuel Yeaza, who was aboard Bold Lad in the Wood as a substitute for the suspended Braulio Baeza. Hartack also will be up when Bold Lad goes in the Derby Trial next Tuesday.

Baeza is under contract to Darby Dan Farm and is expected to ride either Bugler or Country Friend in the Triple Crown opener at Churchill Downs, Yeaza agreed Monday to ride Flag Raiser in the Derby, replacing Johnny Sellers.

Hartack won last year's Derby aboard Northern Dancer after Willie Shoemaker switched from the Canadian-bred colt to favored Hill Rise. Hartack also won with Iron Liege in 1957, Venetian Way in 1960 and Decidedly in 1962. Only Eddie Arcaro, now retired, has won five Derbies and he started in the classic 21 times.

Three Pitchers Combine to Spin Non-Loop Verdict

By ED PALLADINO
Freeman Sports Staff

Charlie Green's second inning single with two runners on and some tight pitching by a trio of Kingston High choppers gave the locals a 2-1 win over visiting Roosevelt yesterday at Dietz Stadium.

In capturing their second verdict in three starts (the other ended in a tie), coach Mike Rienza's team tallied all the runs they needed in the second stanza.

Joe Schabot reached base on an error to begin the inning. Bill Palen drew a one out walk. Schabot then stole third and moments later, Palen swiped second. Green then stroked a clean single to center, driving in both runs.

Given the 2-0 edge, lanky John Spinneweber worked five good innings in his first outing of the season. He allowed three hits, struck out five and showed perfect control.

Bach Hurls 6th
Brian Bach turned the visitors down in order in the sixth and Gene Rios was sent in to hurl the seventh.

The fireballing lefty had some control trouble, walking two batters and uncorking a pair of wild pitches. The second wild pitch came with a runner on second and two outs.

Rios threw a ball which hit in front of the plate. The batter swung and missed for an apparent strike out but catcher Ed Mills couldn't come up with the ball and the runner reached base and a run crossed the dish.

Another walk gave the Presidents a pair of base runners but Rios fanned the final batter to end the game. It was his fourth strikeout of the inning.

The winners collected five hits off the slants of Bob Prefontaine, including a double by Bill Dugan.

Kingston plays at Roosevelt this afternoon and then hosts Arlington on Thursday at 2:30 and Saugerties on Friday at 10 a. m. at Dietz Stadium.

The Accent Is Latin

SOUTH OF THE BORDER—Four rookies who are planning to be around the major leagues for a while are infielders Sandy Alomar of the Braves, Cesar Tovar of the Twins, Tony Perez of the Redlegs and Roberto Pena of the Cubs.

Since that incredible 8-inch snowfall at Pine Hill on Easter Sunday lends a measure of credence and pertinency to comments on skiing on this date—April 21—here we go again.

Some time ago we made some observations about state-operated and privately owned ski centers. The point we tried to make was that, in our opinion, there was a place for both in our capitalistic democracy. We made no reference to comparative lift charges. We simply said we can live with both and each serves a purpose.

A couple of ski enthusiasts—one a rugged 70-year-old Woodstock resident who skis daily—and Mrs. Francis G. Davenport of Stone Ridge, who is connected with Highmount Ski Center, which is privately owned—have lodged vigorous dissents to our remarks.

Mrs. Davenport said we were guilty of a "few misleading statements" in the March 27 column, in which we said that New York State is performing a valuable service in operating three ski centers, as opposed to Orville Slutsky's (Hunter Mountain) view that private enterprise could better fill the need. The letter, addressed to the editor of the Kingston Daily Freeman, said that our statement "that there are thousands of skiers who do not have the finances to ski at Hunter Mountain seems to infer that the lift charges at Hunter are higher than those in competitive areas. This is not so. Their lift charges are in line with lift charges throughout the Northeast."

"Of course," Mrs. Davenport continued "if the skier wishes to indulge in a sauna, swim in the pool, imbibe at the bar or enjoy a gourmet meal, he could, indeed, end up spending a considerable sum of money. However, if Mr. Tiano would take the time to visit some of the less 'posh' ski areas, he would find that, even here, his compassion for the skier's financial condition is unwarranted. Upon entering the parking lot, he would see that most of the cars are of the latest model, with a generous sprinkling of foreign favorites. If he knows anything at all about the cost of skiing equipment and clothing, he could estimate that each skier had spent anywhere from $100 to $300 dollars for these necessities before he stepped up to buy lift tickets. A surprising number of skiers would be carrying flight bags, a status symbol of recent ski trips farther afield. Is it to be expected that the skier is suddenly going to be economy-minded? Not at all. Where a cheaper form of uphill transportation is available, relatively few skiers will take advantage of this saving."

Mrs. Davenport thinks that "the Slutskys are to be admired for their courage in building so complete a ski resort, in the face of more and more expansion by state-owned areas. As Abraham Lincoln stated, the function of government is to perform only those services that private enterprise cannot render. This is the underlying principle of our capitalistic system, as opposed to Communism."

"The plan that the Slutskys recommend where the state lease land to private individuals or corporations has worked well in New Hampshire and Vermont," says Mrs. Davenport. "Is there any reason to doubt that the same could be true in New York State? Are not the legislators of New Hampshire and Vermont more astute, in not only providing the best ski areas in the East, through private enterprise, but also, taking in much revenue in taxes and rents from this source? Should not our state legislators, likewise, turn its ski operation into a source of income, instead of an added burden to the taxpayers?"

The Woodstock gent, who prefers anonymity, writes: I have skied at Hunter and at all state-owned ski areas and know from experience that the state areas are much more expensive than the privately operated ski areas. True the Hunter Mountain area is 'posh'. The things that are really 'posh' are the ski lodge, slopes and trails but not the fees which are reasonable and are within the average skier's price range.

"Following are some facts and figures regarding prices on private-owned ski areas: weekdays, $4, half days, $3; weekends, $6.50, half day, $4.50; special women's rate (Wednesday) $2; for men $2 on Thursdays. In addition, Hunter has special rates for family groups, ski clubs, etc.

Now let me quote some fees in other surrounding private owned ski areas: Scotch Valley, $4.50 per day; Highmount, $3.50; Big Bear, $2; Plattkill, $3; Simpson's Slide, $2.00. The state ski areas charge $5 per day and no half-day tickets. They also charge $1 per day for spectators on weekends—no charge for this at Hunter. There are no special rates at the state areas, except for free leaders, who are many and for this the taxpayer must, of necessity, foot the bill.

I myself ski daily but only half-days. After all, I'm 70 years young. My fee at Hunter for one week is $34.00. At Belleayre it would be $35.00, plus $2 for my wife, a non-skier. Simple arithmetic tells me that I save $13.00 per week at Hunter Mountain. On the basis of a 12-week season, I would save $156 per season.

Mr. 70-Year-Old concludes: "Now, Charlie, in all fairness to the private ski area owners, would you please be kind enough to publish the above figures on ski rates. Please sign my autograph 'Just A Skier.'"

Your point is well taken, Eduardo. As for those "free leaders" at state areas, we wouldn't know. In the 35 years we have been on the sportsbeat, no ski area—state owned or private—has ever extended us press privileges. In that (department) we'd have to rate them even up.

Mantilla Leads Sox To 5-2 Win

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Felix Mantilla, who made more moves than a belly dancer last year, has reduced his act. Instead of belting the ball between fielders and over fences while moving from one of six positions to another, he's just rapping the ball between fielders and over fences.

Mantilla, maintaining the power he discovered in 1964, drove in all of Boston's runs Tuesday in the Red Sox' 5-2 triumph over Washington. It was the only American League game scheduled.

Hits Grand Slam
The 30-year-old Puerto Rican got the Red Sox off to a fast start with a first-inning grand slam home run—the first of his career and the first in the league this season. Two innings later, he singled across Boston's final run.

The performance increased Mantilla's 1965 output to a .368 batting average, two homers and 10 runs batted in. No one else in the AL has more than seven RBI while only Tony Conigliaro, hitting .556, has a better average with Boston.

Mantilla's slugging has helped the Red Sox to four victories in their first five games and the AL lead. Acquired from the New York Mets for the 1963 season, Mantilla burst forth last year as a power hitter, reaching career highs of 30 home runs and 64 runs batted in. His .289 average was second best in his nine-year career.

While he was compiling his lustrous record, Mantilla was moving all over the Boston defense. He played at six different spots, all three outfield posts, second base, shortstop and third base.

For this year, however, Manager Billy Herman decided Mantilla would remain at only one position—second base.

Canadiens Top Chicago, 2-0

By JOE MOOSHL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP)—"If they can keep those two big guys quiet, we'll have won half the battle," says Montreal goalie Gump Worsley.

Montreal had kept the two big guys quiet and has already won half the battle in the Stanley Cup National Hockey League championship.

The Canadiens scored a 2-0 victory over the Chicago Black Hawks Tuesday night and have won the first two games of the best-of-7 series in Montreal.

For the second successive game, Bobby Hull and Stan Mikita, Chicago's one-two scoring punch, failed to produce. Hull is Montreal's No. 1 target. So far Claude Provost has done a brilliant job of guarding the Golden Jet.

Hull was held to only two shots on goal in the second game, in which Jean Beliveau and Dick Duff scored power play goals in the second and third periods, respectively, to give Montreal its commanding edge.

Not only have Hull and Mikita been stopped, but the Hawks desperately miss Pierre Pilote and Kenny Wharram, a couple of injured stars.

Pilote, the All-Star defenseman, captain and playmaker, is out with an injured left shoulder. Wharram is suffering from bruised knees. Whether they will be able to play when the series resumes in Chicago Thursday night is questionable.

The Hawks are hoping for a change in their fortunes on their home ice. In the semifinals they lost the first two games in Detroit only to roar back and take the series in seven games.

Hull remarked after Tuesday's game, "We didn't look any better when we lost the first two in Detroit. We'll bounce back."

Seton Hall Scores 5-4 Win Over Cornell

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP)—Powerful Seton Hall, defending NCAA District 2 baseball champion, continued its winning ways Tuesday with a 5-4 victory over Cornell.

Winning pitcher Frank Cushing, a righthander, went the distance and struck out 10 and allowed six hits.

Bob Baker connected for a single and a double for the losers, batting in two runs.

The Pirates, with five victories in seven starts, faced the Ithaca College Bombers here today. Seton Hall defeated Ithaca for the District 2 crown last year.

Montclair Linksman Clip the Hawks, 7-2

Bob Seigler, playing No. 6 singles, scored the only State University win, as the crack Montclair State College golfers trounced Coach Doug Sheppard's Hawks, 7 to 2, Tuesday at the Essex Country Club at West Orange, N. J.

Seigler and John Sternberg teamed up for a 2-1 win over the Montclair combine of Richard Thompson and Mark Goodall. Thompson beat Sternberg, 1 up, but Seigler routed Goodall, 6 and 5, and the locals won best ball, 1 up.

Jack Francis defeated State's Rick Barthel, 3-2, and John Uenchek trounced William Meddaugh, 6 and 5, for the best ball and a 3-0 score in the No. 1 foursome.

Montclair also swept the second foursome, 3-0, as Jerry McConaghy defeated John Lane, 5 and 4, and Bill Myers won over Ron Shapiro, 4 and 3.

The match was scored on individual matches and best ball within the foursome.

The win was Montclair's fourth in five starts this season. Their only loss was to Bloomfield College, champions in that area of New Jersey.

Carter Loses Split Decision To Harry Scott

LONDON (AP) — The hometown decision that gave British middleweight Harry Scott a disputed 10-round victory over Rubin Carter of Paterson, N.J., left British commentators divided today — and the American camp still furious.

Pat Amato, Carter's manager, lodged an official protest with the British Boxing Board and stormed:

"We will never come back to Britain. I have never seen such a disgraceful decision in my life."

Carter, who floored the British hope for a five count in the first round and was the winner on The Associated Press card, said, "I thought I won just about every round."

The AP verdict gave Carter the first, fourth, seventh, eighth and ninth rounds, with Scott taking the second, third and sixth and the rest even.

Carter crumpled the Englishman with a tremendous right 30 seconds after the opening bell. Scott looked as groggy as he did when Carter stopped him in nine rounds six weeks ago, but hung on this time.

British views of the fight ranged from suggestions that Carter won to forthright assertions that Scott's points victory was decisive.

Gerard Walter, veteran correspondent of The Daily Mirror, said:

"The American certainly didn't win all 10 but I thought he did enough to merit the verdict."

The Daily Telegraph's Terry Godwin led the opposite camp. He called Scott's win decisive and added, "Decisive is the operative word. Scott, contrary to what was generally expected, unquestionably outgamed, outpunched and outlasted the American."

one of those French motercycles," Tewksbury said. "I'll see to it that you get one," he was told.

"I got more enjoyment out of that motercycle than anything else," Tewksbury recalls.

Each evening he went to a cemetery near his home and trained by leaping over headstones, startling passersby, but nevertheless whipping himself into top shape.

In the Parisian games, he won the 200-meter dash in 22.2 seconds and the 400-meter hurdles in .57.6, placed second in the 60-meter and 100-meter dashes, and was third in the 200-meter hurdles.

For his efforts, he was awarded bronze medals. The now-traditional gold medals had not yet come into vogue.

At a banquet climaxing the games, a member of the British royal family thought that Tewksbury deserved something better.

Spahn Pitches Mets Over Dodgers, 3-2

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Warren Spahn gave every indication in 1964 that he was getting too old to remain a big winner in the majors. Apparently he stopped off somewhere between seasons for a vitamin pick-me-up that has taken a couple of years off his 43-year-old left arm.

Making his second start Tuesday night, the winningest southpaw in major league history came through with another strong performance, allowing only one earned run in a 3-2 victory over Los Angeles that brought him his first triumph as a New York Met and the 357th of his career.

A 2.12 ERA

That left Spahn with a sparkling 2.12 earned-run average and two steps closer toward his prime 1965 goal—"erasing the memory of last year when everything went bad for me."

Spahn won 23 games for Milwaukee in 1963, then fell to a 6-13 mark last season with a 5.28 ERA. But he never once assumed he was over the hill.

"I am sound physically," he pointed out during spring training. "I just wasn't pitching enough last year. I have to work regularly to be effective."

"You can't convince me you go from middle age to old age in one year."

He proved his point against the Dodgers, working into the ninth with a four-hit shutout.

Then a single by Wes Parker and an error by Ed Kranepool opened the door and the Dodgers struck their foot in it with run-producing singles by Tommy Davis and John Roseboro.

But with the tying and winning runs on first and third, Spahn reared back into his high kick and pitched out of the jam. He struck out Jim Lefebvre for strikeout No. 2,500 of his career, got Ron Fairly on a grounder and finished with a flourish by striking out John Kennedy.

Eusebio, Roberto Clemente, still underweight from a battle with malaria this spring, drove in two runs with a pair of singles in Pittsburgh's 3-1 victory over San Francisco and Philadelphia edged Houston 2-1 in 13 innings on Ruben Amaro's key single. The other clubs were not scheduled.

Spahn was locked in a scoreless duel with Dodger starter Claude Osteen, who had allowed only three hits, until the eighth when Roy McMillan's single bunt brought in Johnny Lewis. Lewis produced the other New York runs with a two-run single in the ninth inning.

Clemente, who has six hits in his last 12 at-bats, singled following Bill Virdon's double in the first inning and drove in another Pirate run in the fifth after Dick Schofield singled and moved to second on a grounder.

Atlanta Scores 5th Straight Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Break up the Crackers" is a cry likely to be ringing throughout the International League today after Atlanta defeated Syracuse 8-5 Tuesday night for its fifth straight baseball victory.

Atlanta used a 14-hit attack in which every starter contributed at least one hit and remained unbeaten in the early season going. The victory gave the Crackers a two-game margin over Columbus and Toronto, tied for second.

In other International League action, Jacksonville whipped winless Rochester 6-3, Toledo shut out Buffalo 5-0 and Columbus nipped Toronto 8-7.

A three-run homer by John Ryan in the third and a ninth inning solo shot by Mickey Stanley were not enough to prevent Syracuse from doubling its record straight to Atlanta.

Jacksonville made use of Elio Chacon's eighth-inning grand slam home run to keep the Red Wings winless. The four-run homer was exactly the 28th home run for Chacon in a career spanning a decade.

Rochester, last season's playoff winner, led going into the eighth 3-1.

Toronto overcame a 7-0 Columbus lead in the last three innings, only to lose in the last of the ninth on Pancho Herrera's run-scoring double.

Time Lapse Lets Planes Escape Area of Blast

By FRANK CAREY

AP Science Writer

SANDIA BASE, Albuquerque, N.M. (AP) — The United States has developed nuclear bombs which will, when dropped by low-flying planes, survive impact and explode by delayed fuse.

The time lapse allows the planes time to escape the blast area.

These so-called "lay-down" weapons, designed for hit-and-run attacks, are girded in armor tough enough to smash against rock or concrete without damaging the nuclear explosive.

Testing the hide of these new weapons is an assignment being carried out at heavily guarded laboratories and areas in the foothills of the rolling Sandia Mountains. The site is a key atomic support base of the Atomic Energy Commission and the armed forces.

Technicians use every means to wreck, burn and freeze the non-nuclear hardware that goes into U.S. nuclear bombs, missiles, land mines, artillery shells and other arms.

Each component is designed to withstand temperatures from 90 degrees below zero to 5,400 degrees above, and possibly even enemy sprays of radiation.

Ike Returning

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is leaving Palm Desert next week for his home in Gettysburg, Pa., convinced the spring thaw has warmed the East sufficiently for his comfort.

An aide said Tuesday Eisenhower and his wife would leave California by train April 27. They arrived in Palm Desert Dec. 18 for their seventh winter on the desert.

The United States Military Academy at West Point was, for many years, this nation's only engineering school.

Four Closings Completed on Renewal Sites

Closings for title change on four properties in downtown's Broadway East urban renewal area were completed Tuesday.

Eric Hemphill, executive director of the Urban Renewal Agency, announced today.

Three other property owners in the area have signed options, he said, bringing the total, to date, including four city properties involved, to 35.

Closings were completed yesterday on properties owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Brink at 7 Theresa Lane; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haughey, at 39 Gross Street; Mrs. Ethel Bruck at 90 Murray Street, and Mr. and Mrs. George L. Loeffler at 88 Newkirk Avenue. Five closings have been completed, to date.

Options were obtained recently on properties owned by Louise Fischer at 103 Hasbrouck Avenue; Evelyn Feldman, as executrix of the estate of George Goldman, at 168 Hasbrouck Avenue, and James Wilson at 105-07 Hasbrouck Avenue.

Some 55 properties are involved in the first-phase area of the downtown project. It is expected that plans will be advanced sufficiently to permit start of a first housing project in the area next fall.

Featured speaker will be Theodore E. Lucas, of Washington, D.C., world director of Seventh-day Adventist youth. A welcome will be given by Edmund M. Peterson, of Takoma Park, Md., director of the Congress and youth leader of the Columbia Union Conference of Adventists.

Theme of the Congress, according to Mr. Peterson, is "Youth and Truth for the Hour"—and will stress the application of Biblical principles in every aspect of daily life for teen-agers of America.

Lecturers will present portions on community service, family relationships, courtship and marriage, military service, recreation and social life, and ways in which the young people in attendance can share their faith with other youths.

Time Lapse Lets Planes Escape Area of Blast

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

SANDIA BASE, Albuquerque, N.M. (AP)—The United States has developed nuclear bombs which will, when dropped by low-flying planes, survive impact and explode by delayed fuse.

The time lapse allows the planes time to escape the blast area.

These so-called "lay-down" weapons, designed for hit-and-run attacks, are girded in armor tough enough to smash against rock or concrete without damaging the nuclear explosive.

Testing the hide of these new weapons is an assignment being carried out at heavily guarded laboratories and areas in the foothills of the rolling Sandia Mountains. The site is a key atomic support base of the Atomic Energy Commission and the armed forces.

Technicians use every means to wreck, burn and freeze the non-nuclear hardware that goes into U.S. nuclear bombs, missiles, land mines, artillery shells and other arms.

Each component is designed to withstand temperatures from 90 degrees below zero to 5,400 degrees above, and possibly even enemy sprays of radiation.

Four Closings Completed on Renewal Sites

Closings for title change on four properties in downtown's Broadway East urban renewal area were completed Tuesday, Eric Hemphill, executive director of the Urban Renewal Agency, announced today.

Three other property owners in the area have signed options, he said, bringing the total, to date, including four city properties involved, to 35.

Closings were completed yesterday on properties owned by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Brink at 7 Theresa Lane; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haughey, at 39 Gross Street; Mrs. Ethel Bruck at 90 Murray Street, and Mr. and Mrs. George L. Loeffler at 88 Newkirk Avenue. Five closings have been completed, to date.

Options were obtained recently on properties owned by Louise Fischer at 103 Hasbrouck Avenue; Evelyn Feldman, as executrix of the estate of George Goldman, at 168 Hasbrouck Avenue, and James Wilson at 105-07 Hasbrouck Avenue.

Some 55 properties are involved in the first-phase area of the downtown project. It is expected that plans will be advanced sufficiently to permit start of a first housing project in the area next fall.

Adventist Youth Congress Opens

Seventh-day Adventists from 14 mid-Atlantic and northeastern states today begin a four-day Youth Congress in Atlantic City's huge Convention Hall.

More than 3,500 official delegates arrived by train, plane, car, and bus for the official opening at 7 o'clock. Total attendance is expected to reach more than 10,000 before the parley ends Saturday night.

Featured speaker will be Theodore E. Lucas, of Washington, D. C., world director of Seventh-day Adventist youth. A welcome will be given by Edmund M. Peterson, of Takoma Park, Md., director of the Congress, and youth leader of the Columbia Union Conference of Adventists.

Theme of the Congress, according to Mr. Peterson, is "Youth and Truth for the Hour"—and will stress the application of Biblical principles in every aspect of daily life for teen-agers of America.

Lecturers will present pointers on community service, family relationships, courtship and marriage, military service, recreation and social life, and ways in which the young people in attendance can share their faith with other youths.

Cong Infiltration Increases in Viet

WASHINGTON (AP). — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, returning today from a strategy meeting in Hawaii, said infiltration of men and arms from the North into South Viet Nam has increased "at a high rate" in recent months.

Thus the secretary, in a plane-side exchange, backgrounded the statement he made to newsman Tuesday night in Honolulu that American air and sea action against North Viet Nam will be stepped up. He made that forecast at the close of two days of conferences with top military leaders from Saigon and Washington.

Stresses Importance

In answer to a question about reasons for such stepped-up action, McNamara said: "We sometimes fail to understand the importance of the action in South Viet Nam."

To another question about the threat of Soviet anti-aircraft missiles in North Viet Nam, McNamara said he thinks "we should anticipate that eventually" but there is no information yet that the missiles are on the site.

McNamara said that in a recent engagement with two Viet Cong units, 90 per cent of small arms captured and 100 per cent of larger weapons were of Chinese or Communist-bloc manufacture.

The defense chief gave a go-ahead for intensified air and sea activity against the North Vietnamese Communists and said the United States intends to give more help to South Viet Nam's antiquerrilla forces.

No Missiles, Yet

Last week reports reached Washington that a Soviet anti-aircraft missile site was being constructed near Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital. Last Friday, a State Department spokesman said such a site appeared to be in preparation near Hanoi, but other officials said there was no evidence that any Soviet missiles had reached North Viet Nam.

When the Soviet missile question was put to McNamara in his plane-side interview, he replied:

"We have no specific information whether surface-to-air missiles are in North Viet Nam, but we must assume they will eventually be introduced into that country."

To Increase Aid

Of U.S. assistance to South Viet Nam, McNamara said aid will be increased "above originally planned levels."

"We must seek to overcome the strategic disadvantage the South Vietnamese have versus the Viet Cong in terms of traditional guerrilla-to-guerrilla ratios by adding to the mobility and firepower of these forces. Specifically, he said more helicopter and close air support is required. He would not say whether more American combat troops will be sent to South Viet Nam."

McNamara said the basis for greater use of the American

The registrars' office was shifted from the courthouse to an old jail building for more space nearly two years ago. State law provides for two sessions per month.

About 20 students began a sit-in at the administration building of Alabama State College in Montgomery. They said they were protesting inadequate classroom and library facilities, lack of accreditation, and the college's attitude toward civil rights demonstrations by the students.

Discuss Boycott

In Atlanta, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and members of his staff met with singer Harry Belafonte and civil rights youth leaders to discuss details of an economic boycott on Alabama.

No decision was announced afterward. Belafonte said only that he met with King and leaders of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

At Bogalusa, La., James Farmer, director of the Congress of Racial Equality, led a long line of Negroes, most of them teen-agers, on a 55-minute march through the downtown area to the City Hall.

Would Fire Police

The demonstrators sang at City Hall while a four-member delegation met with Mayor Jesse Cutrer. Their grievances included a demand that three policemen be fired or suspended for profanity and that laws be enforced equally against whites and Negroes.

The Justice Department filed suit in U.S. District Court at New Orleans, asking that six Bogalusa restaurants be enjoined from refusing service to Negroes.

Other developments on the racial scene included: — The arrest of 18 Negroes at Jackson, Miss., when they tried to picket a hotel where Sheriff James G. Clark of Selma, Ala., was attending a convention.

— At Boston, Mrs. James J. Reeb, wife of a Unitarian minister slain during the Selma voter registration campaign, was presented check for $41,000 by James E. Mills, editor of the Birmingham Post-Herald.

The money was contributed by people throughout the nation. It will be used to set up a trust fund for Mrs. Reeb and her four children.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (AP). — The stock market declined fairly sharply early this afternoon. Trading was active.

Changes of some key issues ran to around a point. Texas Gulf Sulphur continued to lose ground in the wake of a Securities and Exchange Commission suit charging its officers and directors profited from advance knowledge of a big Canadian ore discovery. It opened with a loss of a point which later widened to 3.

Columbia Broadcasting System eased after reporting a drop in first-quarter earnings. Benefiting from improved earnings, Colorado Fuel & Iron advanced slightly, reaching a new high.

U.S. Steel lost nearly a point and other steels were down fractionally on reports of a deterioration in the steel labor situation.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks at noon was down 1.0 to 338.0 with industrials off 1.6, rails unchanged and utilities off .9.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at noon was off 3.85 to 908.11.

General Motors fell more than a point and Ford and Chrysler eased about half a point.

Losses of about a point were posted by Anaconda, Westinghouse, International Business Machines, Xerox and Johns Manville.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed in active trading. Corporate bonds were mixed and governments were mostly unchanged.

route and reported sighting more trucks, closer to the border. They strafed the vehicles with rockets and cannon fire and reported seeing a bright flash after one pass, possibly caused by a secondary explosion.

Light Ground Fire

All of these planes returned safely to the Hancock. They reported light, sporadic anti-aircraft fire at several places.

Five A4 Skyhawks from the carrier Midway were the first group of raiders out after dark Tuesday night. Supported by five F4 Phantom jets and F8 Crusaders, the Skyhawks struck at a truck convoy about 120 miles north of the 17th Parallel. One of the planes was downed and the pilot was listed as missing.

A Navy spokesman said the Skyhawks carried out what is officially known as an armed route reconnaissance along Highway 12, north of the city of Vinh to the 20th Parallel. Vinh is near the Gulf of Tonkin coast. The spokesman said the planes were over the target area from 9 to 10 p.m. and that they encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire over some sections. No enemy planes were sighted. Spotting a truck convoy five miles north of Cum Lam, the planes made strafing passes, firing 5-inch "Zuni" rockets. A propeller-driven A1 Skyraider was downed and its pilot killed in the first strike of the day Tuesday, a pre-dawn raid which smashed another truck convoy on Highway 1 just north of the border with South Viet Nam.

Loosens Landslide

U.S. and Vietnamese air force planes hit at road and bridge targets through the day. One of the strikes loosened a large landslide across Highway 1 about 140 miles south of Hanoi. North Viet Nam claimed it downed eight U.S. aircraft Tuesday.

In the ground war in South Viet Nam, a powerful Viet Cong force was dug in at the base of foothills rising from the seaboard Quang Tri plains, and six battalions of Vietnamese soldiers massed nearby appeared reluctant to tangle with them. While U.S. and Vietnamese planes hammered guerrilla positions, government troops inched forward listlessly. They suffered 35 dead and 73 wounded or missing during a humiliating retreat Monday.

U.S. advisors hinted that the whole operation might be called off once the battlefield has been cleared of the dead and wounded.

Vietnamese marines launched the operation Sunday to clean out a Viet Cong concentration, but there were more Communists than expected. Two battalions of rangers and airborne soldiers were brought up for a counterattack, but they were still several miles from the Viet Cong emplacements. U.S. intelligence reports said three Viet Cong battalions plus a heavy-weapon battalion with mortars were dug in around the foothills. Four other battles have been fought in this area since Feb. 7. The Viet Cong apparently is attempting to make the mountains a big base area.

Twenty-five miles upriver from La Crosse at Winona, Minn., the river began to inch back. After hitting a peak of 20.75 feet, it slipped slightly to 20.67 feet.

Winona Mayor Rudy Ellings said, "After the biggest battle in our city's history it now appears our efforts will be successful." Winona threw up nine miles of earthen dike. Ellings said they "look better today than they ever have."

Wabasha, to the north of Winona, still was surrounded by water, but levels were going down slowly.

The Grand Union Company had record net earnings of $9,572,417 during its 1964 fiscal year ended February 27, 1965, and up 36.4 per cent over 1963. It was reported today by Thomas C. Butler, president of the Eastern food chain. Last year's net was $7,020,214.

Earnings in 1964, after all taxes and other charges, were equal to $1.85 per share of common stock, based on the average number of shares outstanding during the year. This compares with earnings of $1.35 per common share during fiscal 1963, based on the number of shares then outstanding and adjusted for a 4% common stock dividend paid May 22, 1964.

Sales of $740,039,690, also a new high in the company's 92-year history, were recorded by the company during 1964. This represented a gain of 10.9% over 1963 sales of $667,417,492.

"From the standpoint of both sales and profits," said Butler, "fiscal 1964 was by far the best year Grand Union has ever had."

stressed the use of fireman's gear at all times while on duty and cited the number of accidents and deaths which have resulted to firemen who neglected to use their proper gear. Proper also spoke on use of an inter-county radio operating on a frequency of 45.88, which is now being tried out in seven northern counties. This system would become a state-wide system and would not interfere with existing Mutual Aid radio systems. It would permit the county co-ordinators to speak to other county units over this separate system in case of emergency.

James Hicks, chairman of the Fire Prevention Committee, was present and spoke on the observance of Cleanup Week during April. He urged that all fire companies get behind this move to clean up and eliminate the sources of many fires. Literature has been distributed throughout the county publicizing clean-up week.

The Association voted to send $5 to each of the winners in the annual essay contest on Fire Prevention.

A communication was read from Fred Williams, chairman of the Legislative Committee at Albany, outlining legislation pending before the State Legislature. Among the matters mentioned in the letter which was read by Secretary Fred C. Harder, was legislation now before the governor which would amend the Education Law and permit school inspections by others than fire chiefs. Under the amendment a chief could appoint someone to make such inspection. Also discussed was a law in regard to following fire equipment to closely both to and from a fire.

Ulster County Fire Coordinator Winfred Snyder of Hurley gave his report for March. There were 115 fire calls, including four Mutual Aid calls and one inter-county call. He reported that the month of April promises to bring a record number of fire calls.

Oscar Lambert, reporting for the Fire Chief's Association, said that the Association would award a trophy for the best appearing apparatus in the parade at Highland.

Secretary Harder notified members that in order to attend the annual banquet Thursday, Aug. 5, a member must have paid his dues and be in good standing.

New members accepted were Stanley Stedner of Cragmoor; Robert A. Kurland and Philip Pesner of Spring Lake Fire Company.

Secretary Harder reported two deaths since the last meeting. Vincent J. Porelli of Plattekill and Joseph Disch Sr., of Weiner Hose Company of Kingston.

tion of an anticipated reverse in the trend, the report states.

"From the planning stage to the completion of a new jail takes considerable thought and time and it is felt that immediate serious thought should be given to replacing the present structure with one that is adequate and constructed in accordance with approved plans," the report suggests. In addition to being outmoded and is inadequate for proper classification, it is unsafe, the report states, "as it has no safety vestibules in the prisoners' exercise corridors or tool resistant steel in the corridor gratings, and it has no recreational or exercise facilities, all features of recently constructed jails," the report states. While not considered good jail management, the housing of prisoners out of security in the basement because of lack of an alternative, is referred to in the report as a condition beyond the control of the sheriff.

No contraband was found in the jail and the cells and exercise corridors were found to be clean and in good order.

Locks Wearing Out

It was noted that the locking system on the doors of the cells is a constant maintenance problem as the locks are in frequent need of repair. It was suggested that loose seats on the exercise corridor bars be secured. Many of them are missing.

Security doors at each end of the entrance to the jail are kept closed and only one is opened at a time to give admission to the jail. This practice is commended. Also commended is the placement of sheet metal around the unfinished fourth floor cell section to prevent the concealment of contraband from the third floor during search of cells.

Menu Approved

The kitchen arrangement and foods served was found in good order and in accordance with a posted menu.

The report also notes the arrangement for housing City of Kingston prisoners in a four-cell section of the basement. These cells were found clean and in good order. Approval was given to the "snuggle-proof" visiting booths which prevent passage of contraband. The medical record kept by an appointed physician was found in good order.

Inspection of the detention facilities for female prisoners found that department in good order with matron on duty when females are confined.

Picketing Still Slated at College

Plans for picketing by members of both the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) and CORE (Committee on Racial Equality) at State University College, New Paltz tonight, during the appearance of a representative of the American Nazi Party, are unchanged, according to word received today.

"Capt." John Patler, editor of the Nazi publication, "Storm Trooper," is scheduled to appear in place of George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi Party, who is reportedly in Amarillo, Texas, where he was to appear Tuesday in Federal Court in a lawsuit against a television station.

Reports that students at the college would participate in a sit-in demonstration starting at 4 p. m. today, gained momentum this noon.

Robert Pyle, college dean, told The Freeman at 10:30 a. m. today that, "I guess Capt. Patler has accepted the invitation." He said he had received no word to the contrary, and he emphasized that Patler will address a group session, to which the public will not be admitted.

Dean Pyle said he had heard "rumors" that a group of students at the college might appear in picket lines at 4:30 p. m.

Seven Cars Derailed

WARSAW, N.Y. (AP)—Seven gondola cars in an 81-car Erie Lackawanna Railroad freight train were derailed today near this Wyoming County community.

No one was reported injured. The cars, loaded with scrap metal, ripped about 300 feet of tracks as they left the rails. One car tipped on its side. A railroad spokesman said the derailment was caused by a hot journal box on one of the cars. The train was enroute from Buffalo to Hornell.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING...

by ROGER E. SPEAR

Investment Advisor and Analyst

Invest Only Where Details Are Available

Q) "I have been asked to invest in a certain security that pays seven per cent interest. When I asked for financial statements they told me no such reports were being issued. I have read in my newspaper not to invest in anything unless I could get detailed financial information. The seven per cent intrigues me. What do you think?" M.M.

A) I would forget about the seven per cent and follow the line your newspaper suggested. It doesn't matter too much whether or not you yourself can read a balance sheet and an earnings statement, but it's very important that these be available. You can be very sure your banker can read them and can render an opinion on them. Most publicly owned corporations go out of their way to furnish complete information about their activities. Those that don't are not necessarily bad risks, but they're harder to evaluate and more difficult to follow once you've bought into them.

Q) "My wife and I are in our early 70's. We own our home and have no debts. We have savings accounts of several thousand dollars that earn a fair rate of interest. We also have Series E bonds which have accumulated a considerable amount of interest, around $5,000. We are considering exchanging these bonds for Series H bonds, to get current income. We feel too far advanced in age to start buying stocks but would consider your advice." C.A.

A) My advice to you is to proceed exactly as you have planned. I do not regard your age as too advanced to buy stocks, but with apparently no previous experience, it would be difficult for you to give stocks the constant supervision that is required for such investments. If you exchange your Series E for Series H bonds, the Federal income tax on your accumulated interest may be deferred until the H bonds are redeemed or disposed of.

Cong Infiltration Increases in Viet

WASHINGTON (AP). — Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara, returning today from a strategy meeting in Hawaii, said infiltration of men and arms from the North into South Viet Nam has increased "at a high rate" in recent months.

Thus the secretary, in a plane-side exchange, backgrounded the statement he made to newsmen Tuesday night in Honolulu that American air and sea action against North Viet Nam will be stepped up. He made that forecast at the close of two days of conferences with top military leaders from Saigon and Washington.

Stresses Importance

In answer to a question about reasons for such stepped-up action, McNamara said, "We sometimes fail to understand the importance of the action in South Viet Nam."

To another question about the threat of Soviet anti-aircraft missiles in North Viet Nam, McNamara said he thinks "we should anticipate that eventually" but there is no information yet that the missiles are on the site.

McNamara said that in a recent engagement with two Viet Cong units, 90 per cent of small arms captured and 100 per cent of larger weapons were of Chinese or Communist-bloc manufacture.

The defense chief gave a go-ahead for intensified air and sea activity against the North Vietnamese Communists and said the United States intends to give more help to South Viet Nam's antiguerilla forces.

No Missiles, Yet

Last week reports reached Washington that a Soviet anti-aircraft missile site was being constructed near Hanoi, the North Viet Nam capital. Last Friday, a State Department spokesman said such a site appeared to be in preparation near Hanoi, but other officials said there was no evidence that any Soviet missiles had reached North Viet Nam.

When the Soviet missile question was put to McNamara in his plane-side interview, he replied:

"We have no specific information whether surface-to-air missiles are in North Viet Nam, but we must assume they will eventually be introduced into that country."

To Increase Aid

Of U.S. assistance to South Viet Nam, McNamara said aid will be increased "above originally planned levels."

"We must seek to overcome the strategic disadvantage the South Vietnamese have versus the Viet Cong in terms of traditional guerrilla-to-guerrilla ratios by adding to the mobility and firepower of these forces."

Specifically, he said more helicopter and close air support is required. He would not say whether more American combat troops will be sent to South Viet Nam.

McNamara said the basis for greater use of the American

Roche Baptist church in Camden.

"They said they would camp there until the Board of Registrars is moved to the courthouse, and meets five days a week," Jenkins said. "I don't know how long that will take."

The registrars' office was shifted from the courthouse to an old jail building for more space nearly two years ago. State law provides for two sessions per month.

About 20 students began a sit-in at the administration building of Alabama State College in Montgomery. They said they were protesting inadequate classroom and library facilities, lack of accreditation, and the college's attitude toward civil rights demonstrations by the students.

Discuss Boycott

In Atlanta, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and members of his staff met with singer Harry Belafonte and civil rights youth leaders to discuss details of an economic boycott on Alabama.

No decision was announced afterward. Belafonte said only that he met with King and leaders of the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

At Bogalusa, La., James Farmer, director of the Congress of Racial Equality, led a long line of Negroes, most of them teen-agers, on a 55-minute march through the downtown area to the City Hall.

Would Fire Police

The demonstrators sang at City Hall while a four-member delegation met with Mayor Jesse Cutrer. Their grievances included a demand that three policemen be fired or suspended for profanity and that laws be enforced equally against whites and Negroes.

The Justice Department filed suit in U.S. District Court at New Orleans, asking that six Bogalusa restaurants be enjoined from refusing service to Negroes.

Other developments on the racial scene included: — The arrest of 18 Negroes at Jackson, Miss., when they tried to picket a hotel where Sheriff James G. Clark of Selma, Ala., was attending a convention.

— At Boston, Mrs. James J. Reeb, wife of a Unitarian minister slain during the Selma voter registration campaign, was presented a check for $41,000 by James E. Mills, editor of the Birmingham Post-Herald.

The money was contributed by people throughout the nation. It will be used to set up a trust fund for Mrs. Reeb and her four children.

route and reported sighting more trucks, closer to the border. They strafed the vehicles with rockets and cannon fire and reported seeing a bright flash after one pass, possibly caused by a secondary explosion.

Light Ground Fire

All of these planes returned safely to the Hancock. They reported light, sporadic anti-aircraft fire at several places.

Five A1 Skyhawks from the carrier Midway were the first group of raiders out after dark Tuesday night. Supported by more F4 Phantom jets and F8 Crusaders, the Skyhawks struck at a truck convoy about 120 miles north of the 17th Parallel.

One of the planes was downed and the pilot was listed as missing.

A Navy spokesman said the Skyhawks carried out what is officially known as an armed route reconnaissance along Highway 12, north of the city of Vinh to the 20th Parallel. Vinh is near the Gulf of Tonkin coast.

The spokesman said the planes were over the target area from 9 to 10 p.m., and that they encountered heavy anti-aircraft fire over some sections.

No enemy planes were sighted. Spotting a truck convoy five miles north of Cum Lam, the planes made strafing passes, firing 5-inch "Zuni" rockets.

A propeller-driven A1 Sky-raider was downed and its pilot killed in the first strike of the day Tuesday, a pre-dawn raid which smashed another truck convoy on Highway 1 just north of the border with South Viet Nam.

Loosens Landslide

U.S. and Vietnamese air force planes hit at road and bridge targets through the day. One of the strikes loosened a large landslide across Highway 1 about 140 miles south of Hanoi.

North Viet Nam claimed it downed eight U.S. aircraft Tuesday.

In the ground war in South Viet Nam, a powerful Viet Cong force was dug in at the base of foothills rising from the sunbaked Quang Tin plains, and six battalions of Vietnamese soldiers massed nearby appeared reluctant to tangle with them.

While U.S. and Vietnamese planes hammered guerrilla positions, government troops inched forward listlessly. They suffered 33 dead and 73 wounded or missing during a humiliating retreat Monday.

May Call Off Operation

U.S. advisors hinted that the whole operation might be called off once the battlefield has been cleared of the dead and wounded.

Vietnamese marines launched the operation Sunday to clean out a Viet Cong concentration, but there were more Communists than expected. Two battalions of rangers and airborne soldiers were brought up for a counterattack, but they were still several miles from the Viet Cong emplacements.

U.S. intelligence reports said three Viet Cong battalions plus a heavy-weapon battalion with mortars were dug in around the foothills. Four other battles have been fought in this area since Feb. 7. The Viet Cong apparently is attempting to make the mountains a big base area.

Twenty-five miles upriver from La Crosse at Winona, Minn., the river began to inch back. After hitting a peak of 20.75 feet, it slipped slightly to 20.67 feet.

Winona Mayor Rudy Ellings said, "After the biggest battle in our city's history it now appears our efforts will be successful."

Winona threw up nine miles of earthen dikes. Ellings said they "look better today than they ever have."

Wabasha, to the north of Winona, still was surrounded by water but levels were going down slowly.

G-U Reports Record '64 Earnings, Sales

The Grand Union Company had record net earnings of $9,572,417 during its 1964 fiscal year ended February 27, 1965, and up 35.4 per cent over 1963, it was reported today by Thomas C. Butler, president of the Eastern food chain. Last year's net was $7,020,214.

Earnings in 1964, after all taxes and other charges, were equal to $1.85 per share of common stock, based on the average number of shares outstanding during the year. This compares with earnings of $1.35 per common share during fiscal 1963, based on the number of shares then outstanding and adjusted for a 4% common stock dividend paid May 22, 1964.

Sales of $740,039,690, also a new high in the company's 92-year history, were recorded by the company during 1964. This represented a gain of 10.9% over 1963 sales of $667,417,492.

"From the standpoint of both sales and profits," said Butler, "fiscal 1964 was by far the best year Grand Union has ever had."

State Wants . . .

"From the planning stage to the completion of a new jail takes considerable thought and time and it is felt that immediate serious thought should be given to replacing the present structure with one that is adequate and constructed in accordance with approved plans," the report suggests. In addition to being outmoded and is inadequate for proper classification, it is unsafe, the report states, "as it has no safety vestibules in the prisoners' exercise corridors or tool resistant steel in the corridor gratings, and it has no recreational or exercise facilities, all features of recently constructed jails," the report states. While not considered good jail management, the housing of prisoners out of security in the basement because of lack of an alternative, is referred to in the report as a condition beyond the control of the sheriff.

No contraband was found in the jail and the cells and exercise corridors were found to be clean and in good order.

Locks Wearing Out

It was noted that the locking system on the doors of the cells is a constant maintenance problem. The locks are in frequent need of repair. It was suggested that loose seats on the exercise corridor bars be secured. Many of them are missing.

Security doors at each end of the entrance to the jail are kept closed and only one is opened at a time to give admission to the jail. This practice is commended. Also commended is the placement of sheet metal around the unfinished fourth floor cell section to prevent the concealment of contraband from the third floor during search of cells.

Menu Approved

The kitchen arrangement and foods served was found in good order and in accordance with a posted menu.

The report also notes the arrangement for housing City of Kingston prisoners in a four-cell section of the basement. These cells were found clean and in good order. Approval was given to the "smuggle-proof" visiting booths which prevent passage of contraband. The medical record kept by an appointed physician was found in good order.

Inspection of the detention facilities for female prisoners found that department in good order with matron on duty when females are confined.

Picketing Still Slated at College

Plans for picketing by members of both the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People) and CORE (Committee on Racial Equality) at State University College, New Paltz tonight, during the appearance of a representative of the American Nazi Party, are unchanged, according to word received today.

"Capt. John Patler, editor of the Nazi publication, 'Storm Trooper', is scheduled to appear in place of George Lincoln Rockwell, leader of the American Nazi Party, who is reportedly in Amarillo, Texas, where he was to appear Tuesday in Federal Court in a lawsuit against a television station.

Reports that students at the college would participate in a sit-in demonstration starting at 4 p.m. today, gained momentum this noon.

Robert Pyle, college dean, told The Freeman at 10:30 a.m. today that, "I guess Capt. Patler has accepted the invitation." He said he had received no word to the contrary, and he emphasized that Patler will address a group session, to which the public will not be admitted.

Dean Pyle said he had heard "rumors" that a group of students at the college might appear in picket lines at 4:30 p.m.

Seven cars derailed.

WARSAW, N.Y. (AP)—Seven gondola cars in an 81-car Erie Lackawanna Railroad freight train were derailed today near this Wyoming County community.

No one was reported injured. The cars, loaded with scrap metal, ripped about 300 feet of tracks as they left the rails. One car tipped on its side.

A railroad spokesman said the derailment was caused by a hot journal box on one of the cars. The train was enroute from Buffalo to Hornell.
